7 Holdup Men Take $1,000,000 in Cash

Thugs Miss Million More As They Flee Boston Vault

Men in False Faces Go Through 6 Locked Doors, Bring Rope To Tie 5 Employes

Boston, Jan. 17 (AP).—One of the Nation's biggest robberies was pulled in Boston tonight when a bandit gang made off with "more than one million dollars" from an armored truck firm.

Police Supt. Edward W. Fallon said "over one million dollars was stolen and they missed we don't know how much more, because they couldn't carry it away."

The robbers struck with the precision of a well-drilled squad at Brink's, Inc., a money transportation firm, on the waterfront.

Following a well-rehearsed plan, seven of the group walked into the second-floor office at 7:10 p. m. To reach there, they had to open six locked doors.

Police said they opened the doors "probably with a passkey."

While the seven men, wearing Halloween masks, operated in the office, two more sat behind the steering wheels of automobiles at the curb.

Pass Up Another Million

"The robbery was so neatly executed," Capt. John D. Ahearn of the Police Special Service Squad said, "that it must have been engineered by the cream of Boston's crime world."

Fallon, after inspecting the robbery scene, sharply criticized the firm for "the poor security measures it takes to protect such huge sums of money."

Herbert Humphrey, Brink's manager, said "no accurate picture of the actual loss can be made before tomorrow."

Left behind by the robbers was "about $1 million" in a brown leather bag which represented the payroll of the General Electric Co., and receipts of Filene's Department Store, police said.

A company spokesman said several employes have passkeys and "possibly some former employes still have them."

The money, all in paper bills, was scooped from an open vault into two laundry bags brought by the robbers. They left behind nearly 50 bags of silver.

The garage is on the waterfront in Boston's congested North End.

Witnesses said the men raced out and fled in two automobiles.

The estimate of loss was given by Thomas B. Lloyd, head cashier, who said he and four other workers were trussed with heavy wrapping cord.

Lloyd said they took "four or five" guns from holsters hanging near the vault entrance before they made their getaway.

The money had been collected from business establishments during the day for deposit in banks Wednesday.

Six of the men wore rubbers—though the weather was dry—and the seventh wore crepe-soled shoes.

300 Plants Face Closing In Coal Crisis

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A power blackout, blamed on a lack of coal, threatens to shut down the industrial heart of Pittsburgh.

The Duquesne Light Co., its mines closed by strikes, yesterday notified 300 major industrial concerns to prepare for a cutoff of electrical power by Friday. The drastic action would be taken, the utility company announced, to save its available power for nonindustrial consumers.

The approaching crisis in the Nation's great steel center was disclosed even as President Truman stuck to his guns and again expressed his oft-stated belief that there is no national emergency on account of the coal industry management-labor dispute.

Latest word on the President's attitude came from Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), followed a White House visit in which he told Mr. Truman that an "emergency" exists in New England because of a coal shortage.

Meanwhile, 80,000 United Mine Workers stayed away from their pits—principally those run by the big steel mills and by the gigantic Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co.—for a second day, despite a "suggestion" by John L. Lewis last week that they return to their jobs on a three-day basis.

Union sources scoffed at reports that the striking miners were "defying" what was tantamount to an order by Lewis for them to get back to work. A union spokesman pointed out that only recently Lewis had publicly proclaimed the restlessness of his miners in face of the operators' opposition to a new "improved" work contract, and that if John L. had actually wanted to order the men back to the pits, he would have done so.

Mine Picket Killed At Road Blockade

Cadiz, Ohio, Jan. 17 (AP).—A coal mine picket standing behind a road blockade on State Route 331 a half-mile west of Flushing, Ohio, was killed instantly today when a coal truck attempted to run the blockade, the State Highway Patrol reported.

The patrol station at Bridgeport, Ohio, identified the victim as Silvio Dalpiaz, 53, of Lafferty, Ohio. It said Dalpiaz was standing with 5 to 10 other miners who were stopping all coal trucks.

The patrol said the truck belonged to the Nucci Brothers mine at nearby Holloway and identified the driver as Lawrence Franks of Piedmont, Ohio.

Democrats Fight Critics On Far East

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Senate Democrats decided at a party caucus yesterday to fight back against those Republicans who have been hammering the Administration for its Formosa and China policies.

Although no vote was taken, Majority Leader Scott Lucas (D., Ill.) said the Democrats were "practically united" in supporting President Truman's stand against military aid, advice or other "involvement" over Formosa.

The only exception, Lucas told reporters, was Senator Allen J. Ellender (La.), who said he had "some doubts" about what the Administration was doing over the Formosa problem.

May Be Election Issue

Some who attended the meeting said afterwards, although they declined to be quoted by name, that they foresaw Formosa becoming an issue in the coming congressional election, and were determined not to let a single Republican attack go unanswered from now on.

The effects of the caucus were promptly apparent on the Senate floor, where a few Republicans led by Senator Homer Ferguson (Mich.) kept up a running fire of now-familiar attacks on the Administration over China.

Instead of having the floor almost to themselves, as they have during many of the recent debates on China, the Republican critics found a few leading Democrats on hand to challenge them. Senator Brien MacMahon (D., Conn.), a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, was on his feet repeatedly during the afternoon, and Lucas himself jumped into the fray for the Administration.

Counterattack on Taft

Lucas aimed his counterattack chiefly at Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), who had demanded last week that the United States Navy be used to block a possible Communist landing on Formosa.

"We didn't destroy the bipartisan foreign policy," Lucas declared, mentioning the Democratic caucus. "I'm stronger for the bipartisan foreign policy than I've ever been."

Taft was not on the floor at the time, but Lucas waved his arm angrily at Senators Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and William F. Knowland (R., Calif.), who had been echoing much of what Taft had said.

"The senior Senator from Ohio (Taft) has been attempting to destroy the bipartisan foreign policy for years," Lucas exclaimed, "and he just about persuaded some of you fellows to go along."

Senate minority leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) complained that President Truman had not informed or consulted the Senate before taking his stand on Formosa on January 5, and expressed doubts whether there could be a bipartisan foreign policy under such conditions.

But none of the Republican leaders on foreign policy answered Lucas or took part in the

Truman Promises to Press Congress Battle for FEPC

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday described as "a blow that is serious and backward-looking" the action by the House Rules Committee last week to repeal the 21-day discharge rule.

"I am doing everything possible," Mr. Truman asserted, "to have that motion beaten when it comes up for consideration on the floor of the House." He made the statement at the White House to a delegation from the National Emergency Civil Rights Mobilization, in session here.

Repeal of the 21-day rule could prevent an FEPC bill—prime interest of the Mobilization—from reaching the House floor. The delegation, headed by Acting Secretary Roy Wilkins of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, urged Mr. Truman to ask Representative John Lesinski (D., Mich.) to call up the FEPC bill Monday, and request House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) to recognize him. Lesinski is chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, which prepared the bill.

Wilkins, general chairman of the Mobilization, also asked Mr. Truman to appeal directly to "Ad-

Quick House Vote on Rule Change Goal Of Coalition

Chmn. Sabath Loses Committee Test, 7-2; Cox May Get Floor To Call up Proposal

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A House Rules Committee coalition, in its second surprise maneuver in a week, yesterday moved for "quickie" House action on a sweeping rules change restoring to the 12-man unit all of its old pigeonholing powers.

Rules Chairman Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill) promptly protested that the action was "invalid" but the coalition, voting 7 to 2 to take control of the measure away from Sabath, said it was strictly following the rule book.

Last night there were strong indications that Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) may validate that 7-to-2 vote if Representative Eugene Cox (D., Ga.) moves in the next day or two to call up the rules change in the House.

Claims Seven Days

Bucking the coalition, but outnumbered on his own committee, Sabath yesterday reported the rules change to the House, but claimed he had seven legislative days in which to call it up.

That would permit the present 21-day discharge rule to stand until after next Monday, when House Labor Chairman John Lesinski (D., Mich.) has served notice he will move to put the House on record on the FEPC civil rights issue.

In the floor melee that ensued, Cox accused Sabath of breaking an agreement to call up the rule himself and virtually put the House on notice that he (Cox) will seek recognition later this week to call up the rule.

If the House votes before Monday to repeal the year-old 21-day discharge rule, there will be no opportunity to call up the pigeonholed FEPC bill, or any other committee-blocked "Fair Deal" measure, on Monday. In the future it would take 218 members' signatures on a petition to discharge the again-powerful Rules group.

Rayburn Remains Silent

Speaker Rayburn last night declined to say flatly whether he would recognize Cox to call up the coalition rule switch, but he put out a couple of hints.

Asked if Chairman Sabath would have "control" over the resolution repealing the present discharge rule, during the next seven legislative days, Rayburn replied: "That might be subject to question."

Rayburn mentioned the "possi-

Bigger ROTC Asked to Train 30,000 Men

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Department of Defense will ask Congress shortly for authority to subsidize or partially subsidize college educations for thousands of young men under an expanded ROTC program.

Secretary Louis Johnson briefly mentioned the plan in a report to Congress yesterday, saying it was designed to meet "a serious shortage" of junior reserve officers in the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Other officials later expanded on his statement, and estimated that between 20,000 and 30,000 youths may receive from a substantial part to total expenses during their four years in college under the plan. They would have to agree to serve a fixed number of years in active or reserve ranks of the armed forces after graduation.

Johnson informed the House Armed Services Committee in a quarterly report on reserve activities that the civilian components policy board at the Pentagon has recommended that "primary importance be given to the passage" of the bill. He indicated it would be sent to Capitol Hill soon.

The measure, it was said, would apply the Navy's so-called "Holloway Plan" to the Army and Air Force. Under this, 2000 selected students enroll as reserve mid-

Lodge Reveals Spectacular New Weapons

By the United Press

The Senate Armed Services Committee has been informed this country possesses spectacular new weapons, including self-aiming anti-aircraft guns, capable of creating an almost impenetrable defense against supersonic planes.

The information was sent to his colleagues by Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.), a World War II combat officer and now a member of the Army Reserve.

Lodge, on a recent tour of duty at the Fort Bliss, Tex., anti-aircraft and guided missiles center, said guided missile developments would make future operations like the Normandy invasion impossible. He underscored the necessity of doing "everything we can" to hold western Europe because it might be impossible to wrest it back from an occupying enemy.

He said there is a "strong feeling" in military circles that Russia is lagging behind the United States in guided missiles but there is no "precise, factual basis for this feeling."

He did not maintain that the Nation is absolutely secure against air attack but he said it is difficult to see how one could succeed where the new weapons are available.

He said the Army's new anti-aircraft weapons can detect planes flying 1000 miles an hour at 80,000 feet while they still are 175 miles away, giving defending forces a full 10-minute warning to ready

Several Days May Be Needed To Free Mighty Mo

The Navy said last night that it may be several days before the 45,000-ton battleship Missouri is freed from the mudbank near Norfolk where she went aground yesterday morning.

Atlantic Fleet Headquarters told The Washington Post by telephone that despite the expected delay, the "Mighty Mo" is in no danger at all.

Officials were not optimistic of the prospects of floating the big battlewagon before her fuel oil is pumped out and several thousand tons of ammunition is unloaded.

The huge "surrender ship"—only battleship in active service—went hard aground just before 9 a. m. yesterday in Hampton Roads, en route to Guantanamo, Cuba.

U. S. Officers Seize Building Formerly Used by Russians

Berlin, Jan. 17 (U.P.).—Two American Army officers and 50 West Berlin police tonight seized a U. S. sector building formerly used as operating headquarters for the Soviet-zone railway. Russian authorities immediately protested.

U. S. officials said they took over the structure because it contained 600 offices that had not been used since the Berlin rail strike early last summer.

It still contains the railroad's main telephone switchboard, but the Americans said the switchboard still was being operated

Heavy Gain In Population Seen for Area

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The Washington Metropolitan Area will have a population of approximately 1,500,000 when heads are counted this April, Philip M. Hauser, acting director of the 1950 census, predicted yesterday.

The 1940 figure was 968,000 for the same area—the District, Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties in Maryland, Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax Counties in Virginia.

The gain, almost 65 percent, will raise the Washington area's standing among the Nation's metropolitan areas from 12th place in 1940 to 10th place in 1950, passing both Baltimore and Cleveland, Hauser estimated. There is a chance, though Hauser called it slight, the area may also pass San Francisco or St. Louis, or even both, to rank as high as eighth.

Hauser told an Advertising Club luncheon at the Hotel Statler about his population estimate. He explained about the relative ranks of cities to The Washington Post later in the day.

He said that the new "standard metropolitan area figures to be used for the first time in 1950 will prove a more realistic measurement of market areas than has ever been available before.

Census has gone back to 1940 figures and figured out what the metropolitan area figures would have been had the 1950 concept been used. The first 12 areas were, in this order: New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Detroit, Boston, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, San

Blaze Sweeps Camp Carson; 1 Dead, 27 Hurt

Colorado Springs, Colo., Jan. 17 (AP).—A wind-whipped brush fire flashed across the Army's Camp Carson today, killing one soldier, seriously burning 27 others and destroying 39 buildings.

The flames, fought throughout the day by 7000 civilian volunteers and soldiers, were reported under control tonight on a line a half mile north of Fountain, a town of 300 about 10 miles south of here.

Most of the destroyed buildings were in the warehouse area of the vast reservation, which housed 30,000 troops in wartime.

A public information officer, in announcing the casualty list, said the flames were under control within the camp.

Winds, which had ripped up to 75 miles an hour today, died down tonight. A breeze of about five miles an hour was fanning the fire but was blowing northward. That would send the fire back across the burned area and should cause it to soon die out.

The soldier, whose name was withheld, was fatally burned fighting the fire. Six of the burned soldiers were reported on the "danger" list.

Fifth Army headquarters at Chicago reported 39 buildings were gutted by the fire. Fire Chief Fred Lausch said a number of mountain cabins and summer homes in the foothills section southwest of Colorado Springs were destroyed. The fire started early this morning and swept into Camp Carson after threatening palatial residences in the swank

Senate Kills Shipment Bar to Yellow Product

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Oleomargarine, both white and colored, moved a long step closer to tax-free competition with butter yesterday.

Supporters of a bill to repeal the restrictive taxes and license fees with which margarine has been burdened for 64 years, beat down by a 48-to-37 Senate vote, an amendment by the butter forces to bar yellow margarine from interstate commerce.

This substitute amendment would also have repealed all taxes, but would have kept colored oleo out of 13 States and the District of Columbia, which have no plants where yellow margarine could be produced.

The vote followed sectional and party lines. The substitute was supported by 27 Republicans and 10 Democrats. Against it were 37 Democrats and 11 Republicans. All the Democrats for the substitute were from Northern dairying States except Senator Elmer Thomas (Okla.).

Senators from States near Washington—Byrd and Robertson of Virginia, Tydings and O'Conor of Maryland, Kilgore and Neely of West Virginia, and Frear and Williams of Delaware, voted for equal rights for margarine. All but Williams are Democrats.

Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.), a butter supporter, immediately offered a new amendment. This would tie an anti-

House Group Supports Compromise Measure

President Truman's Point Four program for helping backward areas was back on the bipartisan track in the House yesterday.

Democratic and Republican members of the Foreign Affairs Committee agreed on a compromise bill, with prospects that the committee would report it unanimously for early action on the floor.

The new bill is the product of long consultations among State Department officials, committee members of both parties, and leaders of national business organizations. As introduced yesterday by Chairman John Kee (D., W. Va.), it contains a far-reaching statement of congressional policy governing the investment of capital in underdeveloped areas.

The bill says there must be confidence of "fair and reasonable treatment" among the foreign investors and the people whose territory is being developed.

"This," says the bill, "involves confidence on the part of the underdeveloped areas that investors will conserve as well as develop local resources, will bear a fair share of local taxes and observe local laws and will provide adequate wages and working conditions for local labor.

"It involves confidence on the part of investors, through intergovernmental agreements or otherwise, that they will not be deprived of their property without prompt, adequate and effective compensation; that they will be

The Government is going to start at once to buy pork and give away potatoes, the Agriculture Department said last night.

It is going to buy bacon, smoked hams and smoked picnic shoulders to keep hog prices from collapsing.

At the same time, it is starting a give-away program with the thousands of bushels of potatoes it has bought to keep potato prices high.

The potatoes will be given to the school lunch program, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, public and private welfare agencies in this country, and last, but not least, welfare agencies such as CARE

The Government's pork-buying program is the first effort to support hog prices by meat purchases. Hog prices yesterday reached the price support level, $14.90 per 100 pounds, at the Chicago Stockyards

Reluctant Witness Says He Bet Daily

A young mechanic yesterday testified he "bet the numbers" daily for a year with indicted gambler Attilio Acalotti. He refused to give the same testimony Monday on grounds of self-incrimination.

Bernard Bill King, 16 Anacostia rd. se., in a surprise re-appearance before a District Court jury, said that he "only played one number; that was 144."

But he said he bet "half a dollar every day" on that number with Acalotti.

Acalotti, newsvendor and self-styled "Mayor of Thomas Circle," William "Snags" Lewis, alleged king of a $14,000,000-a-year gambling syndicate, and Frank Billeci, a Washington Times-Herald circulation man, are standing trial on charges of operating a numbers lottery.

Truman to Attend Funeral

Gen. Arnold to Lie in State For Two Days at Cathedral

The body of Gen. Henry H. Arnold will lie in state in the Washington National Cathedral today and Thursday morning before funeral services in Arlington.

The plane bearing the body of the wartime Air Force Chief, who died in Sonoma, Calif., Sunday, is due to arrive here early today. The body will be taken to the Cathedral, where it may be viewed by the public from 1 to 10 p. m. today and from 8 to 11 a. m. Thursday.

The public has been requested to use the south entrance of the Bethlehem Chapel to pass through the Chapel of St. Joseph of Arimathea, where the body will lie.

President Truman and military leaders will attend the final rites for the air leader at the Arlington Amphitheater at 3 p.m. Thursday. The funeral procession will leave 15th st. and Constitution ave. at 1:45 p.m.

General Arnold's widow, who with other members of the family is to fly to Washington aboard the President's plane, the Independence, is expected to arrive in the Capital this morning in time to attend an 8 o'clock mass.

Yesterday, General Arnold's body lay in state in Sonoma. Public memorial services were held in the mortuary chapel at noon, after which the body was taken to nearby Hamilton Field for the Washington flight.

General Arnold, who had been in delicate health since 1944, when he suffered a heart attack, died of his heart illness on his ranch in the Valley of the Moon last Sunday.

GM Profits Exceeded Half Billion in 1949

$67.7 Billions

Record is Set By Working Capital Total

The working capital of United States corporations stood at the record level of 67.7 billion dollars as of last September 30, the Securities and Exchange Commission reported yesterday.

This is the highest amount in history following a rising trend for many years.

During the third quarter of 1949, the SEC report showed, American businesses added 1.1 billion dollars to working capital and at the same time invested 3.8 billions in new plant and equipment.

But to finance this capital expansion of almost five billion dollars they needed to obtain only 600 million from external sources—half in long-term borrowing, half from the sale of new stock issues. The rest came from their own internal sources.

The rise in working capital was principally accounted for by declines in inventories during the 1949 business downswing.

Federal economists interpreted the record level of working capital as indicating the strong financial position of American corporations. But most of them believed that as business began to build up inventories it would draw down on the amount of working capital.

New York, Jan. 17 (U.P.)—The General Motors Corp. earned more than half a billion dollars in 1949, the biggest profit for one year of any business in history, Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of the board, disclosed today.

Sloan said the automobile company netted profits which are "likely to move up over" 600 million dollars compared with a net income of 440 million dollars last year. He also said that General Motors plans to increase production in all divisions this year.

Sloan addressed a luncheon of 500 industry, finance and civil leaders at the opening of the company's annual motor show. Another speaker was Charles E. Wilson, president of GM, who predicted that 1950 would be a "very prosperous year."

"I see no reason," Wilson added, "why the next 10 years should not also be increasingly prosperous."

Governing Factors

Wilson conditioned his long-range forecast, however, on the maintenance of world peace; a sound method of solving industry-labor controversies; progress toward reducing the national debt and balancing the budget; and achievement of social and economic progress through evolution.

Sloan said that 1949 earnings were tremendous but added that they were accomplished through gigantic sales and were cut sharply by taxes.

"If we compare 1949 with 1936," he said, "we find that the return on capital employed rose only three percentage points. And to accomplish this we had to increase our sales in terms of 1949 dollars from $2,500,000,000 for 1936 to $5,500,000,000 in 1949."

The profits for the year earned more than $13 per share on GM common stock, it was disclosed. The company paid stockholders about $8 per share in dividends and will reinvest the remainder in expansion of production.

Agencies Plan To End Buying Competition

By the United Press

The Defense Department and the General Services Administration yesterday promised President Truman to do all they can to wipe out competition between military and nonmilitary agencies in buying supplies.

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, General Services Administrator Jess Larson and Budget Director Frank Pace, jr., said the supply systems will be "coordinated" to prevent "artificial scarcities and inflationary prices."

They said the General Services Administration, the Government's "housekeeping" agency, will buy certain military items in both peace and war. They promised to set up on all items what they called "areas of understanding."

Bill Calls for Excise Tax on Oil Imports

Representative Ed Gossett (D., Tex.) yesterday introduced a bill which would levy a dollar-per-barrel excise tax on petroleum imports.

He said a heavy tax is necessary to the survival of independent oil producers who are "being forced out of business" by imports. The imports are "relatively tax-free," he added.

VFW, Amvets Urge Bonus For World War II Veterans

By The Associated Press

Two veterans' organizations yesterday urged Congress to grant a bonus to World War II veterans.

Commanders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Amvets made their pleas at a House Veterans Affairs Committee hearing on a veterans' legislative program for 1950.

Commanders of the American Legion and the Disabled American Veterans also appeared, but made no recommendations on the bonus issue.

Steps Denounced

However, all four of the groups, claiming a membership of five million, joined in denouncing:

1. Proposals by the Hoover Commission to strip the Veterans' Administration of some of its major functions. The commanders said in a joint statement that such a move would be "unjust and ill-advised."

2. President Truman's order freezing a 237-million-dollar congressional authorization for expansion of VA hospitals. They termed it a "poorly advised" step.

A bill now before the Veterans' Committee provided for a bonus—known as adjusted service compensation— at the rate of $3 a day for military service at home and $4 a day for service performed overseas.

Informals estimates of the cost run all the way from 20 billion dollars to 50 billion dollars.

The Administration wants bigger Social Security payments made available to more persons—in fact, to "practically all" the nation's 60 million workers, Congress was told yesterday.

They now cover about 35 million.

The enlarged program was outlined before the Senate Finance Committee yesterday by Arthur J. Altmeyer, Social Security commissioner. Altmeyer, whose testimony was cut short by early convening of the Senate, will return today to complete it. The hearings are expected to require several months.

Altmeyer's program goes much farther than the bill already approved by the House. Changes that Altmeyer suggested came under three headings:

1. Coverage extension. "Still broader coverage can and should be provided," Altmeyer said.

Significant in Farm Areas

"If the program covered practically all gainfully employed persons," he said, "it would carry a much greater part of the cost of providing for the aged, the disabled, and the dependent survivors of deceased breadwinners. This would be particularly significant in agricultural areas, where, because of limited coverage of old age insurance, these costs must be met largely by public assistance financed from general tax funds."

Altmeyer pointed out that farm operators are the largest group outside of old age insurance. "If they were covered," he said, "farmers would be able to draw benefits when they retired, even though they still owned their farms.

"Coverage is likewise desirable for hired agricultural workers," Altmeyer added. "These workers are among the neediest of our economic groups and lack the protection of practically all the social legislation applicable to most other workers."

Wants All Domestics Covered

Altmeyer also would cover all domestic workers with insurance. Under the House bill only 800,000—those employed by the same person on 26 days every three months—would be covered. "Without causing administrative difficulties for housewives or the Government," Altmeyer said, "this could be modified." He said those who could be benefitted are day workers, who work for "the same employers from week to week, but for each employer on only one day a week." This includes an additional 900,000.

He also would cover "certain professional persons."

2. The wage base. Taxes are now 1½ percent on the first $3000 of an employe's wages. The House bill would increase this to $3600. Altmeyer recommended it be raised to $4800.

"In 1939," he said, "97 percent of all workers covered by the law earned less than $3000 a year." Now, however, a wage base of $4500 would cover only 95 percent of the workers now in the system.

3. Benefit formula. At present monthly benefits are calculated by taking 40 percent of the first $50 of average monthly wages, and adding 10 percent of the remainder.

Would Change House Bill

The House bill would increase this to 50 percent of the first $100, plus 10 percent of the remainder. Altmeyer would change the House bill to half the first $100, plus 15 percent of the remainder of the average monthly wages.

The House bill, Altmeyer pointed out, would benefit those who come on the rolls just after the law becomes effective more than the three million now getting benefits.

4. Increase in benefits for each year of coverage. Under the present law, basic benefits are increased 1 percent for each year of coverage. The new House bill would reduce this to ½ of 1 percent. Altmeyer recommended retaining the present increases.

5. Liberalized eligibility requirements. At present, the great mass of older workers newly covered could not qualify for old-age benefits until they had contributed for at least five years. Altmeyer recommended "somewhat less restrictive requirements."

Benefits For Disabled

6. Permanent and total disability: At present insured workers who become permanently and totally disabled before reaching retirement age receive no benefits, and in many cases lose their insured status before reaching retirement age. Altmeyer would provide benefits for the dependents of such workers as they are provided for dependents of workers who retire.

7. Public assistance to needy individuals. Altmeyer would strengthen the assistance program to meet the needs until the social insurance system is expanded and liberalized to cover all occupations.

He would increase grants-in-aid for persons permanently and totally disabled, payments directly to persons supplying needy persons with medical services, permit payments to some inmates of certain public medical institutions, liberalize payments to the blind, and make some changes in the degrees of State participation.

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that 3,500,000 Americans over 65 years old have no cash income at all. This group makes up nearly one third of the 11 million persons in that age group, not counting inmates of institutions. The bureau said the remaining 7,500,000 had a median cash income of $808—that is, half of the 7,500,000 had less than $808 income and half had more.

4 Pct. Interest Urged on All U.S.-Insured Housing Plans

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Chairman John Sparkman (D., Ala.), generally regarded as an Administration spokesman on housing issues, yesterday proposed that the top interest rate on all Government-insured housing mortgages be cut to four percent.

Most of the housing loan repayments now guaranteed by the Federal Housing Administration are at the basic rate of four and one-half percent.

Housing officials said such an interest cutback would mean that, on a $10,000 mortgage, payments would be trimmed $50 a year, or about $4 a month. Over a period of years this could mean $2000 more home with the same monthly payments.

Sparkman said Raymond Foley, top Administration housing official, had agreed to consider this.

GI Loans Are 4 Percent

GI loans and large rental programs under temporary FHA programs carry the lower 4 percent rate.

Sparkman's suggestion was made at a hearing of the Senate Banking subcommittee on housing on President Truman's proposed program of Government backed loans to help middle-income families build homes by means of cooperative Jacob Javits (D., N. Y.), indorspraised and attacked. Representative Jacob Javits (D., N. Y.), indorsing the program, called attention to the fact it was "pioneered" last year by 10 Republicans in the House. Sparkman agreed that three GOP senators had aided in developing the program.

$8000 Units Seen Possible

Richard J. Gray, president of the building and construction trades department, AFL, estimated it should be possible to build units at an average cost of $8000, most of them multi-unit developments. He said a four-and-one-half room unit should rent or sell for about $55 to $65 a month as against $80 to $100 for comparable units under present FHA projects.

Lower costs, Gray estimated, would result from fewer vacancies, tenant maintenance and lower financing costs.

Premium on Group Housing

"In effect," said Lockwood, "Government would be putting the highest premium on the group housing idea. It would set up a privileged group of families, estimated by the sponsors as 250,000 out of eight million families of similar income who would receive special benefits to the remaining 7,750,000 families."

Lockwood maintained middle-income families are already being served by private industry with and without the assistance of FHA and VA, He said.

The Government's own figures show families in the middle-income brackets can and are buying new as well as used homes on today's market.

On the House side, Chairman Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.) disclosed his special House committee investigating lobbying has been studying the records of seven real estate and housing groups. All, he declared, have been cooperative and it was not necessary to subpena their records. He said some "irregularities" but not flagrant abuses of the law had been found.

Driscoll Calls for Less 'Government by Crisis'

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 17 (U.P.)—Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll, mentioned as a possible Republican presidential candidate in 1952, said today in an inaugural address that this nation must have less "Government by crisis."

Driscoll, who was reelected in the only important Republican victory in last November's election, became the first Governor of New Jersey since 1844 to succeed himself. A more than century-old ban on succession was lifted in 1947 by a new State constitution which also extended the Governor's term from three to four years.

Full House At Sing Sing

Sing Sing Prison, N. Y., Jan. 17 (NYHT)—The Big House faced a housing crisis today, as Warden William E. Snyder reported 1818 tenants, just four short of cell capacity. Prospective applicants are assured suitable accommodations will be provided elsewhere if necessary.

France Ousts 2 Generals In Scandal

Paris, Jan. 17 (U.P.)—Premier George Bidault reported today that two trusted French generals were relieved of their jobs last December for giving a secret report on Indo-China to a former enemy agent.

Bidault identified the two men as Gen. Georges Revers, Army chief of staff (not chief of the general staff), and Gen. Charles Mast, director of the institute of higher studies of national defense.

Both men, Bidault told the National Assembly, were maneuvering to get the post of French high commissioner in Indo-China for Mast.

"My heart is anguished by this information," Bidault said as he revealed one by one the details of the scandal.

Revers and Mast were relieved of their posts and placed on the retired list December 7.

When Bidault had concluded his report today, the deputies voted 424 to 181 to set up a special commission of inquiry.

Bidault told the assembly that copies of a confidential report by Revers on Indo-China, were found on an Indo-Chinese arrested here last September.

He said more mimeographed copies were discovered during subsequent police searches of the Paris homes of other Indo-Chinese.

The premier said the Surete Nationale at once began an investigation and, under questioning, the Indo-Chinese said they had been given the document by a certain Roger Peyre.

Surete Nationale inspectors seized the account books of the Paris representative of the newly established state of Viet Nam in Indo-China, Bidault said.

NYHT News Service

The United States was on record last night as having approved a move by the Council of Europe to extend associate membership to the Saar.

This action was clear indication the United States will oppose the return to Germany of the rich Saar basin, which has been incorporated into the economy of France.

Following reports from London that the United States, Britain and France had reached a "secret agreement or understanding" on detaching the Saar from Germany, the State Department disclosed that Secretary of State Acheson had raised no objection when French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman announced the council's "tentative decision" at the foreign ministers' meeting in Paris last November.

Acheson informed Schuman he did not object to giving the Saar an associate membership on the Council of Europe. State Department Press Officer Michael J. McDermott said Acheson did this "on the understanding that such action not prejudice the final decision with respect to the Saar at the peace settlement."

The agreement on the Saar was not mentioned in the official communique issued at the end of the conference. However, the State Department denied yesterday that Acheson had involved the United States in a secret agreement on the Saar.

Even before this agreement the United States seemed firmly committed against restoring the Saar to Germany. In his famous Stuttgart speech in 1946, James F. Byrnes, then Secretary of State, made it clear the United States looked with favor on French acquisition of the Saarland but strongly disapproved the absorption of Germany's eastern provinces by Poland.

And in recent weeks the State Department raised no objection to French proposals to lease Saarland coal mines for 50 years.

Paasikivi Has Big Lead In Finn Voting

Helsinki, Finland, Jan. 17 (U.P.)—President Juho K. Paasikivi, who has been denounced by the Soviet press as an arch-reactionary and an American tool, forged far ahead in early official returns in Finland's election.

At midnight with 1,324,130 votes counted, the results were: Paasikivi, 765,535 or 57.8 percent; Urho K. Kekkonen, Agrarian, 272,064 or 20.5 percent, and Mauno Pekkala, the Communist candidate, 286,531 or 21.6 percent.

Election officials stressed that only about 1,500,000 of the nation's 2,500,000 eligible voters braved the Arctic cold, which saw the temperature drop to 22 below zero in northern Lapland, and first results may not give "a reliable picture of the final outcome."

Yugoslavs Relax Control Of Industries

Belgrade, Jan. 17 (AP).—Yugoslavia, apparently in search of greater efficiency, has begun relaxing government controls of some of her key industries.

Premier Marshal Tito's government, ever since the war's end, has been building up a firm central government control over much of the country's industry. Now it is beginning to relax these controls, and the move has much more than local significance.

It reflects Tito's confidence in Yugoslav unity in the face of attacks from the Soviet Union and the Cominform and the economic pressure they have brought against Yugoslavia.

In fact, Tito, by relaxing such controls, would be compounding what the Soviet Union and the Cominform regard as one of his felonies — failure to accomplish total centralization with full speed.

Platform Given

Nationalizing To Continue If Labor Wins

London, Jan. 17 (U.P.)—Britain's ruling Labor Party announced tonight that if returned to power in the February 23 general election, it will nationalize sugar and cement, meat, fruit and vegetable wholesaling, water supplies and "all suitable minerals."

Private enterprise in other fields will be encouraged, the Laborite platform promised, but the government will establish state-owned concerns to compete with any privately owned firms failing "to meet the public interest."

Labor promised that the housing program, which has provided "one million new homes" since war's end, will continue "until every family has its own separate home and every slum is gone."

The national health program and other social welfare schemes will be continued if labor is returned to power.

Lodge Reveals New Weapons

their antiaircraft guns and get interceptors into the air.

As a defense against surprise attack by low-flying bombers, he said, the Army has a new "sky-sweeper" gun which literally makes the skies untenable.

Taken together, he concluded, the equipment "satisfies one that no enemy plane will ever come out of this network alive."

He also revealed that infantry divisions soon will be equipped with new twin 44-millimeter anti-aircraft guns mounted on a tank chassis as an added protection against enemy planes.

"There is no indication here to commit the classic military error of 'fighting the last war'," Lodge said in summation. "Everything at Fort Bliss points sharply and rapidly to the future."

He opposed suggestions for moving industrial plants inland from the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards as a precaution against air attack. In some instances, he said, inland locations would be even more vulnerable to air attack launched across the North Pole.

"The range of modern weapons is so great that points inland are just as exposed as coastal areas," he said. He added that the best protection is dispersal of industrial plants.

Germans Held By Reds Put At 400,000 by U.S.

Berlin, Jan. 7 (U.P.)—American authorities tonight accused Russia of secretly holding 400,000 German prisoners of war as slave laborers in violation of written international promises.

Communist leaders warned that Eastern Germany would continue to crack down vigorously on alleged Western "agents" despite a Soviet decision to liquidate three big internment camps in the Eastern zone.

Gerhard Eisler, former top American Communist and now propaganda chief for the Communist East German regime, said that "Anglo-American agents whose plans have been worked out in Washington" would be prosecuted as before.

The American charge refuted recent Communist accustaions that the United States and France had hidden or destroyed war records that would show hundreds of thousands of German soldiers regarded as prisoners in Russia were actually dead.

"A slave labor pool of 400,000 German prisoners of war is being secretly retained in Soviet Russia in violation of written international pledges, according to a careful study made by Berlin welfare and refugee authorities," the United States announcement said.

The statement said the Russians had broken their promise under a four-power agreement to return all German prisoners by December 31, 1948.

WASHINGTON

A Tale of Three Cities

by WALTER WINCHELL

The editors of Holiday sent an advance copy of the February issue, featuring Washington, D. C., to Walter Winchell. After reading it, the famous columnist wrote the article below. At his suggestion, a contribution was sent to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund, as Mr. Winchell refused to accept any payment for his comments.

All solid objects including cities have three dimensions, except Washington, D. C., which has four. The extra one is in time. Washington, D. C., is a city located in the middle of 20th Century history at the exact center of its political forces. Nothing in the 20th Century world can be done without a calculation of its effect on Washington; and very few things are done in Washington without careful appraisal of the effect on the rest of the world. Washington is really three cities: Washington the world capital; Washington the capital of the United States; and Washington the city of nearly a million people solely engaged in the serious business of government and who, ironically, have no vote.

This, in itself, is unusual, but not for Washington. Washington as the Queen city of the complex 20th Century is also the King city of all of its paradoxes. Among the first is its politics. In Washington, politics is the fascinating way of life for the lucky unlucky few. They are lucky in that their slightest whim is reflected in the lives of millions of people, and that fame and glory necessarily attach to persons who wield that much power. They are unlucky in that the price of making history is to be broken by it. The higher the pinnacle, the greater the blast and the less the shelter. The ascent is incredibly difficult and the descent impossibly dangerous; but, paradoxically, the lure is irresistible. For every broken man carried down the slope there are a hundred pressing upward under the magnificent illusion that Fate deals in Names and not in numbers.

"Attention, Mr. & Mrs. America! A star-spangled orchid to Holiday Mag for its magnificent Feb. issue on Washington, D. C. It covers all sides of our nation's capital — including the inside. And the illustrations hit a new peak in colorful reporting. It's a MUST READ. Better get your copy now. It's bound to be a collector's item!"
W. W.

Washington, primarily, is the capital of the United States of America—a fact which is more often overlooked than not. Washington's politics is to the United States Government what a steering wheel is to an automobile. It gives direction, but the power and the strength are below in the engine. The Engine of Government carries on 99% of the work through anonymous assistants — the Government People — mostly career people—who know and live with the job below the whirlpool of politics. This is merely saying the obvious: that for every Postmaster General there are tens of thousands of postmen who deliver the mail; for every Surgeon General there are thousands of nurses caring for the sick; and for every Conservation Commissioner there are hundreds of fire wardens patrolling the forest trails.

Thus, paradoxically again, Washington, the seat of government, is only the headquarters of the work. Washington is present in every county in the United States and in every country abroad through its field men. Washington, in the real sense, is everywhere. Indeed, it is a 20th Century miracle that you can summon Washington to your doorstep with a three-cent stamp. Practically all of the experience of civilized man is at your beck and call upon inquiry to the United States Information Service. It will tell you anything and everything, from how to feed the baby to how to kill a Japanese beetle. Indeed, if their only Signature for the Ages were the Library of Congress, it alone would establish the timeless greatness of the American People.

But it is the far-flung Washington field men who are the immediate and effective Government of the United States. Washington radiates government authority and the delegation of power starts with the push buttons on the Secretary's desk. It is axiomatic to those who know Washington that the Secretary's secretaries run the Department; but it is also axiomatic that it is the man in the field who finds the facts which control the decisions of the secretaries. The capillaries, paradoxically, control the action of the heart!

Washington's work is all-pervasive almost beyond the belief of the average citizen. There is no function of our national existence—from the lonely blinking lights off the Florida keys to the signal towers of the Alaska railroad—whose operations are not the responsibility of some unknown but very responsible person in the nation's capital. Tens of thousands of faithful, anonymous people give the Civil Services the same selfless devotion that the Flag receives from the Armed ones. Their work varies all the way from testing steel to producing antidotes for snake venom. Their heartbreaking role is that their effectiveness is taken for granted. They are noticed only when and if their Service fails to function.

Government People, as distinguished from the politicians, also are part of the Washington paradox. Battle fleets are commanded by underpaid admirals who wait in line for the street car; billions are expended by men who return home at night to worry about sending their children to college on a salary of $8,000 a year, Yet, few would leave willingly the bleak bridge of the Ship of State for the comparatively comfortable quarters—and minor importance—of private business.

American Government is a study in reflex. Washington has a great effect on the nation but not nearly the effect that the nation has on Washington. Washington governs America—but America governs Washington.

Washington as a city is famous for its physical beauty. But the historians, probably more than the architects, will record its broad approaches, great avenues, grand vistas and magnificent perspectives; because no less than that describes their mighty capital at Washington, D. C., it also describes—the Mind, the Spirit and the Heart of the American People.

ENTIRE ISSUE ON WASHINGTON!

Gorgeously illustrated with 170 photographs, drawings, paintings, including a spectacular aerial photo-map . . . ten exciting features covering every phase of the Capital . . . brilliant writers such as Joel Sayre, Jonathan Daniels, Milton MacKaye, Max Lerner, A. J. Liebling and John Horne Burns!

Recognition For Bao Dai Is Agreed On

The British Commonwealth nations, except for India, are ready to recognize the semi-independent regime, under former Emperor Bao Dai, sponsored by the French in Indo-China.

This was reported to the State Department by Ambassador Joseph C. Satterthwaite in Ceylon at the end of the recent meeting of Commonwealth foreign ministers in Colombo.

The signal for recognition, he reported, will be the French Parliament's ratification of the agreement signed last year with Bao Dai. The United States is also veering toward early recognition, after long hesitancy, as one way to strengthen southeast Asia against the spread of communism.

The Colombo conference also took the following steps, the Ambassador reported:

1. It decided to grant a sterling loan of 7,500,000 pounds (about 21 million dollars) to Burma, to enable that strife-torn country to restore order and resume its old place as one of Asia's greatest rice-growing areas.

2. It set up a Commonwealth group to work on a draft of a peace treaty with Japan, even though no draft has yet been completed by the United States.

3. It persuaded India and Pakistan to accept the services of Sir Henry Wilson Smith, a British Treasury official, as a kind of mediator in settling the economic war between the two countries.

4. It approved Australia's proposal for a Commonwealth plan for economic and technical help to southeast Asia. Some financial help will be sought from the United States, but only a comparatively small amount, according to the word from Ceylon.

American officials are well pleased to see Australia take the lead in this project, since Australia is not a colonial power and is not branded as "imperialistic" by the peoples of Asia.

shipmen at civilian universities each year and are supplied for four years with uniforms, tuition, books, about $500 a year retainer pay plus active duty pay on a summer cruise.

At many colleges, this amounts to complete subsidization. On graduation, they must serve for two years with the fleet and then another period of years as a drilling reservist. About half can qualify for regular commissions.

At present the Army and Air Force have only the normal ROTC programs, which pay students much smaller amounts for the junior and senior years only.

It is expected that the Army will want to train a slightly smaller number of students under the Navy's nearly complete subsidization plan, while the Air Force will enroll larger numbers of college students under a program less liberal than the Holloway plan but giving substantially more financial benefits than the present ROTC program.

Atomic Defense Hearings to Start Next Month

The Congressional Atomic Energy Committee announced yesterday it will begin hearings on February 1 on the problem of civilian defense against atomic attack.

The first two weeks of the sessions will be closed; public hearings will begin February 15.

The inquiry will attempt to determine the state of United States civil defenses against A-bomb attack, what is being done about them, and what defense steps "are advisable at this time."

The investigation was planned last fall, after the announcement that Russia had succeeded in touching off an atomic explosion.

given reasonable opportunity to remit their earnings and withdraw their capital; that they will have reasonable freedom to manage, operate and control their enterprises; that they will enjoy security in the protection of their persons and property, both industrial and intellectual, and nondiscriminatory treatment in taxation and in the conduct of their business affairs."

The new bill provides for a public advisory board of a dozen private citizens under a government official as chairman. This is a precedent originally set by the Economic Cooperation Administration.

It also calls for participation in the program by the United Nations or other international agencies, and for bilateral agreements under which the countries to be assisted would pledge productive use of the help they will receive.

Although President Truman set aside 35 million dollars in his budget for the Point Four program, the new bill contains no figure as a ceiling. Some Republicans on the committee indicated yesterday they would want such a figure, as they did in the legislation authorizing the European Recovery Program.

Assistant Secretary of State Willard Thorp, who testified on the new bill, heard one Republican after another compliment him and the State Department for agreeing to the compromise.

Senate Democrats Decide To Fight for Far East Policy

debate. Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg (Mich.) and Henry Cabot Lodge (Mass.) sauntered into the chamber, listened for a time and wandered out again without speaking.

It was evident once more that only a small wing of the Republicans was carrying on the China battle, and that even these were retreating from positions they took two or three weeks ago.

Last month, for example, Ferguson had talked in a newspaper interview as if he wanted the United States to occupy Formosa and hold it by force if necessary. Yesterday, in a three-hour speech, he called upon the United States "never" to recognize Communist China.

His speech bristled with attacks on the Yalta agreement of 1945, on Gen. George C. Marshall's mission to China after the war, and on other actions or inactions of the Administration in China. It also was full of attacks on communism in general and on Chinese communism in particular G5nsothf- HT RA AA ment of Consul General Angus Ward and the Communist seizure of American consular properties in Peiping last week.

But what it advocated for the future was a diplomatic boycott.

"If we have any hope of recapturing our moral position before it disintegrates alongside our economic and strategic position," Ferguson declared, "We must assert it by a policy of nonrecognition.

"We will have ample legal grounds for adopting such a policy," Ferguson went on, recalling President Coolidge's position on the nonrecognition of Soviet Russia and Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's policy of not recognizing Japanese conquests in Manchuria.

He conceded that recognition in international law did not connote approval of the government being recognized, but insisted that the public saw it otherwise.

Ferguson also challenged China's legal right to Formosa, arguing that the Cairo Declaration of 1943 was not a valid reason for transferring Formosa to Chinese sovereignty. He contended—and in this he won support of Senator Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.)—that only a peace treaty with Japan could settle Formosa's true and legal status.

He bitterly charged the Administration with "a serious offense against international law" in handing Formosa over to China, and with "an unpardonable violation of the Constitution of the United States" in not getting the approval of the Senate before doing so.

Ferguson accused President Truman of "making a peace treaty by a press release," referring to the President's press conference statement of Jan. 5, which reaffirmed China's possession of Formosa.

McMahon jumped up to get Ferguson firmly on record on China's title to the island.

"Does the Senator recognize Formosa as part of China?" McMahon asked.

"No," was Ferguson's answer.

"Does he know the attitude of Chiang Kai-shek on this subject?"

"I haven't any idea," Ferguson replied.

Late in the afternoon Senator William E. Jenner (R., Ind.) began a long speech before an almost empty chamber, saying the China "debacle" proved the bipartisan foreign policy to be a "gigantic hoax."

Contract Let For School in Bladensburg

A contract for construction of a new 43-classroom senior high school at Bladensburg, Md., was awarded to the lowest of six bidders last night by the Prince Georges County board of education.

The bid accepted was that of John Tester & Son, 25th st. and Naylor rd. se., and amounted to $1,220,607. The contract includes a cafeteria, library and gymnasium, but not an auditorium.

The new school will be constructed adjacent to the present vocational training unit on a 28-acre tract near Sunnybrook.

The school will accommodate 1300 students, about 1000 of whom will come from the present Bladensburg Junior-Senior High School which will become a junior high school.

The school is the last of the program for 1950 and will be financed with State aid funds. The State has contributed $7,993,800 to the entire school construction program in the county for 1950.

Other items on the program are for a new senior-junior high school near Hyattsville and Suitland, an addition to the Fairmount Heights Negro High School, and the Mount Rainier-Brentwood and Langley Park elementary schools.

A new elementary school is expected to be built in the Brandywine area from money saved through unexpected low bids on the other projects.

Cab Driver Taken for Ride, Denuded, Left in Diaper

Anybody see a naked cab driver wheeling his hack around town early yesterday?

You weren't seeing things if you did. It actually happened.

George E. Cain, 29, of 919 Massachusetts ave. ne., was the victim of two of the meanest thugs police have heard about in some time.

Cain picked up two men at Connecticut ave. and S st. nw. They ordered him to go to E. Capitol and 50th sts. When they arrived, one man pulled out a switch-blade knife and his companion produced a blue steel automatic.

The hacker handed over his wallet containing $5 and the amount of the loot set the thugs to cursing.

They forced Cain to strip down to his shoes, then made him drive around in the cold early morning air for about an hour. To make sure the driver would be uncomfortable, they turned off the heater and opened the windows. The mercury was down to 36.

"They said if I made one crooked move they would blow my brains out," Cain said later.

When Cain's cab ran out of gasoline in the 1100 block of Neal st. ne., the thugs forced Cain into the back seat, cut the cab's ignition wires and fled.

Fortunately Cain is a father and fortunately one of his baby's diapers was in the cab. It gave him less coverage than Bikini bathing trunks but it was enough. He flagged down a passing motorist who took him to the Ninth Precinct.

Police warmed Cain up with steaming coffee, then bundled him up in a blanket and took him home.

Hopes Held For Formosa

Nationalist China could hold Formosa if its present "well trained" army there were doubled and well equipped, C. M. Chen, counselor of the Chinese Tmbassy, said here last night.

Chen told the Charles Carroll Forum meeting in the Mayflower Hotel that this small army "annihilated" four Communist divisions on the mainland, just across the Formosa Strait, last October. He said his government sought no American officers and men, but only "some American technical advisers on a volunteer basis."

"We have done many wrong things in the past, to the great advantage of our enemies," said Chen. "Let us give the people of China some hope. Let us tell them they are not forgotten or written off as losses. They are a good people and we feel they are entitled to it."

William H. Collins, president of the board of directors of the forum, presided as chairman and Dr. James A. Magner, executive secretary, was moderator.

ONE of the grandest things about your Buick is the way you can ignore the season — chew your way through gravel and dust alike, splash through the wet stretches, snug and secure even on slippery pavements.

But bear this one thought in mind...

Rough road conditions call for special attention to your lubricants. Tires should be checked for correct inflation — for deep, clean tread that bites on a slick surface. Brakes won't stop you with a sure and gentle touch if the master cylinder needs more fluid, or if an air-bubble has worked itself into the line. These things, and more, should be checked to keep your Buick at its best.

If that sounds like more than one thought to bear in mind — just drive into our shop and tell the man, "LUBRICARE, please."

Our winter Lubricare treatment covers all these points — with specially trained mechanics following factory specifications as they go over your car from end to end.

Drive in this week, why don't you? The price is surprisingly low. The peace of mind is priceless.

Lynching Bill Is Opposed by Southerners

Southern House members yesterday argued against passage of a Federal anti-lynching statute largely on the ground that lynchings have so declined in number that its passage is totally unnecessary.

Several Southern Congressmen appeared before the House Judiciary subcommittee headed by Representative William Byrne (D., N. Y.) which is considering a number of anti-lynching bills.

Hearings were adjourned yesterday afternoon for one week to give other opponents a chance to submit statements for the record.

Tuskegee Institute figures on lynchings were placed in the record. They showed there were three in 1949; two in 1948; one in 1947; six in 1945 and one in 1944, a total of 13 over a five year period.

Truman Promises to Press Congress Battle for FEPC

ministration leadership in the Senate as well as the Senate as a whole to keep the FEPC bill on the floor until a vote is had." A filibuster has been threatened against the measure.

Mr. Truman said that as far as the Senate is concerned, his leaders will fight "all summer" if necessary.

Wilkins asserted that "the methods which are being employed to block the civil rights measures, if successful, will defeat also your entire Fair Deal program . . ."

Championing his civil rights program to a group that yesterday concluded a three-day meeting to urge its adoption, Mr. Truman said:

"You don't need to make that speech to me. It needs to be made to the Senators and Congressmen. Every effort is being made by the executive branch of the Government to get action on these measures. I have been working at them ever since I went to Congress. I went there in 1935, and that is a long time ago.

"We have made some progress," the President continued. "We haven't made enough. We hope to make more . . . Every effort is being made to get a vote on these measures.

"The leader of the majority (Senator Scott Lucas, who Monday night addressed the civil rights convention) and the Vice President, have assured me that they will eventually get a vote, if it takes all summer."

Wilkins' statement to the President asserted that action to invoke cloture "may take weeks, possibly even months." He said Mr. Truman indicated "there was no disagreement on this point."

He also said the President did not comment on the possibilities of cloture on FEPC debate under the 64-vote rule in the Senate.

Mr. Truman said, however, that "when that vote (on FEPC itself) is taken we will be in a better position to understand who our friends are, and who are not.

"This is a serious situation," Mr. Truman added. "This civil rights program . . . is one that is necessary, if we are going to maintain our leadership in the world. We can't go on not doing things that we are asking other people to do in the United Nations."

Mr. Truman's impromptu remarks, transcribed by the White House, concluded with the statement that the mobilization's plans to contact members of Congress as to their stands on FEPC and other civil rights measures "is possibly the only way we can get action."

Sessions Concluded

In a press conference preceding the afternoon adjournment session, Wilkins said the convention was only the "first step." He emphasized that the mobilization group will dissolve after obtaining its objectives.

The closing session brought more reports on congressional positions on FEPC and civil rights. Expected agitation from sources denied registration in the strongly anti-Communist convention did not materialize.

Among stands reported was that of Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.). He said he would vote for anti-poll tax and anti-lynching laws and for cloture on FEPC. He added that he was not decided on whether to favor a voluntary FEPC bill or a bill with sanctions and penalties.

Correction

Senator Clyde R. Hoey (D., N. C.) was incorrectly reported in yesterday's Washington Post as favoring FEPC legislation. The Post regrets the error.

Senator Hoey said he has consistently opposed all such civil rights measures.

Gets Rise Out of Firemen

Jurist's Wife Angers South With Remarks About Whites

Charleston, S. C., Jan. 17 (U.P.).—This section reacted with cold anger tonight to a statement by a Federal judge's wife that southern whites are morally decadent and spiritually inferior to Negroes.

Mrs. J. Waties Waring, 55-year-old wife of a judge who outlawed South Carolina's all-white elections, made the comparison in a speech to a Negro YWCA meeting here.

"You Negro people already have picked up the torch of culture and achievement from the whites down here," Mrs. Waring, formerly married to a Detroit businessman, said last night. "They are a sick, confused and decadent people . . . You are building and creating."

Today, Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, who ran for President as a State's Righter in 1948, described her remarks as "beneath answering."

The Legislature listened silently to a reading of Mrs. Waring's statements. Finally, Representative Joseph Wise, jr., a 23-year-old Charlestonian, said South Carolina "needs no words from her . . . a damyankee."

Mrs. Waring said she had received several "threatening" telephone calls, all anonymous.

"The white 'powers-that-be' have done everything in their power to keep from speaking to you Negro people, even to defaming Judge Waring's and my character," Mrs. Waring said.

"Spiritually, you have been way ahead of the white people, for you have been living by Christ's teachings of the Golden Rule. . . ."

Numbers Fixer Gets Year in Jail

New York, Jan. 17 (AP).—The former secretary-manager of the Cincinnati Clearing House Association today was sentenced to a year in the City Penitentiary for his part in a 50 million dollars crooked numbers racket.

William Dennison Duble, 59, had pleaded guilty to two counts of an indictment that charged he used his clearing house position to falsify daily published figures of Cincinnati's bank clearings. The ring used the figures to determine the daily winning number.

Nine persons were indicted in the case, and Duble was the eighth to be sentenced.

Wiretapping Won't Stop Coplon Trial

Trial Nears End

Dulles, Maid Rebut Hiss Testimony

New York, Jan. 17 (NYHT).—Testimony for both sides was completed in the second perjury trial of Alger Hiss today when the Government called former Senator John Foster Dulles as its last rebuttal witness and the defense produced only one witness on surrebuttal.

Dulles gave his own versions of conversations he had with Hiss in 1946 and 1948 in connection with the election of Hiss as president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and in regard to charges he was a Communist. They differed substantially from accounts previously given by Hiss of the same conversations.

The prosecution also produced a surprise witness who testified that Mrs. Hiss visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Whittaker Chambers in Baltimore four times between the fall of 1935 and the spring of 1936 at least and that Hiss was with her on one occasion. Hiss and Mrs. Hiss had said they never visited Mr. and Mrs. Chambers in Baltimore.

Former Maid Testifies

The witness was Mrs. Edith Murray, former maid in the Chambers household. She said that at that time Mr. and Mrs. Chambers were using the name Lloyd Cantwell, and she knew Mrs. Hiss only as "Miss Priscilla." She said she was "not introduced" to Hiss and did not know his name.

Mrs. Hiss came from Washington to visit Mrs. Cantwell and her baby, Mrs. Murray said. She added that on her second visit Mrs. Hiss stayed overnight, so that Mrs. Murray saw her for the third time the following morning. When Mrs. Hiss came the fourth time, she added, Hiss arrived in the evening just as Mrs. Murray was leaving.

Mrs. Murray said she was not sure whether Cantwell was home when Mr. and Mrs. Hiss called. She said Cantwell was always away during the week and home only on weekends. She understood he was a traveling salesman.

Identifies Hiss, Mrs. Hiss

Mrs. Murray identified both Hiss and Mrs. Hiss in court. She said agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation had visited her last November, and shown her pictures of Hiss and Mrs. Hiss. At first, she said, Mrs. Hiss looked familiar but she didn't know where she had seen her.

Mrs. Murray said she particularly remembered the Hiss visits to the Cantwell home because Mrs. Cantwell "never had any company at all except those two."

Dulles said his recollection differed from that of Hiss about four conversations. The first was on the boat going to London for the first United Nations meeting in January, 1946. Hiss testified that Dulles then talked about his going to the endowment. Dulles said he had only asked Hiss whether he intended to stay in Government service indefinitely on return to private life.

Denies Consulting Byrnes

Dulles also denied that after receiving a letter on January 2, 1948, accusing Hiss of being a Communist he consulted James F. Byrnes, then Secretary of State, and asked Hiss how he should reply to the letter. He also denied that Hiss told him to ask the author of the letter what basis he had for the charge.

Dulles said that when he received the letter he immediately asked the author to come to his office and talk about it, and that he did not discuss it with Byrnes and he did not recall telling Hiss who wrote the letter.

Dulles said Hiss' statement that he had offered to resign as president of the endowment in August, 1948, did not wholly square with his own recollection.

Dulles also related that in March, 1948, the same day that Hiss testified before the grand jury, he told Dulles of his associations with Lee Pressman at Harvard and in the Department of Agriculture, and said he had not seen Pressmen recently. Dulles said he did not think Hiss described Pressman as a Communist, but that nevertheless he (Dulles) got the impression that Pressman was a Communist.

Today's lone defense witness was Harold Shapero, who assisted Lloyd Paul Stryker in the first trial, and who denied that he or Raymond Catlett had represented themselves as agents of the FBI when interviewing a potential witness.

Court records showed a total of 110 witnesses appeared in the second trial, 55 for each side, and 423 exhibits were introduced, 247 by the Government and 176 by the defense. The trial has lasted 37 court days.

Judge Henry W. Goddard adjourned the trial until 10 a.m. Thursday when Claude B. Cross will begin summing up for the defense. After Thomas F. Murphy, Assistant United States Attorney, sums up for the prosecution Judge Goddard will charge the jury on Friday. The first trial ended July 8 in a hung jury after 28 court days.

New York, Jan. 17 (U.P.).—Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan ruled today that Judith Coplon and Valentin A. Gubitchev could not avoid trial for espionage even if the investigation of the Government girl's activities was touched off by an FBI wire tap.

Ryan also said he was satisfied destruction of wiretap records by the FBI was not done to obstruct justice.

Those two pronouncements were a setback for Miss Coplon and Gubitchev, a Russian formerly employed by the United Nations, who have moved that the Government case be dismissed. Judge Ryan still must rule on the broad issue of whether the case against the pair is based primarily on evidence secured through wire tapping.

Archibald Palmer, attorney for Miss Coplon, called his last witness at the pretrial hearing today. Judge Ryan will rule this week. If he denies the defense challenge, the trial proper is expected to begin next Tuesday.

Judge Ryan has put the burden of proof on the Government that its case against Miss Coplon and Gubitchev was not based on illegal tapping of their telephones. But he made it clear that the fact that the probe into Miss Coplon's affairs originally was started because of wire tap information was not sufficient to throw the case out of court.

"It is immaterial whether this investigation was touched off by an interception of the knowledge gained by interception or by knowledge from a person who acted as an informer," Ryan said.

President Truman has approved the report of a Marine Corps selection board headed by Lieut. Gen. Thomas E. Watson which recommended two brigadier generals for advancement to major general.

Brig. Gen. William E. Riley, chief of staff of the United Nations Truce Supervision Organization in Palestine, was picked for one of the promotions. He formerly was director of Marine Corps public relations and recruiting and took part in the Bougainville and Palau invasions during the war.

Brig. Gen. Robert H. Pepper, troop training commander at the Amphibious Training Command, Little Creek, Va., also was chosen for promotion. He commanded the Third Defense Battalion on Guadalcanal and the Eleventh Marines in the Cape Gloucester landings.

Ministers Ask Safety in Italy

Protection for Protestant evangelists in Italy yesterday was called for by a group of Protestant churchmen.

The group also called for "dissolution of the alleged legation at the Vatican" and recall of Myron C. Taylor, President Truman's special representative to the Vatican.

The churchmen met at the Wardman Park Hotel at a conference sponsored by the National Association of Evangelicals, which says it speaks for more than 10 million American evangelical church members.

Much of the discussion during the conference centered on a recent report from evangelists of the Church of Christ of Brownfield, Tex., that they were stoned out of Castel Gandolfo, the summer home of Pope Pius XII.

A resolution urging the Government to take action to avoid repetition of the stoning incident and to make a thorough investigation of it was approved by the group.

Thousands Moved To Aid Flood Fight

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 17 (AP).—Thousands of persons fled their homes in southeast Missouri today as the Mississippi River swirled a threat down the valley.

The Red Cross said 4000 or 5000 had been evacuated in the Birds Point-New Madrid floodway by midday and the number was expected to be doubled within a few hours.

The swarm of evacuees followed by less than 24 hours a warning by the U. S. Engineers that the 200-square-mile area might have to be flooded to ease the situation in more heavily populated sections.

Many of the refugees were housed at the Malden (Mo.) Air Base. An estimated 12,000 persons live in the floodway.

The Mississippi was on its worst rampage since 1937.

It rose to 55 feet at Cairo, Ill., 14 feet above flood stage and less than five feet below the 1937 level. It was expected to go half a foot higher. And more rain was predicted for the Ohio Valley today and Wednesday.

Engineers recruited labor for an all-out fight in an area extending from 39 miles above Cairo to below the Missouri-Arkansas line—on both sides of the river.

Downstream from Cairo, Mississippi tributaries continued to trouble Arkansas. And the Mississippi highwater crumbled a section of levee west of Dyersburg, Tenn. Convict labor was called out to help save another section.

Big Gain Seen in Area Census

Francisco, Cleveland, Baltimore and Washington.

Washington could pass St. Louis and San Francisco only if those metropolitan areas have grown only moderately, Hauser explained.

Hauser told the advertising group that as a result of the decade's phenomenal growth Washington "is no longer just the Capital of the United States but one of the best marketing areas in the Nation."

He also described the new "urbanized areas" census classification to be used for the first time this year. This will include all central cities of 50,000 or more plus, in general, all the thickly settled areas having a density of 500 dwelling units—about 2000 persons — per square mile.

For Washington, Hauser said this urban area will include the nearby areas in Maryland and Virginia, including such places as Garrett Park and Wheaton but not Rockville in Maryland, practically all of Arlington and as far south as Warwick in Fairfax County, Virginia. All of Alexandria will be included.

Hauser said the new definition of "urban population"—all places of 2500 or more, incorporated or not — will include for the first time as urban rather than rural such places as Silver Spring, Bethesda, Friendship Heights, Chevy Chase and Wheaton in Maryland.

Soldier Killed, Several Hurt As Flames Sweep Camp Carson

Broadmoor suburb of Colorado Springs.

An Army information officer said it would not be learned until Wednesday if the warehouse fires would interfere with what is scheduled to be the longest mass airlift in United States military history.

Camp Carson is the base for mounting an Arctic exercise "Sweetbriar" to Whitehorse in the Yukon. The airlift is scheduled January 22 and 27. Some of the airlift gear was in the warehouse area where some buildings were gutted.

Winds Up to 90 Mph.

The flames, which razed ranch buildings and summer cabins and surrounded the famed Cheyenne Mountain Zoo, roared into the wooden buildings at Carson at midday.

Within seconds, 15 were reported afire. Within minutes, flames were licking at buildings through much of the 35-million-dollar camp.

The blaze, its cause undetermined, broke out about 1:30 a. m. (MST), a mile south of the swank Broadmoor Hotel at the foot of Cheyenne Mountain. By dawn it had spread up Cheyenne Mountain and raced 6 miles south. Another prong drove east and south across Colo. 115 and U. S. 85 more than 10 miles east.

The weather station at Peterson Field clocked winds up to 65 miles an hour with much stronger gusts.

The storm was general over much of the area. Gusts of 90 miles an hour—15 over hurricane force—were recorded at Pueblo, 40 miles south. Plans were made there to handle 500 evacuees from Camp Carson.

Volunteers from as far as Walsenburg, 95 miles south, answered continuing calls for help. Soldiers, Reservists, National Guardsmen, Colorado College students and all available fire and police forces were thrown into the fight.

Buses, taxis and trucks were used to rush crews to each new danger spot as flames leap-frogged back and forth through the area.

The Cheyenne Mountain Zoo was spared by the first rush of fire.

But later flames circled back and smoke covered the frantic animals in the cages. Preparations were made by the management to shoot the animals if the zoo had to be abandoned.

From the foot of the mountain flames raced as much as 10 miles east and south. They reached Peterson Field, former Fifteenth Air Force headquarters, on the northeast corner.

Colorado Highway 115 was cut when wooden bridges burned out. So were the major access roads to Camp Carson, wartime home of such divisions as the Tenth Mountain, Seventy-first, Eighty-ninth and 104th Infantry.

For hours it looked as though the flames would spare the camp. Then, about noon, the fire broadjumped bulldozed firelanes, topped a ridge and leaped 1000 yards to the northwest corner of the camp.

Young Mobsters Terrorize Junior High Student Body

son schools for at least two years.

The mobsters, he said, are led by youths ranging in age up to 21, who offer "protection" to the pupils in exchange for whatever cash they can extract.

The beating of a Banneker student on the playground by members of a gang led to last week's confinement, Brooks said. He said he did not know that this particular beating was the result of an extortion attempt.

Brooks' revelation was coincident with the holding for the grand jury yesterday of an 18-year-old youth charged with robbing a 15-year-old Banneker student of a wrist watch on Monday.

The older boy, John Henry Glover, of 745 Park rd. nw., was held in $1500 bond for the grand jury in Municipal Court after the pupil, Roger Powell, 15, of 3609 New Hampshire ave. nw., testified that Glover had threatened him with a "whipping."

Powell said the incident occurred at the playground. Glover, he said, was accompanied by a companion. The lad testified he was forced through "fear" to go with the pair to a second hand store for sale of the watch. He said he ran away when the others entered the store.

Brooks commented that juvenile court authorities were "absolutely too lenient" with several offenders whom he said he brought before the court.

The gang leaders, he said, force younger boys to aid them in the racket.

Not only do the young gangsters terrorize pupils but they also have broken into the school building on several occasions, stealing overcoats among other items.

Brooks said that until the recent police shakeup, a juvenile squad policeman had been assigned to the school. The officer was transferred to other duties following a change of command at the Thirteenth Precinct Police Station, he said.

Meanwhile, Benjamin H. Amos, an attorney for the Consolidated Parents Group, said letters would be sent today to police and education officials demanding an investigation into the gangsterism.

School Inadequacy Blamed on Citizens

New York, Jan. 17 (NYHT).—Citizens have remained apathetic while "the growing inadequacy of our public school system is creeping up on every community," Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said tonight.

General Bradley spoke at the first annual dinner of the National Citizens Commission for the Public Schools at the Hotel Roosevelt. Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard University, and Roy E. Larsen, chairman of the commission and president of Time, Inc., also spoke to the nearly 1000 civic, business and educational leaders attending.

"If some dramatic incident could shock the American people to an awareness of public education," General Bradley said, "they would react as unitedly as they did at Pearl Harbor. A parade of embarrassing statistics, however, fails to accomplish this purpose."

School Needs Neglected

Preoccupation with national defense during the past decade, he said, has led to neglect of basic school needs for expanded physical facilities and more, and well-paid teachers. "While we were busy saving this generation," he said, "we were failing in our obligations to the generations to come."

Only "genuine citizen interest," Bradley warned, can provide the school buildings, the incentive to teachers and "the community benefits we deserve and must have."

Education, he said, is in the vanguard of a Twentieth century crusade at a time when "our economic system is challenged, our political tenets are ridiculed and our enduring spiritual creed is being defied wherever communism has gained the power of oppression."

Appraisal of the public schools by laymen, Dr. Conant said, "is of paramount importance in this mid-Twentieth century."

Relevant factors in appraisal of the schools, he said, are not only the "obvious criteria" applied to physical facilities, well-trained and adequately paid teachers and administrators and able counselors, but also the goals of the school in giving students the education and preparation for the future for which they as individuals are best fitted.

The commission, Larsen told the gathering, would act as a clearing house to help local communities throughout the country learn how others are meeting their public school problems.

Truman Wires Support

President Truman, in a telegram read to the gathering, told the commission, "Your goal of arousing citizen support for better schools throughout the Nation is one which should rank among the first objectives of every thoughtful community leader and every parent. We must look to our schools as a major instrument in meeting the increasing complexities of modern life."

Reed K. Pond, chairman of the citizens committee for school improvement of Arlington, Va., presented a certificate of merit to the commission from his committee as a local school betterment group that had received help and encouragement from the national organization.

The certificate was presented to Henry Toy, executive director of the commission. Other officers of the group, which has 34 members from all parts of the country, are James F. Brownlee of the committee for economic development, vice chairman, and Leo Perlis, director of the National CIO community services committee, secretary.

Truman's Home Has Color Television Now

President Truman has color television in his home.

The receiver was installed recently by engineers for the Columbia Broadcasting System which currently is running a series of color television tests in the Washington area.

It is one of less than a dozen CBS is spotting around town for field tests suggested by the Federal Communications Commission before it resumes hearings February 28 on whether to license color video.

It was not revealed if the President and his family are using the set.

WELCOMED TO THE GPO—Benjamin Franklin, in the person of Eustis E. Morseberger, assistant to the planning manager of the Government Printing Office, is welcomed at the GPO yesterday by officials celebrating Franklin's birthday and International Printing Week. Board Favors Rent Controls In Arlington

The Arlington County Board has gone on record against lifting of Federal rent controls in Virginia, Board Chairman Daniel Dugan said yesterday.

The board took its unanimous action at a Monday night conference after hearing that a measure to lift the controls has been introduced in the General Assembly.

In its resolution, the board stated that the housing shortage is still acute "in Vrginia in general and in Arlington County in particular."

It noted that despite provisions in the present Federal law giving cities the right to remove themselves from rent control, the "major portion" of the State of Virginia has not exercised this power.

Dugan said removal of the controls would be "a calamity" for Arlington. He estimated that about 50 percent of county residents live in rented housing.

After the Forty-second Field Artillery Battalion of Richmond's 176th combat team, fires a 21-gun salute, Governor Battle will review a parade of Army, Navy Air Force, Marine Corps and R.O.T.C. representatives as they march along the drive that circles the Capitol.

Battle will then deliver his inaugural address, in which he is expected to make recommendations for carrying out promises made in November, when he defeated three other candidates for the governorship.

Many an anxious ear will await his comments on such matters as distribution of 45 million dollars, which he pledged to grant localities for school construction.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 17 (AP).—Repeated underestimates of State revenues were criticized sharply in the Virginia House of Delegates today as "a device to hold down the legitimate demands of the people for schools, health and welfare services."

Delegate Robert Whitehead of Nelson took his colleagues to task for accepting the conservative figures submitted by the Governors and their budget makers.

Mt. Rainier Runs 7 Pct. Over Budget

A budget report submitted to the Mount Rainier Town Council last night showed that the town ran 7 percent above its budget for the first six months of fiscal year 1950.

Mayor Herbert W. Reichelt said he thought there would be no trouble in balancing the $113,000 budget before the year runs out June 30. He had not decided on any specific economies yet, he said.

The Council voted to join the Brentwood Town Council in asking the Prince Georges County Commissioners for a bridge across a creek on 34th st., which would extend 34th st. into Queenstown.

The commissioners will also be asked to extend Arundel rd. from 30th st. to 34th st. to provide access to the new bridge for Arundel rd. traffic.

The council announced that the town's volunteer fire department had won the Vanneman Trophy for fire prevention for the second straight year.

The trophy is given annually to the volunteer unit that makes the best showing in Maryland during Fire Prevention Week. The Mt. Rainier department has won first place five times, but the trophy has been in existence only two years.

Clarke Plans Fairfax School Board Bill

Richmond, Va., Jan. 17—Senator Andrew W. Clark of Alexandria, predicting defeat of the Byrd school board bill in the Virginia General Assembly, said today he will propose a similar plan for Fairfax County.

State Senator Harry F. Byrd, jr., of Winchester, has proposed that all county school boards be elected by boards of supervisors. They are presently named by a trustee electoral board appointed by the Circuit Court judge.

Bill's Chances Seen Slim

Clark said he likes Byrd's idea but is pessimistic about its chances. He will introduce a bill, probably Wednesday, asking that such a law be enacted for Fairfax County. Delegate Edwin Lynch of Fairfax said he will propose an alternate plan in a bill to be drawn up later. He is committed to "letting the people decide," Lynch said, so he will propose a referendum in which Fairfax voters will determine:

1. Whether they want to change the present system.
2. If so, whether the school board should be elected by the voters or by the board of supervisors.

At today's session, Clarke introduced four measures:

To require real estate agents to hold in escrow any funds paid by a person buying real estate; to raise from $100 to $500 the salaries of members of the Fairfax County board of public welfare; to permit the State board of education to invest literary fund capital in the county's general obligation bonds, and to make it unlawful for trucks to pass on highway upgrades while traveling in the same direction.

In the House, Delegate Frank P. Moncure of Stafford proposed that there be no further trial in the case of a person indicted for a felony when there have been two hung juries.

'Falsies' Lead to Suit

Berlin, Jan. 17 (AP).—The newspaper Der Abend said a young Berlin man filed a divorce suit the day after he was married, accusing his bride of "false pretenses and non-existing facts." He said she wore "falsies."

Chest Money

It is understandable that after five campaigns ending short of the goal, Community Chest officials may be pessimistic about future chances of raising the entire budget. We doubt, however, whether the way to meet the problems raised by the deficits is to wait until the campaign is over each year before drawing up individual agency budgets. Assuredly this procedure, as put into effect by United Community Services, will avoid the necessity for preparing a second set of agency budgets to take account of deficits. But it also will mean that member agencies will have great difficulty doing any sort of advance planning. More than that, it will mean that the Community Chest will go into the campaign each year with only a round general figure as a goal.

During the 1950 campaign just concluded, the sum sought was consciously cut below recognized needs of the individual agencies in the hope of reversing the psychology of failure. Although this drive raised more money than the last one, it still did not go over the top. The question which no one can answer is whether, if the public had been told all the facts as to need, it might not have responded more generously. At any rate, it is an old campaign principle that people give in proportion to the size of the goal. If a campaign based on a tally of actual needs did not raise all the money hoped for, it at least might raise more than a drive in which needs were minimized.

Chest agencies already have suffered from the effects of failure. If they now are to have the additional handicap of not being able to plan ahead, either they must cut the scope of their programs drastically to the detriment of the community, or pressure will mount for additional money-raising campaigns to the detriment of the one-campaign principle.

NLRB Schism

Robert N. Denham, general counsel for the National Labor Relations Board, may have legitimate grievances against the board, but it is difficult to see why he chose to air them before the Building Trades Employers Association in New York. It was inevitable from the very nature of the separate status that Congress gave to the general counsel in the Taft-Hartley Act that differences would arise between him and the board. But we doubt that Congress ever contemplated the general counsel attacking the board in public in this fashion. In our opinion, Mr. Denham has raised a serious question as to whether the present system will continue to be workable with this sort of strain upon it.

Mr. Denham's chief complaint is that the board is misinterpreting the Taft-Hartley Act—presumably twisting it toward the grooves of the old Wagner Act. Whether or not his charge has substance is an extremely complicated question that we do not presume to discuss here. But in no event could the board be expected to agree with the general counsel all the time. Out of 20 cases in which the courts have granted temporary injunctions while waiting for the board to hear the testimony and decide the cases on their merits, the board has sustained the position taken by Mr. Denham 13 times and overruled his contentions 7 times. This seems to be a fair batting average for the general counsel's office. If the board were to agree with the general counsel in all cases, the purpose of Congress in separating the prosecuting and judging functions would obviously be flouted.

It is a distortion of facts, moreover, for Mr. Denham to say that "the courts have apparently been held by the board to be in error in issuing injunctions at the behest of the general counsel, in cases which the board has later dismissed . . . " The courts have issued injunctions only to prevent irreparable damage from being inflicted while the case is being disposed of on its merits. Representatives of the general counsel have repeatedly requested injunctions with the understanding that the cases were not presented to the court on their merits. For Mr. Denham to assume that the court is being overruled by the NLRB when the court never considered the merits of the case is distortion of a type that a public servant should not indulge in. Of course, there is no way in which the NLRB can overrule a court after the court has heard a case on its merits.

More serious is the fact that when appeals from the board's decisions are carried to the courts, the board must be represented by the general counsel. The general counsel has now said in public that he thinks the position taken by the board in numerous cases about to go to the courts is wrong. In effect he has invited employers dissatisfied with the board's rulings to appeal to the courts, knowing that he himself will represent the board when it is challenged. How can he or his subordinates conscientiously present the board's case before the court in these circumstances? The effect of the speech is thus to bring to light a grave weakness in the present setup of the NLRB and to accentuate doubts as to the advisability of giving the general counsel as much power as he now has.

Threat Of Oligarchy

President Truman has good reason to be concerned over the drive to repeal the 21-day rule in the House. Should this move succeed, the Administration forces would almost certainly lose control of the House. The Southern Democrats on the Rules Committee would then be able to combine forces with the four Republican members to block any legislation that might meet with their disapproval. The outcome of this struggle to return dictatorial powers to the Rules Committee may thus determine the fate of the Fair Deal at this session of Congress.

The Administration has been flagrantly belated, in our opinion, in waking up to this danger. With the Democratic Party split wide open on many of the issues that will come before Congress, it seems to us that President Truman and the Democratic leaders of Congress should have organized their forces months ago for the shaping of a party program and the disciplining of their members in an effort to get their program adopted. Instead, they have permitted schism to run its course until disaster is threatened. Even now, only makeshift measures seem to be contemplated in an effort to save the 21-day rule.

What is needed, of course, is a policy-making group within Congress to act with the President in shaping the majority's program for each session. That policy-making group should obviously have control of the Rules Committee and use that committee for the orderly programming of its legislative measures for debate and action by the House. At present there is no leadership group that can deal with the President on equal terms. To be sure, the Speaker and the majority leader often consult with the President, but they are in the position of having to accept his program or try to devise an independent program of their own. An entirely different group holds the whip hand in the Rules Committee by virtue of seniority of service, subject only to the right of committee chairmen, under the reform of a year ago, to appeal to the House to overrule the rule makers after they have sat on an important measure for 21 days or more. To our way of thinking, the Rules Committee should be elected by the majority party in the House on nomination by the recognized leaders. It would then become merely a "traffic director" that would serve the party in control of the House, instead of being a handful of little dictators brought together by the accident of seniority.

Reforms of this type have long been urged upon Congress and the Administration. They seem to be imperative to establish a clear-cut party responsibility. To be sure, a long step forward was taken when the 21-day rule was adopted. But the effect was merely to take off the brake without giving the House the concerted leadership that is necessary to the shaping and enactment of a thoughtfully devised party program. Now something more is needed. It seems to us that the proper answer to the retrogression proposed by the Rules Committee is an administrative offensive to complete the reform begun with the 21-day rule. Such a move would include creation of an effective majority policy committee in the House, possibly composed of the Speaker, the majority leader and key men from the major committees. It would also include abolition of the Rules Committee, as now constituted, and creation in its place of a traffic-directing group in some measure responsible to the leadership. Boldness in moving toward this end may be the only means of breaking the drive for restoration of a little oligarchy devoted chiefly to obstruction.

Candidate Byrnes

Former Secretary of State Byrnes' bid for the governorship of South Carolina is attracting a good deal of attention because of his recent warnings against "going down the road to statism." If he campaigns in the vein of his recent speeches, he may cause a good deal of embarrassment to the White House in this political year. The Republicans in Congress have eagerly picked up and reechoed Mr. Byrnes' indirect criticism of the Truman Administration.

If, however, Mr. Byrnes should win—and his vote-getting ability in the past suggests that he should have little difficulty in winning over the three other candidates in the field—he might very well turn out to be an asset to the Truman Administration. For, whatever his present feelings may be about the welfare state and excessive Government spending, Mr. Byrnes has the background of a New Deal Senator. He was President Roosevelt's right-hand man in the Senate before he went to the Supreme Bench, and later resigned to take over administrative assignments which ultimately gave him the powers of "assistant President" in wartime. He is not one of those Southern politicians who oppose every forward step in government on the ground that it runs counter to States' rights.

It is reasonable, therefore, to suppose that, if he wins, he will be a moderating influence in the Democratic Party. He might, indeed, be the means of narrowing the gap between the Northern wing of that party and the so-called Dixiecrats led by the present Governor of South Carolina, J. Strom Thurmond, who is expected to run for the United States Senate.

Stable Hemisphere

United States Ambassadors from the northern part of Latin America, meeting today in Havana for a policy conference, will encounter an atmosphere of tension. Real or fancied brickbats have been flying about the Caribbean, and Cuba, the locale of the conference, is a party to one of the controversies. The most serious matter is the dispute between Haiti and the Dominican Republic, for Haiti has invoked the Rio defense pact after an alleged Dominican plot to overthrow her government. The Council of the Organization of American States has wisely undertaken a thorough investigation. It also will probe long-standing Dominican charges that other Caribbean nations, notably Cuba, have been harboring would-be aggressors against the Trujillo regime.

The Dominican Republic's position in the latter controversy is something less than invulnerable. The Dominicans have not seen fit to invoke the Rio treaty; moreover, President Trujillo's new power to declare war against any nation harboring invaders is in itself a violation of the peaceful settlement obligations of the treaty. Nevertheless, it is good to have an examination of the Dominican complaints. What is to be hoped is that not only will the probe be thorough but also that the OAS will keep a continuing check and will publicize the degree of adherence to its recommendations.

On the larger issues that will be discussed at Havana, Assistant Secretary of State Edward G. Miller, jr., made some astute comments last week as to the applicability of Point Four in Latin America. Mr. Miller envisions a twofold program—technical assistance, as in the admirable Abbink mission to Brazil last year, and public loans. He views Export-Import Bank and World Bank loans for such projects as the Sao Francisco River development in Brazil primarily as a means of stimulating private investment. On this point, and on general Latin economic policies, there has been too little frank talk. Mr. Miller put it up to the governments themselves to decide whether they want to provide the proper climate for private capital.

In the political sphere, Mr. Miller did well to offer the reminder that the fact that we now deplore revolutionary overthrows in Latin America, whereas 20 years ago they were acquiesced in, is itself a sign of progress. There can be no hard and fast rule about revolutions, some of which serve the worthy purpose of ending oppression, and it is quite possible to use too strict a criterion in judging nations where representative government is not a tradition. But neither is there any ground for complacency. Sound economies are probably the best promoters of representative government. What is important is for the United States to recognize its tremendous influence and to make sure that specific applications of policy do not abet the forcible overthrow of popular governments.

"Abrupt And Brutal"

Whatever the law may be, there will be widespread sympathy with the protest of Justices Jackson, Black and Frankfurter against the exclusion of Ellen Knauff, war bride of an American veteran, without so much as giving her a hearing. The dissenting trio in a 4-to-3 decision called the result of the case "abrupt and brutal." In our opinion, that is an accurate description. The woman in question went from Germany to Czechoslovakia during the Hitler regime. Later, as a refugee in England, she served "efficiently and honorably" with the Royal Air Force. So far as the justices could determine "her record is not only without blemish, but is highly praised by her superiors." Yet when she sought entry to the United States under the War Brides Act, she was arbitrarily excluded on the ground that her admission would be "prejudicial to the interests of the United States."

The majority of the court reached this decision because aliens have no absolute right to be admitted to the United States. They come in only as a privilege granted by the sovereign, and for the period of the emergency connected with World War II Congress and the President authorized the Attorney General to exclude aliens without a hearing if the information prejudicial to them is of a confidential nature which should not be disclosed in the public interest. This arrangement is still in effect, because the national emergency declared in 1941 has never been terminated.

"Security is like liberty, in that many are the crimes committed in its name," said the dissenting justices. "The menace to the security of this country, be it great as it may, from this girl's admission is as nothing compared to the menace to free institutions inherent in procedures of this pattern." The majority of the court did not justify this un-American practice. It simply laid the full responsibility upon Congress and the President. We think the Department of Justice has a clear duty to take the initiative in abolishing the system that may keep veterans and their wives in separate countries without so much as telling them why or giving them a chance to combat the suspicions of the immigration authorities.

ROOT IN WINTER

Deep is the dwelling of the root.
There is the effortless dark
The quiet root leaves its mark,
Making its purpose one with rain and wind and sun.

The root is but the word
That shapes the thought of leaf and tree
And the recurrent bird,
And spring that is to be.

Vegetable Oil Subsidy

I have been a rather constant reader of your paper ever since I have been a member of Congress, and my son accumulated his limited stock pile of U. S. Savings Bonds by being one of your carriers.

I have noted your articles in connection with the suppor program for eggs and potatoes and I have also noted your comments about export subsidies and agricultural legislation in general. One fact that has always been evident to me, was that you do not seem to dig out the information which shows where the real large part of the American taxpayers' dollar is being spent. If you would give the same study and investigation to the vegetable oil subsidy that you have given to those other commodities, I am sure you would find those about which you have written are small in comparison to those provided to the vegetable oil interests.

It would be interesting to have an analysis of the subsidies being paid to these vegetable oils and I am sure you would find that the oil going into vegetable oil products, regardless of what they are used for, is subsidized somewhere between 10-50 cents per pound. It is to be hoped that you would not forget the peanut growers who have enjoyed such a generous subsidy all during the years. REID F. MURRAY.

Book-Burning

I was greatly dismayed and not a little alarmed when I read in your January 11 issue that the Department of Education of Baltimore had directed its high school principals to "burn Russian publications" in their school libraries.

How well I recall the book burnings of Herr Goebbels in his attempts to eliminate all but approved Fascist education.

It seems to me that those men who issued such orders have lost their confidence in what has been traditionally cited as the "American way"—the way which not only permits but encourages all sides of a story, in fact which makes it possible for a citizen to get every point of view and then reach his own conclusion.

Education Aid Formula

John Childs, John Dewey, Bishop Oxnam and other signers of the letter in your issue of January 13 have produced the perfect formula for defeating Federal aid to education in the Eighty-first Congress.

1. Cite out-of-date statistics (e. g., 1944-45 expenditures) in defense of Federal aid for equalization of educational opportunity. Say, for example, that in 1944 the average salary of New York public school teachers was only $2783, but don't say that for 1947-48 the average salary was $3450. Using out-of-date statistics will stir up opposition from tax-saving organizations and will reinforce their efforts to defeat Federal aid.

2. Insist upon aid for every State, even for those which do not qualify under an equalization formula. This will give ammunition to a large number of Congressmen who have announced their determined opposition to what they call "pork barrel" legislation.

3. Weave into a Federal aid bill some kind of a provision pointing toward the elimination of the segregated school systems in the South. This will alienate the support of a large number of Southern Congressmen who otherwise might support Federal aid legislation even though it mandated a fair and equitable distribution of Federal funds between white and Negro schools.

4. Incorporate into a Federal aid bill all the Barden bill provisions to which parents of non-public school children object. This certainly will deliver the coup de grace to Federal aid to education.

Regardless of the manner in which the Federal aid dispute is finally settled, the above formula will long be remembered as a classic of pseudo-liberal sophistry. WILLIAM E. McMANUS.

Missionaries In Italy

In your January 13 issue is an Associated Press dispatch from Rome, Italy, headed "Reds Use U. S. Missionaries, Italy Declares."

To heap calumny on the Protestants by gratuitously affirming that "American Protestant activity in Italy is an aid to communism" is a charge that demands proof now or complete retraction.

The statement that "Communists are about the only Italians who join Protestants" is a baseless falsification. In our years in Italy in connection with Protestant school and orphanage work and in our immediate and intimate contacts since, I have never known a Protestant church member who was a Communist. Following World War I, American Protestant aid was distributed in great quantity under my personal direction and after World War II vast amounts of American Protestant clothing and food went into Italy. Is it thinkable these "activities" were in aid to communism?

Aid for Korea

The republic of Korea must not be ignored in consideration of our present status and future policy in the Orient. While the island of Formosa is 90 miles from the Communist army on the Chinese mainland, a person can stand in the Soviet-dominated territory of north Korea and throw a stone into the democratic republic of Korea.

Residents of the towns just south of the thirty-eighth parallel, the dividing line between the two zones, are constantly harassed by the borderline sieges of the Communist-backed North Korean army. So far these attacks have been firmly repulsed by the republic.

The United States has a moral commitment to see that the republic is able to stave off any full-scale Communist invasion. Under the terms of an agreement we made with Russia, the United States occupied South Korea after the war, while Russia occupied the northern half. The Russians have withdrawn their troops and left behind a strong Korean army and a Communist puppet government. We withheld our forces last summer. This was a year after a democratic election was conducted by a United Nations Commission in the southern zone as the result of a resolution introduced into the General Assembly by the United States.

Because the thirty-eighth parallel iron curtain divides Korea into two zones which are normally dependent upon each other economically and industrially, the republic continues to need United States aid in the form of ECA grants. The fact that the republic has used wisely the aid given to it so far has been attested by both officials of the ECA and Congressmen who visited Korea recently.

When the question of the proposed 90-million-dollar economic assistance program for Korea is presented to Congress soon, there should be no hesitancy in approving it.

"15-Cent Fares"

In your January 14 editorial, "15-Cent Fares," you conclude "that there seems to be no alternative but for the PUC to grant the increase without delay," apparently taking for granted, that the Capital Transit is working in the red.

The company's request that no hearing be held suggests that, if there is a possibility for concealing the real revenue and for padding the expense, there is also likelihood that this may be done.

By eliminating the weekly pass a retarded, less efficient, service will be assured. This is quite obvious. It is rather preferable to raise the price of the weekly pass than to do away with it.

PHILLIP SLAVIN,
Washington.

There is just one thing the public must keep before its collective eyes, relative to the Capital Transit's petition for another fare raise—and that is the thought that no one is going to buy, at such an exorbitant figure, any business that is in the "red." It has been extensively broadcast via the press and radio that the company was being bought as an investment. Is any businessman, in his right mind going to expect an income from an investment that is showing a deficit?

If the amount of business has decreased, the fault is not because of decreased demand, but of increased fares. If they are granted another increase, and particularly the abolition of the weekly pass, there will be a further noticeable decrease in patronage. H. L. M.
Washington.

Capital Transit complains that it is forced to make the request due to retroactive salary increases awarded its employes and the fact that public patronage has decreased considerably as a result of the availability of new cars. Has it stopped to consider that those former transit riders now have parking problems with which to contend?

The company could serve a two-fold purpose in decreasing the fares, thus attracting the additional patronage of those who own cars and, at the same time, making it possible for the average worker to ride buses and streetcars without having to spend a small fortune. The proposed increase would cost me exactly $3.20 weekly just to go to and from work Monday through Friday and to school twice weekly. This figure does not allow for any deviations which I am presently able to afford with a $1.75 weekly pass.

ADRIENNE M. DeLANEY,
Washington.

I resent the Capital Transit Co. attitude. The Florida moneybags are trying to ride on a gravy train of poor working people. I think they are wholly unjustified in asking for a raise in fares. If they had any competition I'd trade elsewhere.

American Spending Test

By Malvina Lindsay

Veterans' Dividends

THE OLD-TIMER, who is convinced Americans have lost all their thrift, stamina and horse sense, can tell you exactly how the 16 million veterans will spend their insurance refund checks now being mailed out. He sees most of them rushing headlong to the nearest television store, the rest to motor car agencies, though he concedes that a few still in the romantic mood may be making down payments on fur coats, wrist watches, diamond rings.

Yet the savings bonds division of the Treasury can show good cause, based on 1949 sales, why it expects many a dividend check to be salted away in E bonds. Real estate dealers, clothiers, bill collectors and many others have their eyes on the veterans' checks. "Save your money," advises one New York men's store in its advertisement, "but if you insist on coming to us for clothes we have some really good values."

How this $2,800,000,000 life insurance refund is spent will affect business, prices, the trend toward inflation or deflation. It will also give a cross-section view of how Americans manage money, and what is the economic mood of the times.

Since the average payment will be small, around $175, there is wide prediction that the money will be spent rather than saved or invested. If so, a lot more small children will soon be getting their education and knowledge of life via the video—the craze for which is duplicating the radio rush of the 1920s.

THIS SHOULD put more obligation on the producers of television programs to give juveniles more variation from Westerns and puppet shows, and to save the gory programs—as some organized groups of women are requesting — until after children's bedtime.

Twice before in recent years veterans have received windfalls. But what they did with the money then affords little clew to their spending now, since economic conditions were different.

In 1936, three and a half million veterans received adjusted compensation payments averaging $530—equal then to twice that amount today. Since the country was digging out of a depression, about one third of the money went to meet debts or bills, Federal Reserve Board studies show. The tendency was to save and invest rather than to spend what remained.

In 1947 eight and a half million veterans received an average of $216 in armed forces leave bonds. Only 10 percent of this went to pay bills (the country was prosperous then) and about two thirds was spent for merchandise that had been short in production. (Who doesn't remember the rush of down-at-the-heel men to clothing stores?)

This year finds many a veteran buying his home, and no doubt the thrifty ones will apply their dividends on their payments. Also many motor cars and much household goods bought by young couples have not been paid for.

PROBABLY the usual pattern of spending will prevail—the moderate or well-to-do saving and investing, the others spending to meet their most pressing need or desire.

Two forces will be in conflict when the veteran receives his check. One is the present hard-headed mood of Americans toward finances—shown in the recent practical Christmas gifts, in the widespread calls on Congress for economy, in the wary buying of department store soft goods. The other is the appeal of new gadgets and luxuries.

The tendency of many families to sacrifice necessities for gadgets and adornment was brought out at the recent hearing on low income families by the Joint Committee on the Economic Report of Congress. Many low income families need education in money management, Monsignor L. G. Ligutti, executive director of the National Catholic Rural Life Conference at Des Moines, told the committee.

He said he had seen women whose homes lacked sheets and pillowcases when illness struck wearing fur coats, and had found beautiful radio and television sets in homes where diet was "woefully deficient." Sales pressure and lack of proportion in spending helped cause such conditions, he said, though he also pointed out that these families suffered from unjust profits and taxes, from loan sharks and from inability to pay cash, to buy in quantity and at advantageous times.

Veterans being mostly young and fit are probably not in the below $2000 income class to any extent. But being young, they may not be expected to think of the future with caution. Their new windfall is likely to go into circulation to a large extent, but just who gets it is anybody's guess.

Advertising At Movies

The Washington Post is to be praised for its consistent, vigilant concern for the rights of the individual, as witness for example its stanch stand for the people's right not to listen to advertisements on a public transportation system. But why don't you point up the far worse practice (which is insidiously growing alarmingly) of inserting advertising in movie houses?

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Bomb

THERE IS one single, simple, central fact about the hydrogen bomb that everyone must grasp, if we are not to wander blindly into a new age of nightmare. The mere possibility that this terrible weapon may be built in two or three or four years alters the whole face of world affairs.

This is so, moreover, whether President Truman settles the current controversy within the Government by deciding to build hydrogen bombs, or by refusing to build hydrogen bombs. For no one can be so simple as to suppose that the Kremlin will shrink back from constructing the absolute weapon just because we have shrunk back. Nor should anyone wishfully assume that the Kremlin will not have the know-how for the job.

Indeed, the leading Soviet physicist, Peter Kapitza, is one of the world's two or three greatest authorities on the major problem of the hydrogen bomb—the behavior of materials at very high and very low temperatures. We may hope to build such bombs sooner than the Soviets. But we must expect the Soviets to be able to build them in the end. In short, unless the whole world situation radically changes, the existence of a hydrogen bomb will, sooner or later, become one of the facts of world strategy and politics.

THIS NEW fact will in turn violently affect all the old facts, causing most current political and strategic assumptions to become outworn or groundless. And this is so because the construction of a hydrogen bomb will represent mankind's final, suicidal triumph—the harnessing of the inmost secret of creation for purposes of unimaginable destructions.

In brief, the process that makes the sun the source of life is nuclear fusion, rather than nuclear fission. In the sun's intense heats, the lower elements in the electronic table continuously combine into the more inert elements of medium electronic weight. Vast energies are released in this process of fusion. Vast heats are needed to make fusion occur.

A hydrogen bomb is now possible, simply because the uranium-plutonium bomb briefly generates heats as great as those of the interior of the sun, from 1 million to 10 million degrees. The principle of the hydrogen bomb, which is known to physicists the world over, is to use uranium-plutonium fission as a trigger. Fission of the uranium-plutonium will generate the needed heat. The heat will send hydrogen nuclei crashing into the hearts of other atoms. The nuclear fusion will continue therafter, with hundreds of thousands of times the destructive force of nuclear fission, until the whole charge of the bomb has been consumed.

There is one main characteristic of the hydrogen bomb that sets it wholly apart from the uranium-plutonium bomb. It is "open-ended," as the physicists put it. In other words, there is no critical size that places a limitation on its power. It can be built, in theory at least, to any size desired. In short, the ability to build such a bomb is, in theory, the ability to blow up the earth.

THIS KIND of Caligula-madness is no danger, of course. The problem of delivery alone imposes its restrictions on hydrogen bombs, as well as on other bombs. The weapons presently being discussed are expected to be capable of devastating approximately 100 square miles. No doubt the same scientific progress that has already produced uranium-plutonium bombs six times more effective than the primitive Hiroshima model, can also be used to give us bigger and better hydrogen bombs. But this will not make matters much worse.

The danger lies, rather, in the nature of the weapon that is now being discussed. For example, the Atomic Energy Commission's experts have been seriously investigating the question whether a relatiyely small number of hydrogen bombs would not poison the world-atmosphere with their radioactive by-products, and thus destroy all life on earth. (It will be remembered that the scientists once estimated that only 10,000 of the thousand times less powerful Hiroshima bombs would produce this result.)

The fact that the 'nvestigators' answer was in the negative does not alter the basic principle. Harnessing creation's inner secret for purposes of destruction is a terrible act, whose consequences cannot be foreseen. In one way or another, it is a menace to the order of nature.

This in turn creates a cruel, circular dilemma. On the one hand, it is intolerable to let the Soviets build hydrogen bombs while we shrink back, because this amounts to acceptance of ultimate surrender to the Soviet Union. On the other hand, it is equally intolerable for such a weapon to be competively manufactured by two hostile world systems. And it is because they offer no way out of this dilemma, that the old assumptions of world politics and strategy are now obsolescent.

lynch purovision to the measure. Langer promised to offer, later, two other civil rights amendments, antipoll tax and fair employment practices proposals.

Langer made a rousing appeal for his measure. He said he was offering the Democratic Party "at long last" to the affection "the great Democratic heart says it has for the poor people—for the depressed."

He also offered a resolution asking a Judiciary Committee investigation of charges that the Democratic Party has put civil rights lobbyists on the public payroll. He said the Democrats had played politics with civil rights.

In answer, Senator Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.) admitted that his party had "played politics" with the issue, but added, "so had the Republican Party."

Holland's talk closed the oleo debate for the day, Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) got the floor for a speech on Formosa. Before it ended, however, the Senate had acted on three other amendments:

1. It turned down by 56 to 33 an amendment by Senator Guy Cordon (R., Ore.) to repeal the 3 percent tax on freight and express shipments—a measure urged by farmers, who ship large amounts of commodities and livestock.

2. Refused, by voice vote, to cut back excise taxes on furs, jewelry, luggage, telephone bills, theater admissions and trains, airplane and other transportation to 1942 levels, asked by Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D., Wash.).

3. Accepted an amendment by Senator J. Allen Frear, jr. (D., Del.), that would limit oleo packages to one pound in weight, and require that it be packed in triangular-shaped pats.

Quick House Vote Is Sought In Fight Over Rule Change

bility" of House action Thursday or Friday, but said he could not yet say when the resolution would come up.

Promises a Caucus

The Speaker promised a seven-man group of Truman Democrats led by Representative Herman P. Eberharter (D., Pa.), original author of the 21-day rule, that a caucus of House Democrats will be convened before the House acts on the rules change.

"I assume," Rayburn later told newsman, "that a motion will be made (at the caucus) to bind Democrats members (against the rules change.)"

Members of Eberharter's seven-man "strategy" group, leading the fight against the Rules Committee's power play, apparently were taking no chances.

Following their conference with the speaker, Eberharter and Representative Chet Holifield (D., Calif.) issued an appeal to all House members interested in upholding the 21-day rule to stay close to the House this week.

"In view of the parliamentary situation which obtains in this matter, it is important that every member of the House be present Thursday and Friday."

Others at Conference

Other members of the Administration "strategy" group who sat in with Eberharter and Holifield on the Rayburn conference were: Representative Mike Kirwan (Ohio), Mike Mansfield (Mont.), John A. Carroll (Colo.), Walter K. Granger (Utah) and Rules Chairman Sabath.

Speaker Rayburn told newsmen that when the time come for him to rule, he will strictly follow "the rules and precedents of the House."

In other quarters it was learned that the Cox-led coalition move in the Rules Committee to take the resolution out of Sabath's hands, and force it to a House vote before next Monday's otherwise possible FEPC showdown, was based on a little-known provision of the rule book.

This provides that only the member "designated by the Committee on Rules" may call up a resolution within seven days after it is reported to the House.

Summoned by the Rules Committee, House Parliamentarian Lewis Deschler was said to have pointed this out to members during yesterday's committee wrangle. Sabath contended, however, that the rule clearly provided that the member reporting the rule (in this case Sabath himself) had control of the resolution.

Then Representative William M. Colmer (D., Miss.) tossed the coalition's bombshell—a motion directing Cox to take the rules change to the floor.

Sabath pounded his gavel, declared the meeting had adjourned and burst out of the room. The coalition, and one or two Administration members, lingered on, however, and Cox put the Colmer resolution to a vote.

These seven members, comprising the coalition, were said to have voted for it: Cox, Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), Colmer, Leo R. Allen (R., Ill.), Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio), James W. Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) and Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.).

These two reportedly voted "NO" — John McSweeney (D., Ohio) and John E. Lyle, jr. (D., Texas).

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass.) later told reporters the House Republican Policy committee was predominantly opposed to calling up the rules change this week.

He said GOP policy-makers were mostly in favor of the rules change but did not want it called up until the House had at least one more chance next Monday to discharge FEPC or other legislation from the Rules committee.

"It is a little unfair on the eve of a ball game to call that ball game off," said the GOP leader, who has scheduled a conference of all House Republicans for today.

The House floor row that followed the Rules committee meeting raged back and forth around a charge by Cox that Sabath had personally agreed to call the resolution up on Thursday. In event Sabath was absent, Cox said Sabath had consented to Cox calling up the resolution.

Sabath replied that he did not "think" he would call the resolution up Thursday and "did not remember" ever saying he would.

Protests against the rules change meanwhile were rolling in, in the form of wires, letters and public statements.

1. Robert Heller, chairman of the National Committee for Strengthening Congress, termed it "an ill-considered move to abolish the 21-day rule and to put autocratic power into the hands of the Rules committee." Heller appealed to the House "not to undo the good work it did last session in limiting the arbitrary powers" of the Rules group.

2. Officials of 10 national organizations in a letter to all House members said they would regard a vote to restore the rules group's "dictatorial" powers as a vote "against the best interests of the American people." Officers of ADA, CIO, AFL, International Association of Machinists, American Veterans Committee, NAACP and other organizations signed the letter.

3. AFL President William Green and AFL Secretary-Treasurer George Meaney sent this wire to House members following a conference of the AFL National Legislative Council: "A motion unanimously adopted instructed the undersigned to protest the proposed change in the House rules permitting a few members of the Rules Committee to prohibit the House from considering legislation vital to the Nation."

hand of John L. behind the "wildcat" strikes; others believe that the miners are simply weary of Lewis' tactics, working three days and striking three, and prefer to strike all week long, for as many weeks as it takes to win the new contract.

In Washington, Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, is expected today to decide whether to press operators' charges of unfair labor practices — under the Taft-Hartley Act—against John L. and the United Mine Workers. It is generally believed Denham will go to court and seek an injunction which would have the effect of breaking up the three-day work-week tactics.

Whether such an injunction would bring about a five-day work week is yet to be seen.

Other coal developments yesterday:

Crucible Steel Co. cut its production by 25 percent at its Midland, Pa., plant, laid off 1000 workers, blamed the action on a lack of coal.

The store-operating subsidiary of U. S. Steel shut off credit to striking miners. Officials said they couldn't afford to let the bills pile up anv longer.

Miners were feeling the pinch. Athalone Brown, a UMW official at Brownville, Pa., said: "We're sending our children to school hungry around here." Relief applications are flooding the Pennsylvania Department of Public Assistance.

There were more calls to the President to invoke the Taft-Hartley Act against the miners, and thereby force them to work the regular five-and-six-day week for at least a period of 80 days while new efforts were made to settle the contract dispute. Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) declared that blizzard conditions and a coal shortage threatened a crisis in his State.

Representative August H. Andersen (R., Minn.) insisted there was an emergency in southern Minnesota. The Pittsburgh Retail Coal Merchants Association said its bins were almost empty and appealed to the President to intervene.

U. S. Role In Integrating Europe

ANY PREDICTION as to what the Russians will do tomorrow or next year is risky business. About all that is possible is to observe recent performance and judge accordingly.

Childs

The significant aspect of the past three months is the remarkably quiet demeanor of the Soviets at those points where they come into contact with the West. This is conspicuously true of Berlin. That divided city has hardly been in the news at all.

Consider the contrast with two years ago when a series of increasingly provocative incidents built up toward the blockade. Berlin and the German issue were on the front pages. Then came the air lift and the thrill of watching America's technology in the air defeat the Soviet Union.

Now against this background of quiet, an absence of threat and shock and headline incident, we have President Truman's budget with foreign spending considerably pared. And we have an economy-minded Congress that may in an election year carelessly flail about with the economy axe.

The combination can be bad. It might mean that the movement toward recovery started in western Europe with American help will be stalled or even pushed back. Cuts carved too deeply into European aid, German occupation and the military program for Europe will mean a dangerous gamble with the future.

FOR ECA the President has requested $3,100,000,000 for fiscal 1951—more than a billion under the amount for the current year. Should Congress cut this very much below $2,500,000,000, it would be felt immediately in the slowing down of Europe's reconstruction.

But beyond immediate consideration of programs already launched is a much bigger question and some of the junior officials in ECA have begun to think and to talk about this larger question. In simplest form it is: What happens after June of 1952 when the recovery program ends?

The drive being directed by ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman is to free trade in Europe of the old hampering barriers. One move in this direction is to create a special fund out of ECA appropriations that will make it possible to convert European currencies freely between one country and another. That, it is hoped, will remove a major obstacle.

At the same time, Hoffman and his assistants are working to end the dual price system. Under that system one price is charged to customers at home and another and higher price to customers abroad. Thus, British coal costs more on the Continent than it does in Great Britain.

But even if all the obstacles are removed, Europe will in all likelihood need American aid after 1952. It is on this belief that the thinking for the longer future is now being based.

IN DEMANDING integration, this country may well be asking Europe to do the impossible. Under present circumstances, with Germany divided and east-west trade merely a trickle, a western European federation would eventually fall under German domination. That is a hazard France cannot accept.

Western Europe can integrate only on one condition—that the United States become a part of the economic union. This is beginning to happen militarily through the military assistance program. But it must happen on the economic side if integration in any real sense is to occur.

When the problem is posed this way, it becomes clear that a great new forward step in American foreign policy is rapidly becoming an urgent necessity. Something like a customs union for the Atlantic community is called for.

Such steps in the past decade always have been preceded by extensive preparation. Through public committees, opinion has been educated to realize the need for the new step. But in the past another element also has been present—an active threat from a menacing enemy abroad.

There are times when no news is news. Perhaps this is one of those periods with Berlin and the erstwhile danger points dropping below the level of American awareness. As the old maxim has it, out of sight is out of mind.

The Business Outlook

Eccles' Victory Over McCabe Is Really Defeat in Disguise

By J. A. Livingston

EVER SINCE Thomas B. McCabe became chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, succeeding Marriner S. Eccles, who was unceremoniously relieved by President Truman on January 26, 1948, a contest for control of Reserve policy has been going on between two strong men.

Until recently, the struggle was decorous. Above the surface, harmony prevailed. But on December 2, Eccles sent a letter to Senator Paul H. Douglas (Dem., Ill.), who as chairman of a Subcommittee of the Joint Economic Committee was investigating monetary and credit policies. Eccles declared that Secretary of the Treasury Snyder's "easy-money bias" had become an engine of inflation threatening to engulf the country in economic disaster.

Livingston

Eccles did not clear the statement with McCabe or other members of the board. He acted on his own and contrary to McCabe's policy of showing his public statements to other board members. McCabe wants to be sure that he, as board chairman, is conforming to board policy.

That characterizes the two men. Eccles is an individualist. He holds strong views, bursts out with them. When chairman of the board, he was the dominant figure on the board. He has the reputation of forcing his opinion down others' throats.

McCabe, a super salesman, rose to the presidency of Scott Paper Co. through his ability to "win friends and influence people." When called to testify before the Douglas Subcommittee, he emphasized that the Reserve Board and the Treasury had worked cooperatively.

WHAT IF THEY didn't get along? Douglas wanted to know.

There are three steps, answered McCabe. First, persuasion; we'd try to resolve our differences amicably. Second, if that didn't work, we'd appeal to the President to arbitrate the differences. Finally, we'd appeal to Congress for a directive, if necessary.

Newspapermen and headline writers hailed the subcommittee's report as a "victory for Eccles." The report called on Congress for a directive saying that "the primary power and responsibility for regulating the supply, availability, and cost of credit in general shall be vested in the duly constituted authorities of the Federal Reserve System, and that Treasury actions relative to money, credit, and transactions in the Federal debt shall be made consistent with the policies of the Federal Reserve." This would be merely a reaffirmation of Federal Reserve Act.

The irony is that it was Eccles who was "defeated." He "surrendered" to the Treasury's cheap money policy. When McCabe took over he merely carried on the Eccles postwar policy of supporting United States Government bond prices and keeping interest rates down.

ACTUALLY, of course, there is neither victory, defeat, nor surrender. Eccles, McCabe, and Douglas are products—victims—of their times. During the war, the Treasury had a huge deficit to finance. The Federal Reserve submitted to the overriding military needs of the Nation, not to the Treasury's desires of theories, and supported the United States bond market.

Now conditions are changing. The Federal Reserves must consider not only interest rates but the supply of credit. Yet the Reserve cannot forget that the Federal debt has become a dominant part of United States economic life and, hence, a more important factor in credit and monetary policy than it was, say, in 1929. Then the Federal debt constituted only 12 percent of total outstanding Government and corporate debt. Today it amounts to 63 percent of the Nation's security debt structure, viz:

Year	Federal Debt	Federal State & Local Gov't., & Corporate Debt	Federal Debt as % of Total
	In Billions
1929	$ 17.5	$141.7	12.4%
1939	50.1	156.9	31.9
1946	272.1	397.3	68.5
Todays*	257.0	410.0	63.0

*Partly estimated.

The ownership of Federal securities is widely diffused. Individuals own 69 billions. Commercial banks, insurance companies, savings banks, savings and loan associations own over 100 billion. Obviously, any decline in the market value of U. S. Governments would reduce the assets of banks and insurance companies. It might cause a wave of selling, even panic.

Therefore, neither the Reserve Board nor the Treasury can permit rapid change in interests rates which might unsettle the bond market. So the issue on which the Douglas Subcommittee seems to be passing is not whether the Reserve Board dominates the Treasury or vice versa, but whether the shift in postwar interest rate policy has been rapid enough to suit Eccles or Douglas. If Douglas or Eccles had the final responsibility for making the decision, would they be as bold as their public statements?

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Jan. 17 (AP).—Grains held firm in today's Board of Trade session on short covering and some commercial buying. Cash houses bought during the early part of the session and observers said this was traceable to overnight sales of flour to domestic buyers.

Other grains followed the lead of wheat and at the close wheat was ⅜ to ½ cent higher, corn was ¼ to ⅝ higher, oats were unchanged to ⅜ higher, rye was ¾ to 1¾ higher, soybeans were unchanged

$100 Pension Plan Offered By Chrysler

Detroit, Jan. 17 (AP).—Chrysler Corp. today became the second major automobile firm to offer its hourly rated employes $100 a month pensions.

The CIO-United Auto Workers union left little doubt, however, that it would reject the offer.

Like Ford, which signed the first pension settlement in all heavy industry last September, Chrysler offered to make up the cost of $100 a month benefits not provided through Federal Social Security benefits. It set the same retirement age—65—and cut the required years of service from 30 under the Ford plan to 25.

The plan would cover Chrysler's 89,000 hourly rated employes.

Differences between the Ford and Chrysler plans were believed responsible for the union's refusal to accept Chrysler's first offer.

Norman Matthews, UAW's national Chrysler director, had threatened to hand the company a seven-day strike notice tomorrow unless "satisfactory" progress was made by them. He is expected to hand the company this notice when negotiations resume at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

These were believed to be the objectionable provisions from the union's viewpoint:

1. Chrysler's suggestion that its present contract with the UAW, which runs to August 1, be extended for five years with a wage reopening at the request of either party once a year. The new Ford contract runs for two-and-a-half years, the longest in automotive history.

2. Lack of improvement in the contributory hospital and medical programs now in effect.

3. No union representation in administration of the plan.

Truman Schedules 2 June Speeches In Missouri

The White House yesterday announced two speaking engagements for President Truman in Missouri next June.

He will speak June 9 at the University of Missouri at Columbia, where he also will receive an honorary degree. He will speak at St. Louis June 10 at the dedication of the site of the Jefferson National Memorial.

He will go from Columbia to St. Louis on the afternoon of June 9. In St. Louis that night and the following day he also will participate in the annual reunion of the Thirty-fifth Division, his World War I outfit.

Savings Up 22.6% In S. & L. Units

Chicago, Jan. 17 (AP).—Individual savings in savings and loan associations throughout the country has pushed to an all time high of nearly $12,500,000,000, it was announced today.

The United States Savings and Loan League said such savings increased $1,408,000,000 in 1949. This was 22.6 percent above 1948 and represents the greatest year to year increase ever recorded for the business.

Ten years ago, savings accumulated by account holders of savings associations totaled only $4,500,000,000.

Witness Starts Talking

said he was testifying "voluntarily."

King was recalled to the witness stand late yesterday afternoon and identified by Prosecutor William Hitz as one of the seven persons who refused to testify Monday on grounds of self-incrimination.

"I'll ask you again today," Hitz said, "have you ever played the numbers with Attilio Acalotti?"

The crowded courtroom hushed as King answered "yes."

"Any particular number," Hitz asked.

"I only played one number," That was 144."

"How often did you play?"

"Every day."

"In what amount?"

"Half a dollar."

"Did you ever hit?"

"No, sir."

King testified that his wife, "Sis," also played the numbers regularly with Acalotti.

Both King and his wife have been repeatedly identified from the witness stand as Acalotti customers by Bernice Franklin, Acalotti's former girl friend, who turned state's evidence 11 months ago to become the Government's star gambling witness.

Miss Franklin testified again yesterday, just before King took the stand, that she regularly took numbers bets from the Kings when she was living with Acalotti and "helping him take numbers and horse bets."

Judge Alexander Holtzoff denied a defense motion for a mistrial, demanded by all four defense attorneys, yesterday afternoon.

The motion was made when Hitz, asked why he planned to recall King, said "Because we had every reason to believe he would come down and tell the jury . . ."

"Whoops," Charles E. Ford, attorney for Acalotti, shouted, leaping to his feet. "We move the removal of a juror and the declaration of a mistrial."

Earlier, in identifying other Acalotti customers, Miss Franklin testified that a clerk in the office of the District Tax Collector and her roomer would telephone approximately $50 worth of numbers bets a day to Acalotti.

The clerk was identified by Miss Franklin as Mrs. Lou Quimby, the property clerk in the office of Collector of Taxes Guy W. Pearson.

In the District Building yesterday, Mrs. Quimby denied Miss Franklin's charges. "I never called in any bets. I never did anything like that in my life."

Mrs. Quimby's name entered the seventh day of the gambling trial when Hitz asked Miss Franklin if she could identify the notation "Lou—NA. 6000—ext. 446" in Acalotti's telephone list.

National 6000 at the District exchange and 446 is Pearson's secretary's extension. Pearson said yesterday that during most of 1948, when Miss Franklin said she took numbers bets from Mrs. Quimby, Mrs. Quimby was his acting secretary. Mrs. Quimby said she was not Pearson's secretary at any time during 1948.

Miss Franklin said she had never met Mrs. Quimby. "I knew her as Pop Darling's wife," she said. Darling, a taxicab driver, who refused Monday to testify about his connection with Acalotti on grounds of self-incrimination, rents a room in Mrs. Quimby's apartment, 1216 10th st. nw., Mrs. Quimby explained yesterday.

"Lou would call me every day," Miss Franklin testified. "She would give me bets on the numbers and I would write them down and repeat them back to her."

"Could you give us an approximation of their daily play," Hitz asked.

"I'd say it would average $50 a day on the numbers," she answered.

Hitz introduced in evidence two slips of paper, which Miss Franklin identified as lists of the persons who owed Acalotti money for numbers bets.

The slips contained 14 names, all but one of which she identified, and figures she said represented the money they owed Acalotti. The names, with the amounts were:

"Lucy 60.00." Miss Franklin said Lucy is Mrs. Lucy Jones, cab dispatcher, 520 E st. ne. She testified Monday and denied betting with Acalotti. Miss Franklin testified that she bet from $10 to $20 a day.

"Rose King 245.00." Miss Franklin identified Rose King as the operator of a florist shop at 1817 Columbia rd. nw. Miss Franklin testified that she bet $25 a day. Mrs. King could not be reached last night, but her son, Albert, said that to his knowledge the florist shop telephone had never been used for transmitting numbers bets.

"Johnny 7.75." Miss Franklin identified Johnny as John Tsillis, bartender at the Circle Restaurant at Thomas Circle, where she once worked as a waitress.

She said he would bet from $2 to $10 a week.

"Jim (Cir) 8.00." Jim is Jim Calles, Miss Franklin, said, bartender at the Circle Restaurant, who would bet "about $10 a week" with Acalotti.

"Pop 5.00." This is Leon Tsillis, owner of the Circle Restaurant, Miss Franklin said. "He didn't play daily," she said. "He would average about $15 a week" with Acalotti.

Leon Tsillis said last night, "We don't know anything about it. We never bet here, my friend. That goes for all three of us."

"Rosendorf 10.00." This is Isadore Rosendorf, proprietor of a fur store at 1215 G st. nw., Miss Franklin said. He used to bet $2 a day on the average she said. Rosendorf told this reporter last night that he "occasionally would bet a small amount, a couple of dollars" with Acalotti. "He was a customer here," he said, "and I didn't want to have anything to do with him."

"Fay 44.25." Fay, a girl who worked for Rosendorf, Miss Franklin said. She was not identified further and Rosendorf refused to give her name.

"C. Him—8.00." This is Charles Himmelfarb, Miss Franklin said, co-owner of the Public Liquor Store at 1136 14th st. nw. He would bet with Acalotti "about $10 each time he called, which was not more than twice a week," she said. He could not be reached for comment.

"Walter—12.00." This is Himmelfarb's partner, Walter Sachs, Miss Franklin said. "He didn't play daily," she said. He would bet only $8 or $10 each time he called.

Sachs last night refused to comment.

"Mac—62.35." Miss Franklin identified him as the janitor in the Portland Building near Thomas Circle on 14th st. nw. He would bet "about $20" a week, she testified.

"Mac wife—3.00." She is the wife of the Portland Building janitor, Miss Franklin testified. Her normal bet was "approximately $5," she said. Neither the janitor nor his wife could be reached for comment last night.

"Pop ds—96.00." Miss Franklin said she knew who Pop was but could not give his last name. She said he bet about $15 a week with Acalotti.

"John C—29.25." Miss Franklin said, "I can't identify him."

"Joe—62.00." "I don't know Joe," she said.

Before Miss Franklin testified, C. Monroe Baile, treasurer of Associated Contractors, Inc., 1514 Benning rd. ne., testified that his firm received $6200 in 1947 for the "William Lewis job," which he described as extensive remodeling of one room of a bungalow at 4310 46th ave., Bladensburg, Md., owned by Mrs. Sadie E. Stanton.

The remodeling consisted of "interior repairs, plumbing, heating, air-conditioning, knotty pine paneling, painting, asphalt tiling and electrical work," he said.

It was in this room that deputy marshals arrested Lewis and 13 others on March 25, 1949, and seized what government officials described as "half a ton" of evidence, including more than a dozen adding machines, a race results ticker, hundreds of numbers slips and more than $25,000 in cash.

Lewis and the 13 others were tried in November on charges of conspiracy and operating a lottery. The trial ended in a hung jury and has been rescheduled for February 2.

Marlboro Pike Modernization Asked by Lane

Improvement of Marlboro Pike from Walker Mill rd. to the District line, long sought by residents of the area, moved a step nearer realization yesterday.

Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr., informed the Prince Georges County commissioners that he has directed Chairman Robert M. Reindollar of the Maryland State Roads Commission, to confer with Edgar A. Merkle, chairman of the advisory committee to the county commissioners, and to inspect the proposed improvements.

Also at the meeting yesterday in Upper Marlboro, Merkle urged that Federal funds be solicited to aid in planning several important projects. Among these was completion of Rhode Island ave. from Hyattsville to Beltsville; Arundel rd. from 30th st. to Rhode Island ave.; Colesville rd. from Queen's Chapel rd. to University la.; and River rd. from the Sheppard branch of the B. & O. Railroad to Edmonston rd.

Charter Referendum Urged

A former Falls Church mayor was roundly applauded last night at a public hearing on a proposed new city charter when he criticized "the way in which this (city charter) is being presented without any public referendum."

John F. Bethune of 300 N. Cherry st., handed the city council an implied threat to contest the charter before the State Legislature which must approve it if no referendum is held.

75 Attend Hearing

About 75 persons attended the public hearing continued from last Friday on the proposed new charter which has not yet been approved by the city council.

Mayor Albert M. Orme said in answer to Bethune that he would bring up the matter of a referendum at the next council meeting Monday.

Orme had promised also that a further public hearing on the final charter draft will be held "if there is any substantial objection."

Cites Dissatisfaction

Bethune, mayor of Falls Church some years ago, said he had been "talking around a good deal and I feel there is a good deal of dissatisfaction about the way in which you are presenting this charter."

He said, "I do not doubt that every member of this charter commission has labored honestly . . . in what they consider to be the best interests of the people."

However, Bethune, added, "There are too many complicated and novel procedures, too many departures from the general law, too many endowments of power where some of us think power should not rest at all."

He said there were five places where the city attorney is given veto power over the assessments. The city attorney should not be an administrative officer at all, Bethune contended.

A majority of those who spoke favored an elected school board.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE NEXT TIME you see the kids on the corner lot playing a game of two-knocker or trying to make like Sammy Baugh with a football, don't applaud—shudder. It's not what you think. Fact is, they're being educated in the spirit of hate for humanity, sadism and other beastly instincts that will make them uncontrolled supermen.

Not only that, but they're just the tools of American imperialists, and cannon fodder in the plot for world domination by the United States.

POVICH

So says the Moscow newspaper, Komsomol Pravda, in defining sports conditions in the United States. According to K. Pravda, we're in foul shape, men, and not only that, but sports in America is not available to the workers and farmers because they have neither the money nor time for it.

Not only that, but military considerations dictate the kinds of sport being played in America, says K. P., adding, "American militarists set their hopes on sport because bourgeois sport kills thought, conscience and humanity. It is just this type of 'good soldier' that the imperialists wish to see."

And Pravda also unmasks the Y.M.C.A., which it says is holding physical education classes chiefly to prepare physical instructors for the Army.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS quotes the Moscow Journal as saying American football, hockey, auto races, bike races, motorcycle races and other sports are organized to assure the maximum number of deaths and maimings. It said this is considered a necessary flavoring in order to please the American public.

Thus we learn from Moscow that it matters not who won, but how many were killed, unlike in the Soviet which cherishes the lives and welfare of its athletes, except when they sass an official. In America, for that crime, you get put out of the game for unsportsmanlike conduct with your team penalized half the distance of the field. Sass a Soviet official, and you get Siberia.

On one point of their critique, the Russkis are, indeed, telling the absolute truth. It's about our professional wrestling, when they say "the wrestlers continually are thinking up newer and more repulsive means of shocking spectators." That's where they have us dead right, and as a result wrestling is the best show on television.

BUT OTHERWISE, Moscow's intelligence, if any, on sports in America, is pretty sad. The same sort of military intelligence could lose 'em in the next war in one climactic battle, the first one. Risking treason, we can bring Moscow up to date on some of the conditions, for whatever they may be worth to any potential enemy of the United States.

Moscow, you're underrating us when you say, "In America there can engage in sport only the narrow class of rich students and the relatively small number of professionals." If sport is developing those uncontrollable supermen you speak about, then you have the American masses to fear, not the rich minority or the handful of pros.

And the flavor the Americans like in their sports is not somebody's death, but the flavor of a home run or the 90-yard punt return, apparently. Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio each are paid $100,000 a year and they haven't killed anybody yet. And don't pay any attention to those threats of "kill the umpire." Americans learn that phrase almost as soon as they learn to say "Dada."

AMERICAN FOOTBALL is rough, but scarcely sadistic. When a West Point Cadet named Byrnes was killed playing the game in 1904, the United States public wasn't pleased. In fact, President Teddy Roosevelt told the colleges, "Clean up the game or I'll outlaw it." In the last 46 seasons, one other West Pointer was fatally hurt playing football, certainly one too many but not an alarming average.

The military is probably right about good athletes making good soldiers. The average American kid participates in some form of sports, and a few years ago in history's greatest war, they stood up nicely.

'Tis said, of course, that the Indianapolis speedway crowds are attracted by the macabre hope that a speeding driver might hit the rails and tumble to his doom, but they don't let any green-pea drivers in those races. Only the skilled ones, the same guys whose daring at high speeds helped develop the motors, the tires and the crankshafts that were in those jeeps and tanks that were lend-leased to our allies of the last war who didn't have the know-how.

NCAA Okayed Further Code Study

Boycott Conflicts With Byrd Resolution

New York, Jan. 17 (AP).—The National Intercollegiate Athletic Association's threat today to boycott the seven violators of the sanity code, who won a fight against expulsion here Saturday, is in conflict with a resolution adopted by the convention.

The resolution, introduced by Dr. H. C. (Curly) Byrd of Maryland, called for a special committee to study athletic subsidy practices and report to the 1951 convention.

It added: "Be it resolved that any further action in regard to this matter, or in regard to any specific institution, be deferred until after the report of this committee is received."

The constitution, however, which is the final authority, says:

"The members of the association severally agree: (1) to administer their athletic programs in accord with provisions of this constitution; (2) to schedule intercollegiate contests only with institutions which conduct their athletic programs in conformity with the principles set forth in Article 3 of this constitution; (3) to establish and maintain high standards of personal honor, eligibility and fair play."

Article 3, dealing with the conduct of intercollegiate athletics, contains the sanity code which, in principle, restricts athletic subsidies and specifies an athlete must work for his keep. The sanity code, although rebuffed in Saturday's meeting, remains part of the constitution.

2 Officials Rule Teams Out Under Sanity Code

Chicago, Jan. 17 (U.P.).—Violators of the National Collegiate Athletic Association "sanity code," who escaped expulsion last week, still will be prohibited from participating in future NCAA tournaments or scheduling future athletic contests with members, an official statement revealed today.

The statement, prepared by President Hugh Willett of Southern California and Secretary-Treasurer Kenneth L. Wilson of the Big Ten, said that the violators were not in "good standing, by their own admission," and thus would be barred from competition under the association's constitution.

Institutions involved are the University of Virginia, Virginia Military Institute, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, University of Maryland, Boston College and Villanova.

The seventh school cited for "sanity code" violation, The Citadel, resigned from the NCAA, but still would be barred from future games with members.

The NCAA constitution forbids members to compete with schools not complying with the code.

The seven schools were cited by the NCAA compliance committee for violation of the code, but the move to expel them at last week's NCAA convention failed.

Wilson said that the six questioned NCAA members could become eligible for NCAA tournaments, or could schedule new intercollegiate contests with members simply by clearing themselves with the compliance committee.

He indicated that once the schools comply, it would be a matter of a short time for the compliance committee, under Chairman Clarence Houston of Tufts College, to investigate and restore the schools to good standing.

The official statement said that the "officers interpret the majority vote to terminate the membership of the seven institutions found not to be in compliance . . . to be a vote sustaining the findings of the compliance committee.

Extensions Forbidden

"It is the judgment of your officers that the present status of the six institutions imples:

"(A) That until such time as the charge of noncompliance is lifted by the compliance committee, these members may not participate in national meets or tournaments under auspices of the NCAA.

"(B) That until such time as the charge of noncompliance is lifted by the compliance committee other members of the NCAA who have regard for the observance of the 'conditions and obligations of membership' set forth in Article IV, Section 2 of the constitution will not schedule athletic contests with these six members.

"Contests already scheduled may be played. However, extension of present contracts or agreements will be regarded as new contracts or agreements."

Article IV, Section 2 of the constitution provides that members agree to schedule intercollegiate contests only with such institutions which conduct their athletic programs in conformity with the principles set forth in Article III of the constitution. Article III is the "sanity code."

To Fight to End

Byrd Says Action Lacks Authority

"I'M GOING TO fight this through to the end."

That was the reaction of Dr. H. C. (Curly) Byrd, Maryland University president, last night to yesterday's action on the sanity code by NCAA officials.

Hugh C. Willett of Southern California, NCAA president, and K. L. (Tug) Wilson, secretary-treasurer, announced in Chicago that the seven violators of the code still face boycott by the NCAA. Maryland is one of the violators.

"What I am fighting for is to see all of the cards on the table," Byrd said. "We want to see them there so that all schools can honorably and honestly say whether they are complying with the code.

"Actually, we are not in violation of the code. We are listed as being in violation simply because I did not answer an NCAA questionnaire asking a "yes" or "no" question as to whether we were complying.

"As to yesterday's action by Willett and Wilson, they have no authority to issue such a statement of policy. The constitution of the association vests that authority in the 15-man council. (Byrd is a member of the council.)

"I CAN ASSURE you that the council will fulfill its function. At last week's meeting in New York, the council agreed to meet early in March. The council then will determine what the policy is to be in this matter."

Byrd said that the surprising action by Willett and Wilson yesterday "looked as if they are trying to prevent a complete breakdown of the NCAA.

"Their objective is good," he said, "but they are going about it the wrong way."

Willett and Wilson said that Maryland and some of the other violators "may be now in compliance." They also made it clear that it would be relatively easy for the violators to return to the good graces of the NCAA, if they announced they now were complying with the code.

"I told them in New York that Maryland is complying with the code," Byrd said, "but I guess they feel they have to get it in writing."

AT CHARLOTTESVILLE, Colgate W. Darden, jr., president of the University of Virginia, said the whole matter would be discussed thoroughly Friday when the monthly meeting of the 14-member board of visitors will be held.

Darden said he couldn't make any statement until then.

Asked if he thought that Virginia would withdraw from the NCAA before it would ask for clearance by the compliance committee, Darden said, "I honestly don't know. I don't think anyone will know until after our meeting Friday."

University of Virginia Athletic Director Norton G. Pritchett said that he considered the action to be "very undemocratic."

"Such action would require the sanction of both the executive committee and the council," Pritchett said, and he added that neither was in session last Saturday in New York.

"I would think that any such attempt at this time would be out of line and very unwise, particularly in view of the resolution passed at New York last Saturday," Pritchett declared.

Hoyas Hand Siena 2d Loss In 17, 47-42

Albany, N.Y., Jan. 17 (AP).—Georgetown University's basketball team repulsed repeated rallies to subdue Siena College tonight, 47 to 42.

Georgetown boasted a 24-22 edge at halftime and remained in front, except for a 26-all deadlock in the early minutes of the last half. Siena spurted in the closing minutes to narrow the visitors' advantage from 12 to 5.

It was the sixth victory in 10 starts for the Hoyas from Washington, D. C. The loss was only the second in 17 for Siena, unbeaten until it tangled with Niagara last Wednesday.

Washington's Tommy O'Keefe did some neat guarding to hold Siena's Ed Lange to five points, while he accumulated 10 to share Georgetown's scoring honors with Capt. Dick Falvey.

Kivus Awarded Al Blozis Trophy at Georgetown

Jack Kivus, 23-year-old 160-pound halfback, last night was awarded the first Al Blozis Memorial Trophy by Rev. Hunter Guthrie, S. J., president of Georgetown.

The students themselves got up the award as a lasting tribute to 245-pound Blozis, one of Georgetown's greatest athletes. Blozis, world record-holder in the shotput and a stellar collegiate and professional tackle, was killed by machinegun fire in the Vosges Mountains of France on January 31, 1945.

Kivus, senior from Mankato, Minn., received a replica of the 11-inch sterling silver bowl that will remain at Georgetown.

He was selected by a five-man committee, composed of the Rev. Joseph Cohalen, S. J., assistant faculty director; athletic director Jack Hagerty, football coach Bob Margarita, Dr. James E. Leahigh, and Jerry Collins, representing the Student Council.

The award will be given annually to a member of the football squad who stands out in scholarship and extracurricular activities.

Quiet, hard working Kivus, majoring in accounting in the foreign service school, has a B average. He's been a bulwark on defense and trailed only Tommy Hardiman in pass interceptions.

'D. C. Treats Me Nasty,' Says Mikan

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The great George Mikan is plenty sore about the "nasty treatment" he's been getting from Washingtonians. He aims to take it out on the Caps tonight when he and the Minneapolis Lakers play them at 8:30 at Uline Arena.

"I don't know why the newspapers in Washington call me names and give me such shabby treatment," Mikan told The Washington Post by telephone from Boston yesterday. "I've always tried to be nice to them.

"I think it all started during the championship playoffs in Washington last spring," recalled Mikan. "I broke my hand, and everybody yelled that I was looking for sympathy.

"Even the members of my team were wondering what I had done to deserve such nasty treatment. Even the Washington fans got on my neck. Maybe that's part of the game, I don't know," said the National Basketball Association's scoring leader.

"When I come to Washington, I try to be extra nice. I appear on radio and television shows, but it doesn't do me any good. I don't get kicked around like that anywhere else in the circuit," concluded the 6-foot 10-inch former De Paul University All-America.

He didn't say that the treatment has anything to do with the fact that the Caps' Jack Nichols outscored him in the Lakers' two previous appearances in Washington this season.

In the two games at Uline, Nichols outscored Mikan, 19-14, and 22-21. In Minneapolis, Mikan hit for 35 points to 12 for Nichols.

In a 7:25 p. m. preliminary, The Washington Post-Evening Star-Daily News All Stars meet the Times-Herald and Associated Press in a "basketball" game.

Lakers Romp, 105-79 As Mikan Scores 22

Boston, Jan. 17 (AP).—The Minneapolis Lakers completely outclassed the Boston Celtics tonight as they handed out a 105-79 trouncing in a National Basketball Association game. It was the first time this season that a team had gone over the century mark in Boston. George Mikan, was the top scorer for the Lakers with 22 points.

North Carolina State whipped the No. 3 combine, Long Island University, 55-52, in the opening game of a double-header before 18,000 Madison Square Garden fans.

Ray Scarborough Again Rejects Nats' Salary Cut

Pitcher Ray Scarborough's salary wrangle with the Washington club continued unabated yesterday when he flatly rejected terms of a second contract offered him.

At his Mount Olivet, N. C., home, the pitcher announced he had returned unsigned the team's newest offer. "I thought I deserved a raise instead of a cut," said Scarborough, the Nats' top pitcher last season.

Vice President Calvin Griffith of the Nats declared he had not yet been advised of Scarborough's dissatisfaction with the latest offer. "I'll have something to say after his letter reaches my desk," said Griffith.

'Awfully Tired' Ben Hogan Faces Snead in Playoff Today

Los Angeles, Jan. 17 (AP).—Golf star Ben Hogan was pictured as "awfully tired" today on the eve of his 18-hole play-off with Sam Snead for the victory laurels of the Los Angeles Open Tournament.

Snead, on the other hand, was described as in robust health as the two headliners of the sport spent a comparatively easy day before their belated duel at the Riviera Country Club at 3:30 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time) tomorrow.

"Ben is all right but he's awfully tired," said Mrs. Hogan, his attractive wife, as she waited to accompany him to the club for a practice round.

"The freezing weather during the Crosby tournament took a lot out of him," she said. She referred to conditions over the weekend during the pro-amateur tournament staged on the Monterey Peninsula in northern California by Singer Bing Crosby.

The rivals and the expected gallery of thousands, meanwhile, got a break from the weatherman. He switched signals from a previous forecast and predicted clear skies and no rain tomorrow.

A mere $700 rides with the winner in the play-off, but more pointed is the rivalry between the two and the attempt by Hogan to cap his initial comeback tournament in triumph.

Seriously injured in a highway crash 11 months ago, Hogan amazed the Nation with his performance in the Los Angeles tournament. He shot rounds of 73, 69, 69, 69 for a 72-hole score of 280.

He had the trophy and the first prize of $2600 all but tucked in his pocket. Then Snead rumbled in from the rear with a last-round 5-under-par 66, the lowest of the tournament, and knotted the score with a spectacular 15-foot putt on the eighteenth green.

He Has No Yen for Money

Matman Togo Dreams of Birds, Bees

Servant Burns Incence at Ring

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

SOMEBODY call the wagon, please. Serves me right, too. I knew something would happen if I kept potting around with wrestling.

HAIGHT

I arrived at the office feeling pert. So what happens? Now I'm ready to follow the advice of the popular song, "Dreamer's Holiday," which begins, "Clim aboard a butterfly—."

And you'll have to admit I wouldn't be long changing that tune to "Poor Butterfly," if you know what I mean.

Most wrestling handouts are horrible enough to make the mind-shocking movie "Snake Pit" seem like a soul-inspiring sunken garden.

So you can imagine my utter amazement when I emptied the envelop containing the publicity for tonight's show at Turner's Arena and instead of usual wordy reference to villians, man-eaters, bone-crushers, killers, etc, I found an elaborate brochure on the subject "The Great Togo."

Now I never thought I'd live to read about a wrestler and hum "Hearts and Flowers" at the same time.

I don't know how great is this Togo but the guy who fathered this gaudy pamphlet has been around as much as Bill Rose.

He's got me writing with tears in my eyes. Get out your handkerchief and join me in a few excerpts, to wit:

"This world looks different to The Great Togo of Japan than to most people. To him it is a beautiful place of green plants, lovely flowers, spreading tres, rich soil and spacious homes filled with happy thoughts—."

(Not a monetary thought in his fat head.)

"Probably no other wrestler has his psychology. When he takes a leverage it is to do or die; there is no happy medium with The Great Togo—."

(Don't they write the script in Japanese?)

"Togo grew up in Japan under much different circumstances than his Nippon brothers. Wealth, servants and high respect were all around him——"

Tonight's Wrestle Program

Mae Weston meets Vivian Viann in a featured girls match at Turner's tonight to determine an opponent for women's champion Mildred Burke. The great Togo tangles with Tony Martinelli in the co-feature. A two-man team match pits Irish Jack Kelly and Tiny Mills against Dick Trout and Ace Freeman. Ivan Kamaroff takes on Miguel Torres of Mexico City in preliminaries.

Japanese Has Tombstone Ready

"Before Togo enters the ring, his servant, Hata, goes before him and burns incense . . . and a piece of white cardboard is folded four ways like a tombstone. This Togo places in his corner as a marker in case he is killed during the match."

(All this trouble and W. W. Chambers is only two blocks away.)

"One of his greatest matches was with Chin-lin, the Manchurian giant. He was outweighed 100 pounds. The match was held in Harbin in China, before 35,000 people and lasted four hours—."

(The AP called the crowd 34,999 and the time 3:58½. I hate exaggeration.)

"Togo has a 22-inch neck and shoulders as broad as a window. He is a savage antagonist and everything he does is for his honorable ancestors—."

(Don't kid me. He probably has a bay window as broad as mine and he can't eat ancestors.)

Kurowski Named Lynchburg Pilot

Maryland Shuffles Racing Dates

Bill Bennings . . .

Dear Folks:

I suggest you clip and paste in your hat the new line-up of racing dates in Maryland. Better consult them before leaving for the track. Wouldn't seem like Maryland to head for Laurel on April Fools' Day or to Bowie on Armistice Day. By the way, the horsemen didn't get what they wanted even if Havre de Grace did. The owners and trainers, who were battling to get Bowie, Pimlico and the Graw to run consecutive days, not only failed in that but Laurel ends up with a split meeting, too. This means more expensive shipping from track to track. The dates weren't shuffled, they were pulverised.

—BILL.

Bowie Split, Laurel Gets Early Meet

Baltimore, Jan. 17 (AP).—Maryland horse racing tracks did a fancy juggling act with 1950 dates today to avoid as much double billing as possible with New Jersey.

The Maryland Race Commission virtually reversed the field at the request of Havre De Grace which pleaded it couldn't "compete with Garden State and live."

The commission already had parceled out dates to the four-mile tracks last month. Two weeks ago New Jersey adopted its schedule competing with Havre De Grace, Pimlico and Laurel.

Bowie, the fourth track out of the competition and in Southern Maryland, was satisfied. But Milton A. Reckord, president of Havre de Grace, complained that all the tracks should share the competition and he proposed such a schedule.

The commission approved it although it is scrambled beyond any recognition with past Maryland dates. All four tracks will operate split meetings, Laurel doing so for the first time since it opened in 1911.

Bowie loses its traditional opening spring meeting that was financially better last year than its fall session. Laurel, worst financial sufferer last year, got the early dates that Bowie had taken for 20 years despite the threat of poor weather.

Instead, Bowie will have two fall meetings, the final running into December. Havre de Grace will run 16 days at its own track in the spring and take its other nine with Pimlico.

In all, the four tracks will have seven separate meetings out of a total of 100 days. Pimlico's spring meeting combined with Havre de Grace, will be the longest, 21 days, in constrast to Pimlico's abbreviated session of 8 days last year.

Under the new schedule, the four tracks will share 42 days of direct competition with Garden State. Laurel and Havre De Grace will avoid it entirely in their spring meetings, as will Bowie at its final session of the year.

The New Racing Schedule

Laurel, March 25-April 7; Havre de Grace, April 8-26; Pimlico and Havre de Grace, April 29-May 27; Bowie, September 30-October 14; Laurel, October 17-November 1; Pimlico, November 3-17; Bowie, November 18-December 2.

COMMENT—From Pg. 17

NCAA Action 'Unauthorized'

He referred to the resolution of Dr. H. C. Byrd.

DR. WALTER S. NEWMAN, president of Virginia Tech, said that he did not believe the president and secretary of the NCAA had the authority to take such action.

"Inasmuch as the only body that could expel us, the NCAA in regular meeting, did not expel us, I think that we are still members in good standing," Dr. Newman declared.

Athletic Director Frank Summers, of V. M. I., said that his school is "trying to comply and believes in the NCAA." He added:

"I know of no rule that will uphold such action. It looks like that's what they tried to do in New York, and they weren't upheld. Now they're trying to do it another way. We'll just wait and see what happens."

FATHER McKEE, moderator of athletics at Villanova, said in Philadelphia that the memorandum was all news to him and that he had no comment.

At Charleston, S. C., Col. D. S. McAllister, director of student affairs, at The Citadel said:

"We have resigned and are out of the N. C. A. A. and we don't have any further comment."

Same Guy Won $729 Day Before

D. C. Man Cashes $3230 Double

OLDSMAR, Fla, Jan. 17 (AP).—The Sunshine Park daily double paid $3230 today. Only one racing fan had the right combination.

Track officials said a man from Washington, D. C., cashed in the ticket although it might have been held by someone else.

Want to hear some more?

The mutuels window directors said it was the same man who yesterday cashed in one of the four winning daily double tickets which paid $729.70.

Sunshine officials said the man refused to give his name. They described him only as "just an average racing fan."

The winning combination was Academic ridden in the first by Jockey Stanley Lafitte and Say Polly steered by John Dickey in the second.

Oklahoma, Notre Dame Agree To Play Football in 1952-53

NORMAN, OKLA., Jan. 17 (AP).—Notre Dame and Oklahoma, the Nation's two top college football teams of 1949, will meet in a home-and-home gridiron series in 1952 and 1953, it was announced here today.

Charles (Bud) Wilkinson, athletic director and head coach at Oklahoma, said the two teams would play first at Notre Dame on November 8, 1952, and meet in a return game at Owen Field here September 26, 1953.

Although contracts have not been signed and exchanged, Oklahoma President Dr. G. L. Cross said public interest in the game had been so great officials of the two schools decided today to make the announcement public and let the contracts follow later.

The sports-minded head of the Oklahoma institution, himself a former football player, polled the university regents by telephone yesterday and today to clear Oklahoma's half of the announcement.

It will be the first football meeting between the two schools.

Wilson Tests Chamberlain At Uline Today

A Chamberlain basketball squad, that has come of age and found that it can beat somebody besides Bell, gets its new-found hopes for a playoff berth tested when it meets Wilson in the first game of this afternoon's double-header at Uline Arena.

The second game pits winless Bell against Western in what should be a breather for the Red Raiders.

Chamberlain started off the season by nosing out Bell, 38-31, but really gained stature in Interhigh circles by surprising Western, 46-37 last week. Thus, the Volts have a 2-0 record in the Interhigh race and are leading the Southern Division.

Armstrong, Phelps Win

Phelps and Armstrong won their games in yesterday's double-header at the Armory, Phelps beating Dunbar, 53-38, and Armstrong trouncing Cardozo, 51-31.

In the first game, Gerald Little scored 17 points to pace Phelps.

The nightcap saw Gene Lawrence score 17 as Armstrong Tech smashed Cardozo. Willie Gore was high for Cardozo with six points.

Football Clubs Meet Today

Philadelphia, Jan. 17 (U.P.)—Professional football club owners, tired of losing money and tired of arguing with each other, moved in tonight to settle the vast number of problems that developed when the two big leagues merged last month.

And as they get together tomorrow for the first and what may be the hottest meeting of the combined National-American Football League, there is little assurance that they will be able to settle issues to the satisfaction of everyone concerned.

The big trouble is expected to come in the establishment of divisions of the new league. Commissioner Bert Bell has been working for weeks on schedule alignments and has not come up with any arrangement that has been generally acceptable.

Stoll Gets 26, Drake 25, Fort Myer Wins

Ken Stoll and Clyde Drake scored 26 and 25 points as Fort Myer defeated Arlington Hall Station, 63-57, in a Military District of Washington basketball game at Fort Myer. Vin De Mong scored 15 for Arlington, but Fort Myer got its sixth win in seven MDW games.

Dewey, Hogan Hit O'Dwyer On Gambling

New York, Jan. 17.—District Attorney Frank S. Hogan and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey attacked Mayor O'Dwyer's handling of gambling problems in separate statements today.

Hogan, in his first public remarks on the question since the seriousness of the gambling situation in the city was underlined last week by a series of police transfers and demotions, criticized the mayor for saying the New York Police Department was unable to "eliminate scandal" in sports and for recommending that betting be legalized. He characterized the mayor's action as "ill-advised."

In Albany, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey followed up his Monday night attack on the mayor's proposal—which he had labeled as "shocking, immoral and indecent"—by charging the city administration with laxity in the enforcement of antigambling laws.

The Governor said he considered the New York Police Department "the most effective in the world under the proper leadership." He added: "it can enforce any laws the city administration wants enforced. It will always do what it is required to do by the city government."

He indicated he did not intend to intervene in the gambling situation, saying: "18,000 fine cops don't need the help of 800 State police," but he left the door ajar for possible State action with the words:

"I have no complaints or evidence before me. If anyone does file formal charges they will receive careful consideration from the Governor's counsel."

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

ANOTHER night club was added to the local scene last night. The Mardi Gras Restaurant, at 1730 L st. nw., opened their Carnival Room with a musical revue. It's a twice nightly feature, staged by "The Frantic Few," a group which describes itself as a local theatrical organization formed last fall in the interest of theater for Washington.

They are directed by Todd Stanton, who was in "Hand In Glove" and "Follow the Girls" on Broadway. Hal Gould, formerly of 20th Century Fox, is producing it with him. They have concocted a musical revue—in the style of "intimate theater"—full of satirical sketches involving familiar situations, events and people.

The Carnival Room, open now from 8 to 2, has been redecorated and lavishly embellished with colorful Mardi Gras murals. The upstairs dining room looks the same but it's under the new management of Matthew Mezzanotte. He has brought in a native New Orleans chef whose Creole cookery he brags is the authentic New Orleans cuisine. Entertainment in the dining room consists of baritone Robert Murray and the blind pianist, Warren.

La Raspa, the Mexican Hat Dance, ruled in the Carlton Congo Room Monday night as photographers crowded in to get shots of the current dance craze. A group of diplomatic sons and daughters took over the dance floor and the smiling, Mexican Ramos obligingly played variations of the dance for several hours.

Carlos Ramirez, Colombian singer now at the Old New Orleans, danced with Emilia Zuleta, daughter of the Colombian Ambassador. Hortensia Perez de Leon and Fernando Flores, of the Mexican Embassy, devoted enthusiasm and skill to their Latin dances, and Margret Thors was doing her steps with Captain E. M. Ramsey, jr.

DAVID ROSENBERG, who leads the colorful and festive folk dancing at Michel's every Tuesday night, is going to do one of his dances on color television tomorrow. He'll step out in an impersonation of Jan Steen's famous painting, "The Dancers." For the occasion the young devotee of folk customs and dances will wear a duplicate of the costume in the picture, and show how the dancing figure could come to life.

2 Women Win Divorces on Grounds They Had to Live in West Virginia

Elizabeth, N. J., Jan. 17 (AP).—Two New Jersey women won divorces yesterday on charges of cruelty—they said they had to live in West Virginia.

"I'd rather be dead than go back to West Virginia," Mrs. Mary S. New of New Brunswick testified. Mrs. Helen S. Sizemore said she held some similar sentiments.

Both told of wartime romances which started at USO dances in Camp Kilmer. But the bloom wore off, they said, when their new husbands took them home to West Virginia.

Mrs. Sizemore said her husband, Walter, took her to a ramshackle, backwoods house which was shared by nine persons and an assortment of chickens and ducks. The town was not named.

Her in-laws became abusive, she said, when she asked for a spoon or fork instead of just "digging in" at dinner.

She said she slept on a mattress filled with cornstalks, walked a mile for a pail of water, and slept some 15 feet from the pig pen. She stood it for nearly a year.

Mrs. New testified her husband, Marvel, took her to Barboursville, W. Va., where life was miserable. She said he singed her hair with a hot iron, tore her clothing and burned her with a cigarette. She got out after four months.

Fight to Keep U. S. Employes Off Social Security to Resume

The long fight to prevent Federal workers from being covered by Social Security is about to break out again.

The Senate Finance Committee yesterday began hearings on the Administration's bill to expand Social Security coverage. As approved by the House, the bill would bring about 100,000 Government employes under the old-age and survivors insurance system operated by Social Security. These workers are not now covered by any Federal retirement system.

A move will be made in the Senate commitee to cover additional Federal workers who aren't protected by a pension system. However, it will be opposed by several employe groups which will insist that the Civil Service retirement system be broadened to cover all Federal workers.

MASS FIRING: Several thousand war service and temporary clerks here are due to be fired soon on order of the Civil Service Commission. The 15,000 persons who passed the recent general clerical exam will be used to fill the jobs. Those employes who passed the test with reasonably high marks will be certified for permanent appointments. Most of the others will be ordered fired within the next several months.

Among the contenders for the vacancy on the National Labor Relations Board are: Paul Broderick, a Cleveland labor adviser; Ivar Peterson, a secretary to Senator Morse (R., Oreg.) and Paul Stiles, NLRB's chief of its Atlanta office . . . Herbert Angel has been appointed chief of the newly created division of records management in the General Services Administration. He transferred from Navy, where he was director of its office methods division . . . At the Bolling Air Force Base here, Col. H. J. Amen, its commanding officer, has ordered its eating places be referred to as "dining halls."

NOTES: The Senate Post Office & Civil Service Committee will meet today. Subcommittees will be appointed and plans for employe legislation at this session of Congress will be discussed . . . The House committee will hold its first meeting of this season Thursday . . . Carl A. Castelda, a placement officer in the Veterans' Administration, yesterday was awarded a meritorious in-grade promotion. He figured out a new placement system which will save VA about $250,000 annually . . . Representative Paul Cunningham (R., Iowa) yesterday again objected to the bill to raise the Civil Service pensions of employes who retired prior to April 1, 1948. The bill was called up on the unanimous consent calendar. The Rules Committee has been asked to clear it for House action.

VETERANS PREFERENCE: Whether the Veterans Preference Act of 1912 is still in effect is a question the Federal courts must decide.

The Court of Appeals here, in a ruling Monday in the case of Jefferson N. Nelson, said the 1912 Act didn't apply because Nelson was demoted. The 1912 Act, it noted, dealt with lay-offs only. In ruling against Nelson, the higher court said Nelson had filed to exhaust administrative remedies before he appealed to the courts.

In deciding the Nelson case, the Court of Appeals agreed with an earlier decision handed down by a Federal District Court in New York. On the other hand, a Federal court in Boston implied that the 1912 Act was still in effect.

These three cases are among those that have been brought by veterans who have been demoted or fired from Federal jobs. In each case, the veteran bases his case on the 1912 Act. The Government takes the position that the 1944 Veterans Preference Act superseded the 1912 Act.

But if the veterans win their cases and the 1912 Act is declared in effect, the Civil Service Commission will be compelled to revolutionize its lay-off rules to give far greater job security to veterans, and far less to non-veterans.

Incidentally, the House committee tomorrow may discuss the Langer-Klein bill to amend the lay-off regulations to give non-veterans with 10 or more years of service greater job security.

'5-Percenter' Realty Man Indicted in Tax Evasion

H. Gordon Fisher, R. E. Funkhouser, D. C. Businessmen, Charged in Baltimore

Two District businessmen, one described as a "five-per-center," were indicted yesterday by a Federal grand jury in Baltimore on charges of income tax violation.

H. Gordon Fisher, 51, described by the United States Attorney's Office at Baltimore as a "five-per-center," was accused of failing to file an income tax return in 1946. He lives at the Roosevelt Hotel here.

The Baltimore U. S. Attorney's office said another alleged "five-percenter" is also under indictment, but his identity will not be disclosed until he is arrested.

Robert E. Funkhouser, 57, of 5315 Colorado ave. nw., described by the Government as a real estate operator, was indicted yesterday for evading payment of taxes from 1943 to 1947.

The Washington telephone directory lists Fisher as maintaining a broker's office in the Washington Building, but officials there said he had sublet space from a tenant and moved out "several months ago."

Assistant U. S. Attorney Norman P. Ramsey said Fisher in 1946 had a gross income of $5923. The indictment was returned January 10, but was suppressed until Fisher was arrested in Washington and taken to Baltimore.

He is being held in $2500 bond, which he had not posted last night.

Funkhouser was charged with evading income tax payments of $28,821 for the years 1943-47, inclusive. In those years he reported either losses or small income each year, understating his income by $92,000, the indictment said. He was held in $1000 bond, which he had not posted yesterday.

D. C. Coroner Defends His Organization

The District Coroner's office combines the best features of the coroner system with the advantages of the medical examiner setup.

So said Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday in answer to Dr. Richard Ford, 35-year-old head of Harvard University's department of legal medicine, who described the coroner's office as outmoded and time consuming.

Dr. Ford has been assigned to appraise the District coroner setup here for the special House committee investigating Washington crime and law enforcement.

Well Versed in Medicine

Dr. MacDonald remarked that one of the main features of the medical examiner setup is the requirement that the medical examiner be trained in traumatic pathology—study of the physical effects of injuries.

In the District, Dr. MacDonald pointed out, the coroner and his two deputies, Dr. Richard M. Rosenberg and Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, are well versed in traumatic pathology.

Dr. Rosenberg has taught pathology at Georgetown University Medical School where all three studied medicine. Dr. MacDonald has had 31 years' experience with medical crime detection in the coroner's office.

Although the law here does not require the coroner to be a doctor, Dr. MacDonald said he could not recall that any appointee had ever been a man without a medical degree.

Defends Coroner's Jury

As to the coroner's jury which still prevails here and is eliminated in the medical examiner setup, Dr. MacDonald said:

"The coroner's jury with the coroner presiding as a committing magistrate is a system where all relevant evidence can be introduced. All facts can be brought out.

"If the jury acquits, it clears up cases that otherwise would have to wait for the grand jury. If it holds a suspect for the grand jury, it helps the Government prepare its case, since the evidence is reduced to sworn testimony."

Woman Grows Lemons as Big As Grapefruit in Virginia Home

The Washington Post

AND A LOVERLY BUNCH OF LEMONS—Mrs. Mary Vavala, of Route 1, between Groveton and Fort Belvoir, Va., displays her homegrown lemons, almost the size of grapefruit

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

"Some men have green fingers. Plants like them. They can make things grow because they love them."—Cloete

And such a one is Mrs. Mary Vavala of Fairfax County, Va., whose love of green things has become almost a problem: they are growing her out of house.

Taking up the most house room during the winter is a 6-foot lemon tree, which Mrs. Vavala got out of a plant catalog.

The catalog advised her to "grow your own lemons"—and sure enough, she can. She got her tree as a "slip" from the plant catalog company (she doesn't remember its name) about six or seven years ago. It has been bearing every year.

Right now it is covered with lemons the size of grapefruit. Mrs. Vavala is keeping it indoors during the cold weather but will move it outside when spring comes.

In her tiny home between Groveton and Fort Belvoir, Mrs. Vavala also has a mass of other greeneries. Among them is a gardenia plant big enough to fill a wash tub, which she started from a slip three years ago.

Another plant is an avocado pear plant. She ate the avocado and planted the seed. She has a rubber plant, which she started from a slip. There is some kind of lily plant, too, that has a white flower, but Mrs. Vavala doesn't know what type of lily she has.

One of the added zests to Mrs. Vavala's hobby is swapping slips with friends. She doesn't always know what she is getting—but it always grows.

Mrs. Vavala, who was born in the north of Italy came to America as a child. She is a widow. Her husband, Salvatore Vavala—"better known as Sam," Mrs. Vavala explains—was a cement finisher. He died in 1947.

The Vavalas had no children. "I wish we did," she said. But the plump, diminutive lady with the soft brown eyes and the "green thumb" manages to keep fairly happy with her rubber plants and her gardenia plants, and her ever-bearing lemon tree. "I am happy that things grow like that. I am happy when they bloom for me," she said.

Mincey Held Guilty in Rape Trial

Death Sentence Not Recommended; Ironworker Faces 10 to 30 Years

Hugh G. Mincey, 33-year-old ironworker, was convicted yesterday in District Court of raping a 4-year-old girl last September.

The jury declined to recommend the death penalty. Sentence was deferred by Judge T. Alan Goldsborough who is empowered to send Mincey to prison from 10 to 30 years.

The jury of eight men and four women deliberated less than 90 minutes before returning with the verdict. Mincey's face was emotionless as the verdict was announced.

The Government had demanded the death penalty.

22-Minute Instructions

Judge Goldsborough instructed the jury for 22 minutes.

He told them they could find Mincey guilty of rape with the death penalty, guilty of rape, guilty of assault with intent to commit rape or guilty of simple assault.

Mincey was arrested at the 518 H st. nw. apartment hotel where he resided after the victim, Beverly MacDonald, was found with her abdomen brutally torn. Fifty stitches were taken by the physicians who treated her.

Police found near Mincey's room a pair of bloodstained dungarees and charged him with the crime after chemical tests showed the presence of blood on his body.

Denied Rape

He steadfastly denied the rape, but admitted spanking the child eight times. Police quoted him as saying that the little girl had come into a bathroom when he was present and cursed him when he ordered her to leave.

Assistant United States Attorney Cecil R. Heflin told the jury that the death penalty in this case would lessen the chance of repetition of child rape in the future.

Defense Attorney Harry Ahern, even before the jury verdict came in, said he did not plan any appeal unless Mincey was sentenced to die.

Senate D. C. Committee Clerk Nominated for U. S. Marshal

The Washington Post

ON COMMITTEE STAFF—New members of the Senate District Committee staff are (from left) Mrs. Margaret Hampton, William P. Gulledge and Mrs. Vivian Lynn

Robert H. Mollohan, clerk of the Senate District Committee, was nominated yesterday by President Truman to be U. S. Marshal for the Northern District of West Virginia.

Mollohan sought the appointment rather than remain in the higher salaried committee job which he has held since last fall. Chairman Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) said no decision had been reached as to Mollohan's successor.

Appointment of Mrs. Vivian Lynn to the clerical staff of the committee was announced yesterday. She is the widow of Charles R. Lynn, formerly with the War Relocation Authority, and lives at 3059 S. Abingdon st., Arlington, Va. She was sponsored by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.).

Two other members of the committee staff appointed recently have assumed their duties. One is William P. Gulledge, lawyer, of Chesterfield, S. C., who was named at the request of Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.). The other is Mrs. Margaret Hampton, of 3000 39th st. nw., who was sponsored by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.).

U. S. Rests In Dope Case As Defense Hits Expert

Roberts' Attorney Grills Chemist Most of the Day, Aided by Text Books

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

The Government rested late yesterday in the trial of James (Jim Yellow) Roberts and his wife after the defense spent most of the day grilling a Government chemist with the aid of a blackboard and textbooks.

Issue of the District Court "chalk talk" was the identity of the contents of six exhibits, most of which the Government claims are drugs procured by Federal agents from Roberts' 744 Girard st. nw. apartment on the weekend of last October 8.

Albert A. Spear, Internal Revenue Bureau chemist, veteran courtroom witness in narcotics cases here the past 30 years, was on the verge of identifying all the Government evidence when Defense Attorney Joseph Lyman protested that Spear "had no specialized training," was not an "expert" witness in this case, and that "his testimony should be stricken."

Motion Overruled

Judge F. Dickinson Letts overruled the defense motion, and Spear was allowed to continue.

Under questioning by Assistant United States Attorney Arthur McLaughlin, Spear said the first two exhibits were cigarette butts containing marijuana. The third, he said, were four butts made of marijuana. The fourth was 17 bottles of cocaine, ½ grain each, he said, and exhibit 4-A was 500 tablets of ¼ grain codine sulphate. The fifth, he said, was 17 grains of bulk marijuana and the sixth was 10 capsules, of which nine contained ¾ grains of cocaine hydrochloride each.

Then Lyman asked that a blackboard be set up in the courtroom. Armed with several organic chemistry textbooks, the lawyer spent the next two hours writing out formulas.

Attempts Distinction

Lyman, who said he once studied medicine, sought to show a distinction between synthetic and natural cocaine as far as drug laws are concerned and that Spear has "no specialized training in the field of plant alkaloids."

Throughout the "chalk talk," Spear repeatedly testified that identity of drugs was purely a "routine" matter for him and that he hadn't worked with formulas as such for many years.

"Jim Yellow," 41, and his 23-year-old, red-haired wife Evalina are standing jury trial on charges of illegally transferring narcotics and failure to pay Federal taxes on the transfer of drugs.

The defense subpenaed FBI records on the Government's undercover man, James Watson, alias James E. Jackson which disclosed he was convicted on forgery and robbery charges several years ago.

Only defense witness was Mrs. Dorothy Martin, who said she lives at 1333 Kenyon st. nw., and is a friend of Mrs. Roberts. She was in the Roberts apartment on several occasions with the Federal agents, she testified, but never saw any transfer or heard discussion of narcotics.

Mrs. Grosvenor

Editor's Wife Is Granted Divorce

Mrs. Helen Rowland Grosvenor has been granted an absolute divorce from Melville Bell Grosvenor, son of the president of the National Geographic Society, on desertion grounds.

Judge Stedman Prescott of Montgomery County Circuit Court gave custody of a minor son to Mrs. Grosvenor, ordered her husband to pay her attorney's fees of $1200 and ratified a property agreement providing that Grosvenor pay his wife $500 monthly until his death or her remarriage. The decree was signed December 30.

Grosvenor, who lives at 600 Grosvenor la., Bethesda, is an assistant editor of the National Geographic magazine and the grandson of Alexander Graham Bell.

Mrs. Grosvenor's suit followed an original absolute-divorce action brought by her husband in August.

Grosvenor charged his wife with neglect, "cruel and inhuman" treatment," and "failure to conduct herself as a wife."

In her cross-complaint, Mrs. Grosvenor contradicted allegations numbering more than 20, made by her husband.

She denied she deserted the matrimonial bedroom, that she refused to let her husband be commodore of the Gibson Island Yacht Club, that her actions forced him to receive treatment at a mental institution.

The family home is at 2901 Woodland dr. nw., and under the agreement its title goes to Mrs. Grosvenor, who also assumes the mortgage. Mrs. Grosvenor has been living at 3031 Sedgwick st. nw.

The Grosvenors have three children, Mrs. Robert C. Watson, jr., 23; Alexander Graham Bell Grosvenor, 21, and Gilbert Melville Grosvenor, 18.

Fund Drive For Symphony Gets $30,960

The National Symphony Orchestra's twentieth annual sustaining fund campaign reached 16 percent of $190,000 goal yesterday with 583 gifts totaling $30,960 reported.

At the drive's first report luncheon in the YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw., Campaign Chairman Samuel Spencer said although this was below the amount realized in last year's campaign for the same period, he was "well satisfied with the results thus far."

Among the speakers yesterday were Mrs. John Davis Lodge, wife of the Republican Representative from Connecticut, and Paul J. Schwarz, president of the D. C. Federation of Musicians, Local 161, A. F. of M. Mrs. Lodge had a distinguished career in musical circles as Gloria Braggiotti.

Mrs. Lodge said the National Symphony "instead of being Washington's perennial problem child . . . should become the Nation's prodigy . . . It has done nothing but good—and it is now our responsibility to keep it alive."

A total of 8108 persons attended the Austrian art exhibition yesterday at the National Gallery, bringing the grand total to 754,255. Only five more days remain for the showing, which will close at 10 p. m. January 22.

Murder Trial Of Pritchett Begins Here

The first-degree murder trial of Fred S. Pritchett, 36-year-old mechanic, began yesterday in District Court.

He is charged with fatally shooting Clyde L. King, 50, of 212 Channing st. ne. last July in a switch engine in which King was the engineer in the Eckington railroad yards.

The trial is before Judge T. Alan Goldsborough. Prosecuting is Assistant United States Attorney Richard Roberts. The defense attorney is James J. Laughlin.

Roberts told the jury that Pritchett had been out with King's wife, Eva, the night before the slaying. When they returned, according to Roberts, King hit Pritchett in the mouth with his fist. It was shortly thereafter that King was found slain, Roberts related.

Yesterday's testimony was given by a group of young persons who had been attending a party at 210 Channing st. ne., when King began arguing with Pritchett, according to the evidence.

One witness, George Simons, 21, of 210 Channing st. ne., said that later Pritchett remarked that "everything is all right."

It was then, Simons said, that Pritchett pulled a revolver from his pocket. Simons said it appeared to be a .38 caliber weapon.

It was this weapon, the Government contends, that caused King's death.

Doctor Claims

Pin-Ups Cut Sex Crime Incidence

A series of photos of the female form divine brought forth mixed reactions in Municipal Court yesterday.

Judge Armond Scott, who admits being well past 60: "Perhaps a younger judge would view these pictures differently."

Dr. Michael E. Miller, Howard University psychiatry professor: "Nude pinups provided a sexual release for men in the armed forces suffering frustration and were it not for the pictures we would have had a higher incidence of sex crimes. If it is wrong for a normal man to be interested in a woman's form perhaps Congress should abolish sex. . ."

Wilmer John Nash, newsstand clerk: "I've known vice presidents of banks to buy 'em."

Assistant United States Attorney Joseph Sommer: "These pictures of nude women have nothing to do with art or science but only are offered to pander to lewd thoughts . . ."

Defense Attorney David Rein: "Look at Rodin's 'The Kiss.' How about Titian? Look at the works of art hanging in our galleries? What about burlesque shows?"

The photos had been offered in evidence in the case of Herbert Benjamin, a news dealer at 603 15th st. nw., accused of possessing indecent photographs for sale.

By stipulation, the fate of two other similarly accused newsdealers, James Lassiter, 1206 New York ave. nw., and Mark Garber, same address, will hinge on the decision in the Benjamin case.

Judge Scott announced he would give a decision in 30 days after a careful perusal of the evidence—some 1365 girlie shots.

'Big Brother' Scroll Given Justice Clark

Justice Tom C. Clark of the Supreme Court yesterday was presented a scroll honoring him as "big brother of the year."

Petworth Unit Plans War on Dirty Pictures

The Petworth Citizens Association last night called for a stop to the circulation of obscene pictures and phonograph records among children.

The group's education committee reported that material of this sort has been getting into the hands of children of the community.

Mrs. Virginia E. Jenckes, former Congresswoman from Indiana, discussed taxation at the meeting in the Petworth branch library and urged the association to keep a close watch on the way public money is spent.

The group voted to oppose the granting of a liquor license for a proposed night club in the Cavalier Apartments, 3500 14th st. nw.

It also voted to indorse the Langer bill which would ban liquor advertisements from interstate commerce.

Glen Echo Heights

The Glen Echo Heights Citizens Association last night voted to oppose any proposed increase in transit fares and asked improvement in service at the current fares.

Meeting in the Glen Echo fire hall auditorium, the group also voted to ask Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission to support a playground the association is constructing jointly with Glen Mar Park Citizens Association at Mattawaska rd. and Sangamore rd., Glen Echo Heights, Md.

Central Northwest

Members of the Central Northwest Citizens Association donated $35 last night to the United Citizens Association to support its attempt to prevent transfer of Cardozo High School students to Park View elementary school.

Association President Richard F. Ware, jr., said the members objected to the "splitting up" of the high school by the transfer. Public school officials have suggested the transfer as a method of alleviating overcrowding at Cardozo.

The association met at the Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, 10th and U sts. nw. During the meeting Mrs. Margaret Haywood

Zoo Monkeys Due For Big Feast of Condemned Candy

Here's hoping the monkeys at the Zoo don't make pigs of themselves, because they will be getting a special treat soon.

The United States Marshal's office is sending to the National Zoological Park 1224 boxes of chocolates made in Czechoslovakia, and found to contain larvae and insect webbing. The chocolates were condemned by District Court order as unfit for human consumption.

Zoo officials said that monkeys and their associates are especially fond of chocolate. Also, birds and squirrels may come in for a share.

Givens Takes Office as Head Of Policemen's Association

Pvt. Royce L. Givens, Thirteenth Precinct license officer, last night was installed as president of the Policemen's Association, succeeding Corpl. Ras A. Neilson of the headquarters communications and records office.

Half of Property Offered At D. C. Tax Auction Is Sold

The District tax collector offered 2490 pieces of property for sale yesterday at the annual real estate tax sale—the smallest number put up for sale in at least 15 years.

About half were sold at auction in the District Building board room. The rest, on which no bids were received, will revert to the delinquent tax rolls.

The property was sold for unpaid fiscal 1949 real estate taxes totaling $129,900.

District tax officials were surprised at the relatively small number of properties up for sale. In most cities the trend is in the other direction, they said. Last year 2879 pieces were offered for sale here.

Property sold yesterday may be redeemed within two years by payment of taxes due, plus interest at the rate of 1 percent a month.

Most of the property sold yesterday went without competitive bidding to professional buyers whose interest is in the 12 percent annual interest rate rather than the property.

If the property is not redeemed within two years the purchaser may obtain the deed by paying the taxes due.

Fairfax Zone Board Approves 1500-Unit Apartment Project

Construction of a 1500-unit apartment project on both sides of Shirley hwy. at Edsall rd. was approved yesterday by the Fairfax County Board of Zoning Appeals.

In approving the project, the board, in effect, opened the newly completed highway to similar developments at other points along it in Fairfax County.

S. Cooper Dawson, sr., board chairman, said the land on which the project is to be erected is owned by Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.).

Dawson said the apartments will be two-story brick buildings, garden-type. Plans specify one- and two-bedroom units, with rentals from $55 to $70.

The development calls for apartment construction on 23 acres on the west side of the highway and 67 acres on the east side. The board directed that no building be built nearer than 100 feet to the highway.

The site is at the first cloverleaf intersection below Lincolnia. It is about 7 miles south of Fairlington.

Dun Claims Schools Fail To Teach Faith

"The most serious weakness of our schools and colleges is their failure to help our children and youth to find a faith to live by," the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, declared last night.

Addressing 330 persons attending the fiftieth anniversary dinner of the National Cathedral School for Girls at the Shoreham Hotel, the bishop pointed out:

"Our children and our children's children face a world and, by all appearances, a half-century of strain and disorder and threats and revolutionary change. In such a time men are driven back on their inner resources of ultimate faith and ultimate allegiance.

"If nothing is there, they break. They may seek false fulfillment in emotional excess. They may seek escape in a realm of alcoholic illusion. At the worst, they withdraw from life in suicide.

"At such a time and in such a situation the clear call comes to us to redouble our efforts to make this Cathedral School an instrument of a whole-heartedly and positively Christian education," he affirmed.

The bishop followed James Reston, diplomatic correspondent of the New York Times, who urged schools to develop in youngsters "the skill of forming objective judgments on the basis of a great deal of evidence, carefully weighed by critical minds."

He urged preparation of children for "life as it is likely to be—not as it ought to be." The reporter said that for the past half century schools have been "denying the presence of evil in the world, or believing we could abolish evil, or thinking we could isolate ourselves from evil."

C. H. Knowles Dies, Services Agency Aide

A Government supervisor who always began the day with a joke or prank of some sort with a friend died of a heart attack yesterday 10 minutes after he had had his daily fun.

He was Cline H. Knowles, 61-year-old supervisor of the sheet metal shop of the General Services Administration, of 1405 S. Pollard st., Arlington, Va., who had been in Government maintenance work for some 25 years.

Knowles had stopped by the Public Buildings Administration material yard at 2d st. and Virginia ave. sw. From a grinning group of workers there waiting for his daily joke, Knowles picked out Harvey White, 50, of 1317 Monticello ave. ne., and bet him a dollar that his watch did not have the numeral "6" on its face.

White agreed on the bet, and there was a general laugh when Knowles proved he was right. But shortly after the laughter had subsided and Knowles had told White to keep the money, Knowles suddenly collapsed. He was pronounced dead of a heart attack at the scene.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Freddie H. Knowles, and three sons, Frederick S. Knowles and Harvey F. Knowles of the Arlington address, and Cline H. Knowles, jr., a Navy ensign stationed at San Diego, Calif. He is also survived by a grandson.

The body is at the Ives funeral home in Clarendon. Funeral services are incomplete.

BATES, WALTER W., SR. In loving remembrance of our devoted husband and father, WALTER WILLIAM BATES, SR., who passed away one year ago today, January 18, 1949. May his soul rest in peace.
Sad and sudden was the call,
Of one so dearly loved by all;
A bitter grief, a shock severe,
It was to part with one so dear.
We often sit and think of you,
And speak of how you died;
To think you could not say good-by
Before you closed your eyes.
For all of us you did your best,
Oh, God grant you eternal rest.
Your devoted wife and children.

Truman and Stalin Meet—At Newspaper Ball

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

HANDS OFF USA DOLLARS—Stalin might have his hand on an American dollar, but Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark is watching him with an eagle eye. The Treasurer of the United States points to her signature which vouches for the authenticity of the Yankee buck which the pseudo-Stalin (Lawrence Spivak in the workaday world) is trying to confiscate. If there is any doubt as to the identity of the Lady Treasurer, the dollar-sign earrings are a clue

Mae West, Daniel Boone Join Gala Costume Party

By Marie McNair

MARSHAL STALIN was waiting for President Truman at the Pan American Union building last night. So were Mae West, Daniel Boone and Mme. Schiaparelli.

The occasion was the American Newspaper Women's Club costume ball in honor of the Chief Executive and the First Lady.

Stalin, behind his gray mustache, was Lawrence Spivak. Mrs. Spivak was there, too, representing China—in a blue kimona, a flower headdress, topped by the Soviet hammer and sickle.

Flags were flying at the Pan-American Union and hundreds of orchids flown up from Colombia studded the greenery in the patio where the scarlet-coated Marine Band played. Sidney and his orchestra took over later for dancing in the Hall of Americas.

Off to an early start, the ball opened with the arrival of President and Mrs. Truman at 9:30 p. m., Mrs. Truman wearing a gown of black velvet, the President in white tie and tails.

Mrs. William Canby, wearing a plaid hooped skirt with matching bonnet, was chairman of the fete. With Mr. Canby and Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark, she escorted the Trumans from the door up to the reception room. There they were greeted by Miss Grace McGerr, club president, whose hooped-skirt gown was of blue satin.

Moving Van Brings Hoop-Skirted Ladies

THE FETE sparkled from the word "go." Everyone received a souvenir dance program from Ruth Crane, dressed as a 1925 flapper. Mrs. Vylla Poe Wilson, a Civil War belle, and a committee of club members handed out special favors to the ladies.

Biggest laugh came when a Smith's moving van pulled up to the front entrance. From the cavernous interior came a 12-foot hoop skirt worn by Mrs. James Robertson, and designed by Philip Robertson. Mrs. Thomas Eberly wore a Robertson-designed pink and satin and lace gown of the old New Orleans period, and a white wig almost two feet in height. Mr. Robertson was a cavalier of the same period in pink brocaded knee breeches and a wig of pink spun satin. Mrs. Eberly and Mr. Robertson's costumes were chosen "most beautiful" at the party. Senator Homer Ferguson, Mrs. Charles Brannan and Mrs. Oscar Chapman were judges.

Greek Ambassador Brings His Guests

THE Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis, who had entertained at dinner beforehand in honor of their Minister of Finance and Mme. Mantzavinos, brought their guests on to the ball. Mme. Dendramis was effective in black and yellow—the skirt of black lace, the bodice of yellow taffeta, the whole draped with a black lace shawl.

Senator Clinton Anderson was a gay cabellero in a black suit braided in white. Mrs. Anderson wore a Mexican costume of bright color. The Andersons won second prize for "most beautiful" costumes at the fete.

Mrs. Tom Clark had chosen a gown of pale pink and silver brocade, 1950 model. The Postmaster General and Mrs. Jesse Donaldson were there, and the Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan and Mrs. Brannan.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja came as a Japanese couple. Mrs. Hurja explaining her armful of cherry blossoms represented those planted by the wife of the Japanese Ambassador around the tidal basin many years ago.

Mrs. Katharine Byron wore her great-grandmother's black satin gown with pleats, suffles and lace. The former French Premier Camille Chautemps was there with Mme. Chautemps, who had pinned a cluster of purple clover to the bodice of her black lace gown.

Georgie Neese Clark, Treasurer of the United States, practically covered herself with a replica of a short snorter, explaining that so many people had asked her to sign dollar bills that she was getting a few autographs herself.

Martha Rountree was a striking Scarlett O'Hara and her escort, Col. Herbert de Schinkel of the Swedish Embassy, was Rhett Butler.

For Margaret's Parties, But Not President's

Blair House Table Can Stretch

By Elizabeth Maguire

WHY does Blair House accommodate just 16 dinner guests when the President and Mrs. Truman entertain, and 18 when Margaret entertains? This question came up at a press conference held yesterday by Mrs. James Helm, White House secretary.

It was announced at the conference that a dinner honoring the Vice President and Mrs. Barkley tomorrow evening would be limited to 16 guests. An announcement followed that Miss Truman would entertain for 18 on Saturday, January 21, in honor of Miss Drucie Snyder and Maj. John Horton.

Everyone immediately asked why the President and Mrs. Truman could have only 16 guests when their daughter Margaret could have 18. Mrs. Helm's answer was a very simple one. State chairs are used when the President and Mrs. Truman entertain, and when Miss Truman entertains, small gold chairs are used, thus making room for an additional two.

State chairs will be used at another dinner honoring the Vice President and his bride on Tuesday, January 24. Guest lists for the two Barkley dinners will be of special interest because the Vice President and Mrs. Barkley have hundreds of friends, difficult to whittle down to two dinners for 16.

Miss Truman's dinner on the twenty-first for Miss Snyder and Major Horton will include members of the wedding party. It is likely but not definite that Margaret will remain over in Washington until Miss Snyder's wedding on January 26 when she is to be maid of honor. Another engagement that might further prolong her stay is the Helen Traubel concert at Constitution Hall on Sunday, January 29. Mrs. Truman will attend the concert at 4 o'clock.

When asked if there was any truth to the rumor that there was a rift between the First Lady and the wife of the Vice President, Mrs. Helm laughed, "Good gracious, no!"

First Lady Will Attend Luncheon

A LUNCHEON to be given by Mrs. O. Max Gardner for the Advisory Committee of the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner will be attended by Mrs. Truman today at 12:30 p. m. The luncheon will be held in the East Room of the Shoreham Hotel.

Later today, at 4 and 5 p. m., Mrs. Truman will give the last two of a series of eight teas for wives of members of Congress, wives of the Little Cabinet and wives of top ranking Army, Navy and Air Force office

Mrs. Truman will attend the opening performance of the Ice Capades, to be held at the Uline Arena on Monday, January 23, as a benefit for Wellesley College. And the First Lady will give a luncheon at Blair House for ladies of the Cabinet on Tuesday, January 31, at 1 p. m.

Parties Honor U. S., Foreign Military Men

In honor of the Canadian members of the Chiefs of Staff Committee of the Canadian-United States Regional Planning Group, a stag dinner was given last evening at the Pentagon by the United States members. Lieut. Gen. C. M. Foulkes, Air Marshal W. A. Curtis and Vice Admiral H. T. W. Grant of Canada were the guests of honor.

Col. Abdel Ghaleb, Military Attache of the Egyptian Embassy, and Mrs. Ghaleb entertained yesterday from 6 to 8 o'clock for the military of Washington. Nearly 250 guests were received in the drawing room of their home on Albemarle st.

Cocktails were served with a buffet of roast turkeys, hams, sandwiches, salads and ices. Military attaches from the embassies and their wives and foreign liaison officers and members of the Department of Defense made the party a colorful gold-braid event.

Mrs. Robert LeBaron was hostess to a few guests at tea yesterday in her apartment at Wardman Park. Among those in the group were Mrs. James Kem, Mrs. Carroll Kearns, Mrs. Sidney Souers, Princess Pignatelli, Mrs. Dwight Rogers, Mrs. Clark Thompson, Mrs. Ken Regan, Mrs. James Murray, Mrs. Robert Jones, Mrs. Emil Hurja and Mrs. Donald Halsted.

A small dinner was given last evening for Miss Drucie Snyder and Maj. John Horton by Capt. James G. Shanahan at Fort McNair officers' club. The host's fiancee, Miss Patricia Moore, was among the guests.

Earl and Countess Jellicoe also entertained yesterday at a cocktail party for Bernard Burrows who has just come to Washington as head of chancery at the British Embassy. Mrs. Burrows is expected in Washington next week.

Widowed Mother Dined and Quarreled With Her Daughter On Christmas, While Her Beloved Son Spent the Day With His Newly Acquired Fiancee

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: We have been married for six years and have two children, and we are quite a happy family, but my mother is a problem. She has been a widow for several years, and my only brother (I have no sisters) became engaged at Christmas.

As John was to spend most of Christmas day with his fiancee we asked mother here to dinner, and shortly after the meal she left in a huff, much to our surprise. My husband followed her but she refused to come back, and when I tearfully telephoned later to request an explanation, she said that I had been cold to her, neglectful and had even served dinner without enthusiasm. She went on to say that she is always depressed when she comes to our house.

While it's possible that we were indifferent that day, not intentionally but due to tiredness, from preparations and from a recent siege of illness, I do believe I've done my utmost on her other visits. Mother told my brother that she left in a huff to impress upon me how cold I am, in contrast to the attention she lavishes on us when we go there.

Daughter Wants to Make Peace

JOHN IS AN exceptionally devoted son, and mother is always pointing this out to me. And she believes that I've taken advantage of her in leaving my children with her on several occasions. My brother suggests that I discuss the problem with her, which I would like to do; but past experience has taught me that in discussing things with me, she makes wild and false statements and we get absolutely no place.

Strangely, I am not as panicky about this incident as I would have been several years ago; then I would have begged her forgiveness even if I felt I wasn't wholly wrong, because then I couldn't bear to have her hurt or annoyed with me. However, I am upset to the extent that I don't want to be an ungrateful daughter or unresponsive to a mother's needs. I do have self doubts and am uncertain what course of action to take. Will you please try to give me a lead? S. C.

Mother's Fighting Fear of Loneliness

DEAR S. C.: From what you say of your weary attitude on Christmas day, it appears that you did think it a bore and a dreary duty chore to have your mother in for company dinner, and that your mother wasn't imagining things in feeling undercurrents of resentment and rejection in your deportment.

However, I believe it's also true that she was aquiver with gratuitously hostile emotions herself that day, spoiling for a fight, as the saying goes—a mood that the possessor often mistakes for "sensitivity" or righteousness,—and that her hostility had to do with outraged feelings of being shunted about and ostensibly unloved at Christmas, while you were encircled by your little family and John was doing homage to his fiancee.

She probably wasn't aware of the combustible quality of her feelings, nor of her essential grievance, namely: inexpressible loneliness and haunting anxiety, the terrible insecurity felt by those who are fighting fears of being bereft of intimately sustaining love that had been the foundation of their daily regimen before.

Carries Discord on Her Shoulder

FURTHER, it's my guess that she came to your home expecting hurtful treatment, in the sense of anticipating that the welcome would be perfunctory, and that in her heartsore condition she would find you as casually remote from her, in intuitive sympathies, as she has always been from you—and indeed was carelessly content to be in years when she exercised top-priority claim to the loyal attentions of husband and son.

Figuratively speaking, she arrived in a cloud of melancholy, and with a chip on her shoulder against fate, and what she choked on after dinner was the misery in her throat that she brought along with her, and that your society did not abate. Owing to her long-time indifference to you, there is no spontaneous mutual tenderness, no reciprocal sympathy in your handling of each other's moods—but for this she should not blame you, nor will it improve the situation to blame her.

Taking the analytic view, it seems you've been a rejected child in relation to your mother (as compared to your brother's closer status), which accounts for the utter panic you once felt when she looked askance at you, and that this panic is on the wane as you experience emotional sanctuary in relation to your mate and children. Since thoughtful creative discussion isn't possible with your mother, the healing course is to "get understanding" of yourself and her, via diligent self-education, as time goes on. Short-term psychiatric counsel for yourself, to relax your unconscious hostility towards her, would be a long start in the right direction, I think. M. H.

Tobé Says...

Now is the time when most of us look around for a pretty print dress to wear under our winter coats and make us believe that spring is just around the corner.

This year I think the newest and smartest prints are silk surahs, that silk with a tiny diagonal weave that our grandmothers used to call "foulard." It is soft, yet with a slightly crisp feel that makes it perfect for today's fashions.

Surah patterns are usually small—but this year they are all feminine—tiny hearts scattered like dots, small conventionalized flowers or leaves; clear-cut checks, and dots of all sizes from pin points to dollars.

Pioneer Clubs Hear Javits on Israel

By Genevieve Reynolds and Nicha Soure

REPRESENTATIVE JACOB K. JAVITS of New York last night warned that Israel will need the financial and moral support of American Jewry for many years to come.

Recently back from a trip to Palestine, he made his observations in a banquet speech before the Pioneer Women's Clubs of Washington, Baltimore and Richmond held at Hotel 2400.

His speech was the culmination of a Tri-City workshop and conference held at Hotel 2400 throughout the day. It was sponsored by the Washington group under the direction of Mrs. Alexander Drazin, chairman of the Seaboard Region of the organization.

The Congressman said Israel needs continued support because of its problem of vast refugee immigration; because of constant threat of Arab aggression on Israel; and because of possible UN interference in Jerusalem.

Must Be Shared

Representative Javits expressed his belief that Israel will surmount all problems and emerge secure and independent. But he added, "This can only be attained if American Jewry recognizes that, over a period of years, the vast support with which they must back the people of Israel, in terms of money and in terms of prestige, must be given on the basis of sharing rather than giving."

During the afternoon, delegates from the District, Richmond and Baltimore presented a portable phonograph to the Israeli Ambassador and Mme. Elath as a gift for the Children's Home in Israel. The ceremony was held at the Israeli Chancery on Massachusetts ave. Accompanying them were Mrs. Morris Golden, president of the Washington Council, and Mrs. Drazin, president of the Seabord Region of Pioneer Women.

Speakers at the afternoon session included Miss Frances Lide, club editor of the Evening Star, Mrs. Hazel Markel, director of program service for station WTOP, and Miss Tillye Ginsburg, assistant executive secretary of National Pioneer Women.

Rep. Reed Would Cut Income, Excise Taxes

If Representative Daniel A. Reed of New York had his way, women wouldn't be paying $1.20 for a tube of lipstick. The Representative is sponsor of a bill to reduce excise and income taxes.

The Congressman discussed his views on American taxation at the supper meeting of the D.C. League of Republican Women last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Elkins.

Today's tax burden is too great, Representative Reed declared. "It discourages people from trying to raise their income."

Small Fry Fashions To Be Shown Today

Midwinter and early spring styles for the small fry—those of pre-school age—will be featured at today's benefit luncheon-fashion show in the Variety Club at the Willard Hotel.

Miss Peggy Preston, fashion editor of The Washington Post, will be commentator at the show. Models will be from the Rose Robison Cowen's Children's Studio of Speech and Dramatic Art. Fashions will be from Tiny Town Children's Shop.

Sorority Discusses National Research Project

Members discussed plans for the sorority's national philanphropic project, a research into children's conditions in Brown county, Indiana, which has been selected as a typical rural community.

Women Against War

The Lobby Is Just a Hobby With Caresse Crosby—But World Peace Is the Goal

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

LATEST woman lobbyist to register is Mrs. Phelps Crosby who is known to her myriad friends and admirers as Caresse Crosby. The Congressional Quarterly lists her as "Self employed, unpaid." Her lobbying activities are for benefit of "Women of the World Against War."

"Mrs. Crosby, who has always worked to promote peace, has an idea that women, who control 70 percent of the Nation's capital, would invest heavily in the Government to promote peace and progress, if they could be assured their money would not be used for war preparation. As it is now, 70 percent of our budget goes toward war, Mrs. Crosby says. If a Government bond issue could be allocated for use in promoting peace, she believes voluntary contributions would be enormous.

Mrs. Crosby has personally made a poll amongst some of the country's wealthiest women and reports that the majority favor a similar project. She is backed by a number of people who are vitally interested in peace.

The plan has just been initiated and is by no means completely planned. But one of the first moves is a letter to be circulated among Congressmen. Its heading starts "Be Realistic!"

More About 'South Pacific'

LATEST in our collection of "South Pacific" stories runs as follows. A man turned up at the "South Pacific" box office saying he had two tickets for Wednesday night and wanted to make sure they'd be honored.

The box office manager replied that if they'd been come by honestly, there was no cause for worry. However, if the man had found them or otherwise obtained the tickets in dubious manner, the rightful owner might confront and make trouble for him. Why not, the box office manager suggested, say precisely how the tickets had been obtained.

"To tell the truth," answered the applicant hesitantly, "I'm an undertaker. And I found the tickets in a client's vest pocket!"

Did Her Bit for the Ladies

ONE of the most capable women in international public life is Mrs. Amalia Castillo Ledon who will be honor guest this afternoon at a reception given by the Acting Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Barber at Prospect House.

Mrs. Castillo Ledon, recently elected president of the Inter-American Commission of Women, doubles at the United Nations as vice president of the Commission on the Status of Women.

A Mexican, brought up in Mexico City, Mrs. Castillo Ledon managed a full time career though she had three children by her early twenties. She studied law, achieved a doctor of philosophy degree, plunged into social work, wrote voluminously. As a result of her literary endeavors she founded the Mexican Association of Writers. The Commission of Women was set up at the Inter-American Conference at Havana in 1928. The commission's task was to work for women's educational, political and social advancement throughout the Americas. There was a woman delegate from each of the 21 American countries, although at that time only women in our own United States had suffrage.

Plenty of Progress Noted

AT THE most recent session, held in Buenos Aires last August, women had obtained full political rights in 14 countries and municipal rights in two additional countries. Other mileposts were set up during the 21-year span. At the 1933 Inter-American Conference in Montevideo, woman's right to retain her own nationality, despite marriage to a foreigner, was established. At Bogota in 1949, 20 of the 21 countries assured women civil rights.

Since 1939 Mrs. Castillo Ledon has been Mexico's delegate to the commission. She has also been delegate to the United Nations since its inception at San Francisco in 1945.

Her approach is practical. She is working to destroy discrimination, prejudice and traditions inimical to feminine advancement. Mrs. Castillo Ledon plans to visit all the Inter-American countries, work with their women's organizations, try to make women take fuller advantage of their hard-won privileges. She believes that our countrywomen should be an example for others. Then women throughout the Americas would win more rights. Tall, blonde, handsome and energetic Mrs. Castillo Ledon is settling down in Washington. Her three children were married recently, all within four months. Her youngest daughter, in true maternal tradition, was a 16-year-old bride. Without her children Mrs. Castillo Ledon is so lonely that she is bringing her mother from Mexico to keep her company.

How to Fumigate House Pests

Could you please tell me how to fumigate a house to rid it of lurking moths, spiders, roaches and other in-the-woodwork-and floors pests? I wish to use the information in cleaning a country house which has been unoccupied since last spring and will remain vacant throughout this winter. In this climate, I know it is hard to keep ahead of the pests, but I'd like to eliminate those already in hiding and in cocoons. I prefer a bomb type exterminator if they are "tried and true" rather than the DDT sprays. I can use those later. The house has been thoroughly aired and is without heat, perhaps that takes care of the fumigation angle. (If only bugs froze!)
M. G.

For an amateur, fumigation is not a recommended method of ridding a house of pests. Fumigants, to be effective, must be quite lethal. For the inexperienced, there is real danger of becoming exposed to the fumes or of overlooking the proper precautions to prevent other persons or animals from being exposed. Then too, there is a fire hazard with some methods.

In many areas of the country, fumigation is permitted only by licensed operators and the building is kept under constant guard during the entire operation.

Aside from the danger involved, fumigation is often times not successful in the hands of amateurs. The entire house must be sealed, tapes put around doors and windows, even the keyholes plugged. If this isn't done properly and the house is not completely sealed, enough gas could escape to render the entire procedure useless.

Considering all of these things, the most effective and easiest way to rid the house of all insect life is to use a 5 percent DDT spray. This should be applied with extreme care so that not one crack or crevice is missed. The spray will leave a residue which will kill insects for several months—another reason for using it rather than fumigation, which has no lasting effect whatever.

Is there a simple way to clean a two-story chimney by using chemicals in a wood- or coal-burning stove? There is no high ladder available to clean the chimney from the top down. G.

There is a product, sold quite generally in hardware stores for just this purpose. The chemical is put into the fire (complete directions come with product) and seems to be a very effective way to eliminate the soot.

Could you give me a recipe for a dessert made with whipped cream, marshmallow and pineapple? I think the dish I have in mind is placed in the electric refrigerator in freezing trays.
R. G.

PINEAPPLE MOUSSE

1 cup crushed pineapple
12 marshmallows
1 tablespoon water
2 cups heavy cream

Drain pineapple well. Add water to marshmallows and melt over hot water; cool and fold in the whipped cream. Stir in pineapple. Turn into freezing tray and freeze 2 to 4 hours or until firm. Approximate yield: 1 quart.

I have a pair of white kid gloves which have been cleaned several times successfully. However, recently I washed them (foolishly) and they turned yellow and are stiff as a board. Is there any process by which they can be made wearable again?
G. R.

When the oils have been completely removed from leather and they turn hard, there isn't much that can be done to restore them. However, you might try this: Turn them inside out and rub leather renewer into the leather. Leather renewer is a creamy liquid sold for use on shoes. Rub the leather between the hands to work the renewer in and soften them.

Can you tell me if it is possible to cut the toes of genuine alligator shoes and if so, can you tell me where it can be done? I'll be happy to be able to save these lovely shoes as they are now too tight for me.
N. S.

There is a shoe repair shop on 11th street which does this sort of work. You can reach it by calling District 7970.

Can you tell me where in Washington I can buy bamboo to use in making a lamp base?
H. W.

I haven't been able to locate a source for bamboo. Do any of our readers know where it can be bought in the city?

What to do about a smeary looking spot on asphalt tile where some gum turpentine was spilled. It has slightly faded and the pattern seems to have run.
W. B. B.

Oils of any sort are destructive to asphalt tile. They soften them and cause just the sort of damage you describe. There is no way to return the damaged spot to its original appearance, but further spreading and softening can probably be prevented by washing the spot well with soap and water and then rinsing several times to remove all traces of the turpentine. Be sure to dry it thoroughly. Keeping the floor protected at all times with a coat of water emulsion type of wax will help to keep spilled liquids from soaking in and doing damage.

One on the Aisle—

Theatrical VIPs Packing the Place

By Richard L. Coe

COMING AND GOING: You'd think this was Palm Springs or the Algonquin the way the movie and theater world celebrities are moving in and out this week.

Names in our theaterless Capital this week include: John Payne, Marc Connelly, Gloria De Haven, Donald O'Conner, Yvonne De Carlo, Patricia Medina, Jackie Coogan, Nicholas Phipps, Judith Evelyn, Jim Nolan, Robert Penn Warren, Carl Brisson, Phil Regan, Bob Porterfield and gosh knows who else.

Most of them are here on individual enterprises, though one large group will be on tap for a movie preview.

JOHN PAYNE, on his way to his native Roanoke, rather shattered an opinion I've had about the guy. From his immobile screen personality—dark, handsome and, to be blunt, vacuous—I'd always assured he'd gotten no farther than the fourth grade.

But no. Payne, handsome as he is on the screen, broke down and confessed that he went, simultaneously, to the Julliard School of Music and Columbia School of Journalism. All that after graduating from Mercersburg. What's more, he played "Henry V" while studying Shakespeare at Columbia and holds decided opinions about "A Streetcar Named Desire." While I didn't for a minute agree that it's a play that has no interest for any sane human being, it was a surprise to be able to argue with a collar ad.

Payne's going to show the Virginia homefolk his latest movie, "Captain China." He's taking to westerns and adventure stories, which delights his 9-year-old daughter, who didn't think beans about his career until she learned he might happen to know Roy Rogers. So John learned to ride a horse.

MARC CONNELLY'S lecture for the Town Hall at Constitution Hall was a decided disappointment. His discussion showed little signs of preparation nor was mention made of his eternal debt of gratitude to Roark Bradford, whose stories of "Old Man Adam and His Children" made "The Green Pastures" possible.

But far more devastating a clew to his lack of understanding or preparation was the fact that it required a question from the audience after his talk to remind him that he was speaking in a city, the Capital of his Nation, which does not have theater. One expected far, far more of this lecturer.

GLORIA DeHAVEN (not so long ago Mrs. John Payne), Yvonne De Carlo, Donald O'Conner, Patricia Medina and Jackie Coogan are arriving today to make you "Francis" conscious. This is the picture about that talking Army mule, which will have a National Press Club audience Friday night.

From here, that covey will head for Weisbaden, Germany, where the picture will have its premiere Saturday night. This is to be a thoroughly transplanted "Hollywool Premiere," with all the works, lights, personalities, bands and fanfare.

YVONNE De CARLO'S presence will give this corner a chance to be nice about her. Not long ago, in a review, I called her "Why-Vonne," which was intended to be only passably amusing.

But Why-Vonne has a great admirerer up in Lynn, Mass., Mr. Joe McManus, who has since bombarded this desk and Editor Elliston for what he deems an insult to a fair and noble lady. He thinks it was "evidently no gentleman of the press" who called Miss De Carlo "Why-Vonne." So, Miss De Carlo and Mr. McManus, apologies, if you like, but no attack on a lady's virtue was intended.

NICHOLAS PHIPPS is that English actor-writer you've seen in hundreds of pictures, tall, gangly, huge nose and no chin. Phipps embodies the dense, cricketeer type of the screen, and as a writer has made a name for his "Park Lane" series, in one of which Anna Neagle was recently seen at the Playhouse. He played the London lead in "Blithe Spirit" for several years and left yesterday afternoon for New York and its plays after a visit with his brother-in-law and sister, Capt. and Mrs. John Holmes, of the British Embassy staff.

ROBERT PENN WARREN, who wrote the novel from which "All the King's Men" was adapted, will be in town Thursday for a luncheon with the reviewers who so admired the Playhouse picture and, that evening, to speak at the Institute of Contemporary Arts, 1322 New York ave. The writer will read from his collected poems, for which he was so noted before that novel got the Pulitzer Prize.

CARL BRISSON, whose mere automobile is enough to stop traffic in Copenhagen, is entertaining at the Statler's Embassy Room. The fellow who began as a boxer, became a movie star and singer, packs a real wow with—what the Statler calls his "deep purple baritone." Though Ray Middleton is set to succeed Pinza in "South Pacific" and Pinza's winning understudy, Dickenson Eastman, is to be head of the national company, Brisson seems a natural sometime to take over that "Enchanted Evening" spot.

TRYOUTS TONIGHT for the Alexandria Little Theater, whose play will be Tennessee Williams' "You Touched Me." Charles Rogers, C. U. graduate now teaching at the University of Maryland, will direct . . . Applicants for roles and backstage jobs should apply tonight at 8:30 at the Theater Workshop in Ramsey Alley.

Jepson to Sing At Sesqui Fete Here Tonight

Helen Jepson says she has a 17-year-old daughter.

No one would think so to look at the beautiful soprano who will star tonight with the Army Band.

Jepson is leading off in a series of 13 free concerts presented by the Army Band for the Sesquicentennial celebration. The concerts will be given in the Departmental Auditorium, Constitution ave., between 12th and 14th sts.

Jepson said yesterday, "Singing in Washington always seems like a command performance. I am really honored to sing in the first concert for the Sesquicentennial."

5 Military Musicians in Fine Recital

By Paul Hume

The art of music in miniature fields was on display last night at the Institute of Contemporary Arts.

Five members of the Army Ground Forces Band played there in three trios and a quintet. It requires more skill and imagination to write well for just three instruments than for an orchestra of eighty.

The possibilities of color exist in smaller units as last night's Piston and Milhaud showed. But it is simpler to splash on effects with many instruments than to achieve them with few.

A trio by Robert Evett showed more concern with the horizonal lines of modern counterpoint than with color. Rhythmic patterns were kept to slender proportions also, except in his fantasy on a Gregorian theme.

Walter Piston's three pieces for clarinet, flute, and bassoon proved surprisingly rich in sound as well as motion. They found considerable emotional outlet for such restricted means.

Darius Milhaud's Cheminee du Roi Rene reached great heights of descriptive writing. Written for oboe and French horn in addition to the other three instruments, it is dry humor of keen subtlety.

The men from the Ground Forces Band played admirably, repeating one movement from Evett's trio in order to give it greater polish.

Films to Take Censorship to High Court

New York, Jan. 17 (U.P.).—The United States Supreme Court will be asked to rule on the constitutionality of motion picture censorship, Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, announced today.

Johnston said the first Supreme Court test of film censorship would be based on an appeal of the Tennessee Supreme Court's decision in the "Curley" case.

The Memphis censor board banned "Curley," produced by Hal Roach studios and distributed by United Artists, because the film showed Negro and white children playing together in school.

The Tennessee court passed over the question of the constitutionality of film censorship when it ruled on December 7 that United Artists had no standing in Tennessee to raise the issue because it was not an exhibitor and had not qualified to do business in the State.

French Production Now Equal To 1929 Output, Retailer Says

The Washington Post

By John M. London
Post Reporter

France's industrial production now is 15 percent higher than in 1938 and is about even with 1929, the best production year since World War I.

This was the statement made yesterday to a reporter by a visiting French retail expert, Michael Jarre. He is technical adviser of the French National Federation of Department and Variety Chain Stores.

Jarre is also a member of the Marshall Plan committee of the National Association of French Employers (comparable to the American NAM), and a member of the National Board of Prices of France.

"France has nearly completely recovered," said Jarre. "The only big problem now is the still incomplete reconstruction of homes damaged or destroyed in the war.

"There has been a tremendous improvement, particularly in the past two years. Now you can buy a fine meal, expertly prepared and tasty, with a good wine, for say 80 cents."

As an example of the new France Jarre cited the case of the crack trains from Paris to Bordeaux:

"Before the war, railroadmen took special pride in cutting seconds off the running time on this route. And now the flag train takes eight minutes less than the best time before the war."

The last food rationed was coffee, he said, and that went off rationing on January 15.

Jarre observed that this amazing recovery is attributable first of all to the character of the French people:

"The French, they love leisure to sip their pernod and enjoy living.

"When they are faced with a breakdown, they say 'Come, let us roll up the sleeves and do the work —and afterwards we shall have time again for leisurely life, and the pernod'."

And so, he said, reconstruction has been "half perspiration, half inspiration."

Marshall Plan aid has helped immensely in France, he said. In France it prevented "misery and poverty and those are the mediums in which the microbe of communism lives."

Failure of the Communist-inspired general strike on November 25 proved Communism is losing its grip in France, he said. Because of the resurgent prosperity, Jarre expressed belief DeGaulle and his movement was also slipping.

Hospital Here Does Research On Pneumonia

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

A special study of the possible extent of man-made pneumonia in child deaths is under way at Children's Hospital here, it was disclosed yesterday.

The research on lipoid pneumonia, caused by breathing in droplets of mineral oils or oily nose sprays, has been undertaken by Dr. Theodore Winship, hospital pathologist, according to Dr. Montgomery Blair, jr., hospital president.

The research involves detailed lung studies at each autopsy, studies more searching than those usually made. Its purpose is to determine the extent, if any, such congestion as is caused by mineral oils creates or contributes to the cause of death, he added.

The new research project was announced yesterday at the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Research Foundation of Children's Hospital.

Other Projects

Other research projects now under way but scheduled for expansion, Dr. Blair reported, include:

1. Glutamic acid diet treatments to speed mental growth of mentally retarded children.

2. Diarrhea research, a project already credited with reducing diarrhea mortality at the hospital from its 12 to 18 percent of former years to 1.6 percent, "the lowest published diarrhea mortality in the country."

3. Research in the use of antibiotics in many children's diseases.

Plans for extending the glutamic acid research include study of the possible value of amino acid in diet to reduce brain damage in patients suffering meningitis and other encephalitic diseases, according to Dr. Samuel P. Bessman, project director.

The mental growth diet project might also be extended to a mass study "if proper arrangements can be made with some progressive school authority," Dr. Blair reported.

Expansion Plans

Expansion planned for the diarrhea research would include a special study of environmental factors, said Dr. E. Clarence Rice, project director. Some such factors apparently are involved in intestinal disorders of children, he said.

The antibiotic research, which began in 1947 with the use of streptomycin in diarrhea treatment, has since grown into a research project of its own, Dr. Blair reported. Last year, he said, more than 290 patients were treated with the new antibiotics for such things as bacterial and viral pneumonia, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, typhoid fever, genito-urinary tract infections and other diseases.

D.C. Veterans Enter School As Jobs Fade

District veterans — many of whom have lost their Federal Government positions—are flocking to school, the Veterans Service Center reported yesterday.

Since last summer, the center has been experiencing a steady increase in interviews about educational benefits under the GI Bill. The volume has risen from an average of 125 to 155 last week.

The reasons for this influx are many, according to Edward H. Thacker, educational consultant at the center, but the principal one is that veterans holding war service appointments in the Government have been forced out by holders of permanent status.

Thacker, who has been advising veterans on education at the center for four years, said some new applicants are men who realize schooling under the GI Bill must start by July 25, 1951, and are anxious to get in under the deadline.

500 ACRES located in the zone of the new South Capitol Street Bridge. This bridge is now open for traffic to 50,000 capacity of automobiles per day. This ground is located 4 st. beyond the District line in Maryland. This bridge brings this property about 2 miles nearer the heart of Washington than the old 11th Street Bridge. It also brings this property in about 12 minutes by automobile to the heart of D. C. 95 acres of this land can be used for cemeteries. Cemetery ground when well developed retails at about $200,000 per acre, do a little figuring with your pencil and see what that amounts to. The residue of this ground is suitable for commercial, apts. and low cost housing. Commercial ground in the zone of the Virginia end over the Potomac River Bridges worth around $500,000 an acre. One of the vice presidents of the Riggs Nat'l Bank bought 30 acre over the Memorial Bridge for $30,000 and sold it to the Government for $1,500,000 and that was accomplished by condemnation jury. A farmer bought a farm over there for $3,000; is now worth more than a million dollars. Take a ride over the new South Capitol Street Bridge to the District line, look ahead of you and you will see a big woods, that's my 500 acres, and if you will also take a look you will see about 100 million dollars worth of apartments and houses closing in on 3 sides of my property. This is a young man's job to subdivide this land, I am in my eighty-third year and I would not undertake it. If you have got good credit and a modest amount of cash you can buy this property, the balance of the purchase money at 4% interest with release clause so you can pay as you go. Fulton R. Gordon, owner, 1427 Eye st. nw., DI. 5230. Home telephone, WO. 0933.

I have been in the land development for nearly two thirds of a century and have developed 7 towns in the vicinity of Washington, Chevy Chase, D. C. was my largest development. I paid $800,000 for 400 acres. Now 1 acre of that same land, that is located at Conn. ave. and McKinley st. is worth more than what I paid for the 400 acres. That will give you an idea of what you can do with land when you develop it. Brokers' Attention.

'This I Remember'

Aquamarine Was Vargas' Gift to Her, Author Says

This is another installment of the serialization of "This I Remember," the nonfiction best seller in which Eleanor Roosevelt tells the story of Franklin D. Roosevelt's career, from 1924 to his death in 1945. Succeeding installments will be printed in The Washington Post through February 4.

By Eleanor Roosevelt

FROM URUGUAY the party went to Brazil, and Franklin again was very much pleased by the enthusiasm that his visit called forth. It was here that he was given the gifts for me that created so much comment in one of the newspaper columns and in radio broadcasts a short time ago. For this reason I think it wise to tell the whole story here.

Undersecretary Welles was asked by President Vargas and Madame Vargas if they might send some gifts to me, for they knew the rule that no President of the United States nor any Government official while in office can accept personal gifts from a foreign government. Madame Vargas sent me a beautiful hammered silver tea set, and the President and his wife together sent me, from their collection, a very large acquamarine stone—one of the biggest and most perfect stones in the world. My husband presented me with these gifts on his return and I was deeply impressed by them but realized that only in the White House or at some official gathering could such a large tea set be used. The stone was kept in my safe in the White House.

After Franklin's death I gave the tea set to the aircraft carrier U. S. S. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and I hope that the Brazilians were pleased to see it on the ship when she made a good-will visit there shortly after being put into commission.

I could not quite decide what I should do with the stone, for I no longer had a really safe place in which to keep it. I tried to have it appraised, but no jeweler seemed able to tell me its exact value. At that time Drew Pearson, the columnist, announced that I was about to sell this stone, that it had been given to my husband, not to me, and that it was valued at $25,000.

I was appalled at the thought that I might be accused of having kept out of my husband's estate something that had actually belonged to him, so I immediately asked James, who was with his father when these gifts were presented, if he remembered about them. He promptly responded that they were handed to him for me. Although I realized that one's own son's testimony would not be considered very good I could think of no other way of proving the point. My husband was dead, and Mr. Pearson kept insisting that the present Foreign Minister of Brazil had told him that the stone had been given to Franklin. I suppose the new Foreign Minister had no idea what difference there was between giving it to my husband and giving it to me.

Stone Placed in Library

I HAD not wanted to give this stone to the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library because I felt it had very little connection with any of my husband's collections. I hoped I could do something with it that would in some way benefit the Brazilian people. Fortunately I discovered that Mr. Welles knew all about the presentation of this gift to my husband for me, and he told me that it would give great pleasure to the Brazilian people if the stone were placed with Franklin's other collections in the library at Hyde Park. It is there now. I think it does interest people and perhaps serves a good purpose by symbolizing the kindness and generosity of Brazilian feeling toward our country.

My husband knew me so well that on this trip he also brought me a very small aquamarine pendant, which I sometimes wear. In giving it to me he said: "I have brought you this inconspicuous gift because I feel quite sure you will never wear the large stone."

It used to annoy him that when he asked me what I would like I always wanted utilitarian things such as towels, sheets and pillowcases. My only interest in jewelry is a sentimental interest in having something that has belonged in the family, that has been worn by someone I really care about or that is given to me by someone I love.

I like beautiful things, but it would never occur to me to go out and spend money on jewelry to wear when there is already so much in the family. I feel the younger people in the family are apt to enjoy pieces that are of more modern design, even though for purely sentimental reasons they will treasure things that belonged in the family.

As a matter of fact I have enjoyed frivolous gifts Franklin occasionally gave me, and I am sure that because he chose them, if for no other reason, they will mean something to the children to whom I give them now or in the future.

First Lecture Trip

WHILE Franklin was away on his South American trip Miss Thompson and I went on my first real lecture tour.

During all the years I spent in Washington I was always preparing for the time when we should no longer be there. I did not want to give up my interests in New York City because I always felt that some day I would be back. I never anticipated that so many years would pass before I would leave Washington. There was much to do while there, always many enjoyable privileges, but I kept expecting to leave at the end of every four years. I did not wish to be spoiled either by enjoying the privileges too much or by losing my interest in activities which might be continued after I left the White House. This seems to be ridiculous as I look back, but I might as well record that it was one of my constant preoccupations.

Because I was under contract for the lecture trip I had to keep to my schedule. The program meant much work and discipline—and I felt I needed both. Any free time I had I spent observing Government projects and how they were being carried out. I reported to Franklin on my return.

Another advantage of these trips was the chance to get away to less formal surroundings—though I was to find that going on lecture trips did not always mean that I succeeded in being "unofficial!" On occasion I was more guarded and watched over than in Washington.

The theater was one of many things which drew me to New York City. I have always enjoyed it, and in Washington the opportunities for seeing good plays were rare. In the early days, whenever possible I persuaded Franklin to go to any play that came to the National Theater. I usually asked the cast to come back to the White House for supper after the play. Franklin enjoyed the plays and the supper parties, but opportunities for these pleasures were more and more rare as he grew busier.

Each year during the March of Dimes campaign a play was brought down from New York City for a benefit performance in the District of Columbia. At first Franklin always attended these performances, and we always had a supper party afterward, even when in later years he no longer attended them.

Parties for Polio

MY HUSBAND'S birthday was always a busy day for all of us. The movie stars generously took part in the celebrations held for the benefit of victims of polio, and it was great fun to have those who came to Washington lunch with us. For their part they all enjoyed, I think, the tour of the house which I, with the help of whatever children were at home, always conducted for them. They were most gracious in giving their autographs to the White House staff.

In the evening I made the rounds of the hotels where Birthday Balls were given, but I usually came back to the White House in time to hear my husband's broadcast in the company of many of the stars. I know how touched and deeply grateful for their help Franklin was and how glad that his birthday could be made the occasion for helping these victims of polio.

My husband always planned my birthday parties. As he knew I did not like much fuss he usually only invited to dinner a few friends I especially cared about. Even so I was always glad when I ceased to be the center of attraction. A leftover from my early shyness, I imagine!

As a family we had always tried to be together at Christmas, until the children married and moved away. It was part of our tradition to have stockings for everyone in our bedroom Christmas morning, and as soon as the children awoke they woke us and everyone else. Our Christmas tree was usually ready Christmas Eve. The older children helped trim it. Franklin always directed the placing of every ornament or string of tinsel, even after he had polio.

At Hyde Park we lit the tree on Christmas Eve for the party to which we invited all the people on the place. After we went to the White House we kept the same routine as far as the family was concerned, adding to it whatever official duties we had to perform.

In the morning of the day before Christmas my husband and I had a reception for the White House clerical staff and the Secret Service men, at which he gave each guest a small remembrance and wished him or her a happy Christmas. In the afternoon we had a party for the household staff, chauffeurs, maintenance men and police. To this afternoon party each employe was asked to bring his immediate family if he cared to do so. The children under 12 years old received a personal gift and each employe a money present and a cornucopia of candy. We usually gave the police guards a tie or a handkerchief, a fruit cake and a cornucopia of Christmas candy.

Of course, this meant a great deal of organizing and planning beforehand. During the year if I saw any things in my travels that I thought I could give as Christmas gifts I had them sent to the White House. We had a closet on the third floor which we called the "Christmas closet" where the items were stored as they arrived.

Cook Loses His Grip

Detroit, Jan. 17 (U.P.)—John Schrawyer's wife was late getting home, but any man certainly knows enough to start a roast cooking. He lit the gas oven.

The next thing Schrawyer did was call the fire department. The oven was belching smoke.

"Why didn't you just turn off the gas?" a fireman asked him.

"I didn't think of that," replied the frustrated cook.

Bing's Son Sings Tonight

Hollywood, Jan. 17 (U.P.)—Bing Crosby's 16-year-old son Gary makes his debut as a crooner Wednesday night. Columbia Broadcasting System announced he will croon "Dear Hearts and Gentle People" on his father's radio program.

Bus Driver Kills Wife, Her Mother, Dog, Self

Milwaukee, Jan. 17 (U.P.)—Henry King, 57, beat to death his wife, mother-in-law and a collie dog today, then hanged himself, police reported.

Police said King, a bus driver, apparently had brooded because his wife was suing him for divorce. They said he left a note saying: "I have not slept in three weeks and I'm losing my mind. I leave about $20,000 and give us all a good steel casket."

Police found the bodies of Mrs. Villa King, 54, and her mother, Mrs. Ida Seramur, in a bedroom. Kin's body was hanging in the basement.

by Bill Gold

Any Cross-Examination, Counselor?

It begins to appear that ever since New Year's Eve, visions of Pilgrims and Quakers have been dancing through the 7-year-old head of Elaine Wender of 6432 31st pl. nw.

The other night Elaine took her troubles to her father, Lawyer Harry S. Wender.

"Daddy," said Harry's youthful client, "why is it that on New Year's Eve people sang a Thanksgiving song?"

"I don't get it," replied Harry. "What Thanksgiving song?"

"You know—'should all the Quakers be forgot and never brought to mind.'"

SUGGESTION BOX

Hal Feyling of 8910 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md., notes that the White House is going to get some custom built autos which allow enough headroom for a silk hat.

Hal wonders whether they're going to be patterned after airplanes, and be fitted with plastic dome "bubbles."

AIN'T IT THE TRUTH?

Herb Harris of 1121 N. Kensington st., Arlington, Va., observes that the quickest way to get dissatisfied with the size of your paycheck is to take it to the bank and find the teller engaged in counting down huge bales of twenties.

CATASTROPHE

Don Pond of 5041 12th st. ne. fofwards an open letter to the Internal Revenue people. He says:

"I'm ready to plead guilty right now. Where do I go to give myself up?"

It's not a matter of failure to pay his income tax, or of deducting more than the law allows. Simple difficulties of that kind can be straightened out with the payment of additional cash, and perhaps a few years in the jug.

But Don's problem is far more serious. And he blames his plight on "man's best friend"—his dog.

Here's the story: The income tax people enclosed with this year's tax forms a business machine card liberally punctured with holes (mine has 85).

Taxpayers are asked to return this card with their forms so that "your return can be processed quicker on modern tabulating machines."

The cards carry the usual request that you refrain from folding, bending or stapling them, because that interferes with the operation of the processing machines.

But Don's Hungarian sheepdog got to the letter before Don did, and wherever the dog's teeth found their mark, new holes have been added to the ones originally placed there by Uncle Sam.

As a result, Don suspects that there will probably be a slight error of several million dollars in his tax bill, and that he and the dog are as good as in prison right now.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

As a party line subscriber, I am irked when those with whom I share the line try to hog it.

It seems to me that our local phone company could do something to minimize this difficulty.

In the small village of Arcola, in Loudoun County, Va., the circuit is automatically shut off after the conversation has run for six minutes.

If the small private firm that operates the telephone system in Arcola can install such equipment, why can't the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co?

Name Withheld.

Dear Madam:

The local phone company could install the same type of equipment if it chose, but its answer is:

"We prefer to educate our patrons to keep their conversation brief, rather than arbitrarily cut them off."

PERSONAL NOTES

W. M. Devine, 234 F st. nw.: Several authorities consulted on the question agree that Chopin's Waltz in D-Flat, Opus 64, No. 1, popularly known as the "Minute Waltz" (pronounced MIN-it) is not supposed to be played in one minute. One book says: "It is capable of several acceptable interpretations," and about 90 seconds is considered par for the course.

JUST FOR A CHANGE

The news story I want to read is the one about coal miners defying John L. Lewis by working instead of striking.

KID STUFF

The pupils at the Lafayette School were having one of those sessions in which each child tells the class what he's done and seen recently. From one scholar came the report:

"And we went to the Library of Congress and we went to the Archives Building and we saw the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Sale."

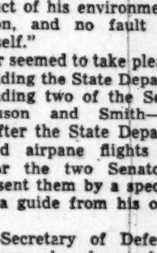
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

MacArthur Back of Formosa Row

By Drew Pearson

Only a handful of Republicans know all the details, but General MacArthur had much more to do with stirring up the current furor over Formosa than even the State Department realizes.



The general may or may not have meant to throw a political bombshell, but he has certainly caused more political headaches and come nearer to splitting MacArthur the bipartisan foreign policy than anything in 10 years—though, of course, Britain's simultaneous recognition of China also helped.

What MacArthur did was to have stern, private talks with visiting GOP Congressmen, especially bustling Senator Knowland of California, plodding Senator Ferguson of Michigan, and fussy former Princeton professor Smith of New Jersey. MacArthur's lectures were delivered in a confidential manner with severe instructions that he was not to be quoted. His language was also stiffer to the Congressmen than in his reports to the Army.

Usually he started by saying something like this:

"I have not been consulted by Washington on strategy in the Far East, and particularly on Formosa.

If Formosa falls, the cold war is lost. Russia will control India in two years, and our position in Japan will be untenable. Russia now has 40,000 troops in fortified islands to our north."

Those who raised a delicate question about Chiang Kai-shek's integrity received a haughty: "the generalissimo is one of the great men to come out of the war. He was shamefully sold down the river at Yalta and Potsdam. He has been smeared by the apologizers and the radicals. Yes, there has been corruption in the Chiang regime, but it is a product of his environment and tradition, and no fault of Chiang himself."

MacArthur seemed to take pleasure in overriding the State Department in sending two of the Senators—Ferguson and Smith—to Formosa. After the State Department vetoed airpane flights to Formosa for the two Senators, MacArthur sent them by a special plane with a guide from his own staff.

Note 1—Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, who also made a big try for United States intervention in Formosa, is peeved at General MacArthur's extracurricular showmanship, because Assistant Secretary of Army Tracy Voorhees was specially sent to Tokyo in December to consult MacArthur and bring back his views. However, MacArthur gave Voorhees no such alarming views as he gave the wide-eyed Congressmen.

Note 2—Though not as eloquent as MacArthur, Admiral Arthur W. Radford also argued to Congressmen who stopped off in Honolulu that Pacific Fleet units should cover Formosa.

Kickback Aftermath

Many years ago, when United States Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut of the District of Columbia was a babe in arms, he was pushed around in his carriage by a young woman named Helen Campbell, a neighbor of the Schweinhaut family.

Years later, Miss Campbell, 63, gray-haired and in need of a friend, came before Judge Schweinhaut, now in the prime of his life. As secretary to Congressman Parnell Thomas, she had been instructed by Thomas to arrange for certain salary kickbacks and, as a result of carrying out orders, had been indicted, along with the Congressman.

But when her case came before the judge whom Miss Campbell had once wheeled in a baby carriage, he showed great compassion for the Congressman, gave him several postponements on the ground of ill health. In doing so, the judge let his former nurse remain under the crushing stigma of an indictment for one whole year, during which she was barely able to make a living.

Finally, another judge took the case, with less compassion for Congressman Thomas, more compassion for Miss Campbell. Judge Alexander Holtzoff refused further postponements, and in the end dismissed the case against Miss Campbell.

However, as a result of more than one year's delay, Miss Campbell has lost her civil service standing, cannot get employment again in the Government—thanks to the postponements of the judge she once pushed around in his baby carriage.

Gilding the Dome

An artisans' row over the painting of the cathedral-like interior of the Capitol dome has become so bitter that G-boss J. Edgar Hoover, who usually specializes in criminal rather than artistic pursuits, has been dragged into the act.

Hoover's FBI is now probing charges that the Schriber contracting company of Washington, which did the paint job under conditions rivaling a circus thriller, violated its contract by using a sprayer instead of hand brushes.

The charges were made by two other contractors, who lost out in the bidding, and who contend that the spraying effected a big saving to the Schriber company unwarranted by the contract. Schriber, supported by Capitol Architect David Lynn, vigorously denies this.

He explains that, with Lynn's approval, he used a sprayer only on the coffered surface of the lofty dome, where it was necessary to get into crevices and cornices that wouldn't take a hand brush.

Schriber bid an amazingly low $26,000 for the job, more than $16,000 under the next low bidder and $37,775 under the highest of eight bidders—so the taxpayers didn't lose. The contractor attributes his low bid to the time and money saved by a new-fangled, aluminum scaffold—similar to a fire ladder topped by a platform—that whirled the painters about the dome's rotunda like men on a flying trapeze.
